DUCKY DAY FOR AN ICY DIP

Framed by snow-covered shrubbery, a leader duck patiently leads others single-file through skim ice in this idyllic scene on a park lake in Cincinnati, Ohio. Several inches of snow blanketed the city yesterday and made driving much more difficult and frustrating than the smooth sailing encountered by the ducks. (UPI Telephoto)

Nixon Launches New Look In His Cabinet

Richardson To Defense; Weinberger Is Elevated

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon initiated his "new broom" policy today by naming Elliot L. Richardson to be defense secretary in his second term Cabinet and budget director Caspar W. Weinberger to succeed Richardson as head of Health, Education and Welfare.

Nixon also announced that Roy Ash, a California businessman and an expert adviser on government reorganization, would take Weinberger's place as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

The major cabinet reshuffle was triggered by the long anticipated resignation of Melvin R. Laird as head of the Defense Department.

Nixon also has another immediate cabinet vacancy to fill, created by the resignation of George Romney Monday as secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

A new HUD secretary is expected to be named shortly — perhaps tomorrow when the White House said further appointments would be announced by the President.

Richardson, 52, and Weinberger, 55, have been in the Nixon administration since the outset in 1969.

Ash, 54, has been president of Litton Industries and in 1969 was tapped by the President to head his Advisory Council on Government Reorganization.

Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler announced the changes. He said they were "part of the President's broad plan to bring fresh perspective and new vitality to the second four years of his administration."

"The President feels these three men will be strong members of an executive team that has as its mandate bringing about constructive change — change that will work —to build a better life for all Americans," Ziegler said.

Richardson, a native of Massachusetts, was undersecretary of state before being named HEW secretary in June, 1970.

Weinberger first served Nixon as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, then moved into White House orbit as deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget under George P. Shultz. When Shultz was named secretary of the Treasury, Weinberger was promoted to director in June 1972.

Before going to Washington, Weinberger served nearly a year as California's finance director. He was appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Prior to his appointment as finance chief, Weinberger was chairman of California's "Little Hoover" commission in 1967. At one time, Weinberger, formerly of San Francisco, served as Republican State chairman as well as a member of the Assembly from San Francisco.

Laird's departure is no surprise. He publicly announced early this year that he would bow out as civilian head of the nation's defense establishment at the end of Nixon's first term.

Ziegler said that Ash would divest himself of any relationship with Litton Industries as of Dec. 9. The firm is a major government contractor.

The nominations were the first major developments in Nixon's announced plans to revamp his official family —an intention he announced immediately after his landslide reelection No. 7.

He told newsmen at Camp David Monday he interpreted his big victory a "mandate for change" to prevent his second term administration from running out of steam and coasting downhill.

Ash, who is the only new face in the Cabinet so far, has been president of Litton since 1961 and was named in 1969 to head the President's Advisory Council on Government Reorganizations.

Tiburon Outlines Redevelop Area

By JAY GOODWIN

The Tiburon City Council last night delineated an irregularly shaped chunk of land, encompassing most of the southwestern end of the peninsula, as the survey area for the city's proposed redevelopment area. (Another Tiburon City Council story, page 5.)

The city staff and planning commission will now analyze all the lands within the survey area and recommend which lands ought to be included in the actual redevelopment area.

Included in the survey area were:

1. The downtown business area.
2. The Hilarita area on Tiburon Boulevard
3. The Red Hill Slide area
4. A parcel of undeveloped land east of Tiburon Boulevard between Lyford Drive and Mar West Street.
5. The southern end of Tiburon Boulevard.
6. The southwestern tip of the peninsula, bordered roughly by Paradise Drive, Centro West Street and Mar West Street.

The survey area was adopted by the council as recommended by the lands and development committee.

Councilman Branwell D. Fanning made a brief presentation of the proposed survey area and outlined the committee's reasons for including the various areas.

Councilman M. Carlisle Becker challenged Fanning to explain precisely why his committee had suggested such an oddly shaped survey area. Becker said the irregular shape made him suspect "undisclosed

Big Heroin Operation Is Smashed

PARIS (UPI) —An internationally known horseman, who also is a general in the Mexican army, was among eight persons arrested by agents who smashed an international drug ring and confiscated 132 pounds of pure heroin at a Paris apartment, police said today.

The confiscated heroin, which was destined for the United States, would have sold for $26 million on the streets there, police said.

The Mexican general was identified as Humberto Mariles Cortes, an equestrian who as a member of Mexico's team in the 1948 Olympics in London won an individual gold medal and rode on teams that won a gold and a bronze medal. He rode in international equestrian events for years and was widely known.

French narcotics agents, working with aid and tips from U.S. investigators, arrested Marlies Cortes, another Mexican, an Uruguayan and five Frenchmen in a raid Saturday on a Left Bank apartment.

Among the five Frenchmen, they said, were two alleged "top-ranking international narcotics traffickers," identified as Rachid Gharbi, 31, and Marcel Mouchighian, 41.

Other Frenchmen nabbed in the round-up were Jean-Claude Flerschinger, 32, Jean-Claude Migozzi, 27, and Jacques Cassandri. The other Mexican was

Redevelopment Fences Mended

By NELS JOHNSON

The battle over redevelopment between the San Rafael Board of Education and the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency appeared near an end last night as both sides tentatively approved a proposal to ease the financial impact of redevelopment on the school system.

In reaching the accord, the board abandoned its own sweeping counter-proposal and accepted an agency offer to return to the school system some tax revenues which are normally frozen under redevelopment.

The agreement is virtually identical to the offer first proposed by the agency, although some clarifications and minor changes were made last night.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, representing the school board, and agency legal adviser Steven H. Goldfarb were directed to draft a final agreement by next week.

At issue — and apparently resolved last night — is the controversial financial arrangement whereby a redevelopment agency freezes current assessed valuation and uses tax revenues resulting from future increases for financing of improvements.

The agreement provides that the agency return to the school system tax revenues resulting from increases in assessed valuation of up to the average percentage of increase in the redevelopment area over the last five years. The return will thus be based on actual increases in assessed valuation up to the average percentage lid.

The agency at first had proposed that the return be based on actual increases up to a 4 per cent lid and the board had requested a flat 4 per cent return. The change in the basis for figuring the return came on the heels of a county study which slows the increase in assessed valuation in the redevelopment area to be 3.57 per cent over the last three years, rather than the 4 per cent estimate. The eventual percentage of return — to be determined after another county study — is expected to be about the same as the agency's original 4 per cent offer.

The school system would receive a maximum refund of about $107,000 for 1973-74 based on the original 4 per cent lid.

The board and the agency agreed that the school system will receive that portion of the schools' share of any unused tax incremental funds exceeding the average percentage lid. Under state law, a redevelopment agency must return to taxing districts any unused tax increment funds.

"It is our intent to put the school system in the same fiscal position it would have been had redevelopment not occurred," said Goldfarb.

The agency agreed to the board's request that repayment come before any other commitments other than bond service debts. The agency had first proposed that bond service debts, as well as outstanding litigation fees, be paid first.

Both sides agreed that improvements be limited to a maximum of $6 million through tax incremental financing after seven years.

Rejected outright by the agency were board proposals aimed at giving the school system veto power over redevelopment. These included board suggestions that the statute of limitations regarding legal action over redevelopment be waived; improvements be limited to those which "directly" increase assessed valuation; and that the bond redemption

Shutdown Of Capitol Seen In Six Months

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Sen. Stephen P. Teale reported today that action is being taken to virtually shut down the 102-year-old state golden domed Capitol within six months because it is "unsafe."

The Rail Road Flat Democrat reported that the legislature's joint Rules Committee has quietly adopted a motion to order the building cleared of its staff, other personnel and news bureaus.

"The motion was to close it down within six months," said Teale, a member of joint Rules. "The reason they are going out is because it is unsafe and is about ready to fall in."

"The Senate is moving all our staff out immediately and as soon as we can get space available for them," he said.

The 102-year-old state Capitol has come under increasing fire recently as a safety hazard, especially in case of an earthquake. There also is a move on to build a new state Capitol.

Teale reported the ouster would affect only the state Capitol proper and not the so-called annex which was built about 20 years ago and houses most legislators' offices, committee rooms and the office suite of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The Capitol section facing closure contains both the Assembly and Senate chambers, news bureaus, staff offices and the offices of Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. and State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest.

Teale said Brown and Mrs. Priest would be advised of the "unsafe" condition but that the legislature did not have the authority to oust them from the Capitol.

Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, chairman of the budget-writing Ways and Means Committee, said he believed that funds should be included in next year's state budget to build a new state Capitol.

"This thing has been ruled unsafe for earthquake purposes," said Brown, whose own office is located in the old section of the building. "The potential liability to the state is enormous."

Hike Seen In California's Alcoholic Rate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The rate of alcoholism in California is the highest in the United States and is predicted to grow in the next five years, a state official says.

Loran Archer, director of the office of alcoholism of the State Human Relations Agency, said yesterday that more young people, especially females, are drinking more alcohol than ever.

He told the National Occupational Alcoholism Training Institute that California has 1.4 million alcoholics, or the highest rate of alcoholism per 100,000 population in the nation.

Chou Raps U.S. Failure To Ink Cease-Fire Pact With Hanoi

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai has "severely condemned" the United States for failure to sign a cease-fire agreement in North Vietnam and pledged continued support to the Hanoi regime, Hanoi Radio reported today.

The statement came as Communist sources in Paris reported North Vietnam had signed a new military aid agreement with China while marking time in the snagged peace negotiations and is discussing further aid with Moscow.

The negotiations between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho resume Monday Dec. 4 after a nine-day suspension. Kissinger conferred twice Monday with President Nixon and is expected to fly to Paris this weekend for more meetings with the Communists.

The U.S. air war against North Vietnam continued, with B52s bombing the southern panhandle, and Radio Hanoi once again accused the United States of indiscriminate bombing attacks on North Vietnam.

"U.S. bombs and shells killed and wounded many civilians, destroyed many homes and properties of the people and many cultural and economical facilities of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam," the radio said.

Both Saigon and Hanoi were taking advantage of the lapse to improve their bargaining positions.

Hoang Duc Nha, President Nguyen Van Thieu's closest political adviser, flew to Paris under strict secrecy to help supervise the new secret talks, and Nguyen Phu Duc, another personal Thieu envoy, was meeting with Nixon on Wednesday. All indications were the talks were snagged on Hanoi's refusal and Saigon's demand that North Vietnamese troops be removed from South Vietnam.

North Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach was en route from Paris to Hanoi to report to the ruling Politburo on the Kissinger talks which were broken off last Saturday.

A Hanoi delegation headed by Le Thanh Nghi, a North Vietnamese vice premier, concluded an agreement in Peking Sunday under which China will supply economic and military aid to North Vietnam in 1973 free of any charge, sources said.

The Hanoi team is currently negotiating a similar extension of Soviet aid into next year, the sources said.

China and Russia are the two main suppliers of war material and economic aid to North Vietnam. Moscow has supplied Hanoi with both conventional infantry equipment plus sophisticated weapons such as SAM ground-to-air missiles and MIG fighters, and has trained North Vietnamese crews in their handling.

Diplomatic sources in Paris reported earlier that both Peking and Moscow urged moderation when Le Duc Tho stopped off there recently on a trip to

Japanese Plane Crashes At Airport In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) —A Japan Air Lines (JAL) flight crashed at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport Tuesday night, an airline spokesman said. There were no immediate details of casualties.

"Yes, a plane has gone down," a JAL spokesman at the airport said. "I can say nothing more. I am so busy."

Initial reports from unofficial Western airline sources said 62 persons were aboard the plane which crashed in flames about 500 yards from the end of the runway.

An airline spokesman said the plane was a long-range DC8 on a flight from Copenhagen to Tokyo via Moscow.

The crash was the second major one at Sheremetyevo Airport in six weeks. On Oct. 13 an Aeroflot IL62 airliner crashed near the airport, killing all 176 persons aboard—the worst recorded civil air catastrophe—according to Western airline sources.

Call For Greater Role For States

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —Govs. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and John Gilligan of Ohio and former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina called Monday for a greater division of responsibilities between federal and local government.

The three delivered separate speeches at the 78th National Conference on Government.

Rockefeller complained that many federal programs are inadequately funded and said adoption of innovative financial methods would improve government's credibility with the taxpayer.

"Congress' eyes are bigger than its stomach," he said. "Many programs are unfunded except for what is provided at the local level."

New York's Urban Development Corporation, which was given authority to sell $1.5 billion worth of federally insured bonds, has worked in financing low and moderate-income housing, he said.

Gilligan said states and cities cannot look any more to Congress or the president to "bail" them out of their problems.

Revenue Sharing is important, he said, but only as a "meaningful system of keeping at the local level some of what we now send straight to Washington for Congress to do with as it sees fit."

Noting that his Ohio constitutents voted Nov. 7 in favor of a tax increase, Gilligan said he is convinced people are willing to pay fair taxes for needed services.

"What the people are tired of paying is unfair taxes," he said.

Sanford, now president of Duke University, proposed a restructuring of government to get state and local officials involved in the planning stages of national legislation.

"Obviously, the testimony of mayors and governors before legislative hearings is not adequate," he said. "Involvement could be better accomplished through the executive branch, but first the national government needs to be restructured. Right now there is so much overlapping and lack of focus that the national government cannot do much intelligent planning itself."

George Romney, who announced his resignation as secretary of Housing and Urban Development Monday, was scheduled to speak on "innovation and the future of urban America" today. The conference is sponsored by the national municipal league.

Dual Citizenship Decision Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department has been asked by a group of American blacks, who include activist Jesse Jackson, a congressman and the Manhattan borough president, to determine if they can accept dual citizenship from Liberia.

In addition to Jackson, the group includes Manhattan Borough President Percy Sutton and Rep. William Clay, D-Mo. A State Department spokesman said Monday the members of the group "made it clear that they did not want to give up their American citizenship."

19 Die In Accidential War Bombing

SAIGON (UPI)—Six American jet fighter-bombers accidentially bombed a populated area near the upper South Vietnamese coast today, killing at least 19 persons and injuring 29, the U.S. command said.

The command said two Air Force F4 Phantoms and four Navy A7s dropped "several" 500-pound bombs in an area about 2-1-2 miles west of the town of Hoi An, about 357 miles north of Saigon and about 13 miles south of Da Nang. The command said the jets were flying missions supporting South Vietnamese ground forces at the time.

The command said it was not immediately known how the jets happened to mistakenly bomb the area.

Farther to the north, a South Vietnamese drive to recapture lost ground in Quang Tri Province before declaration of a cease-fire bogged down in the face of heavy North Vietnamese counterattacks.

The stalled government drive toward the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province, came despite massive air support.

The U.S. command said 48 B52 bombers in the past 24 hours dumped an estimated 2,400 tons of explosives on Communist positions—all but three of the big planes hitting within 10 miles of Quang Tri City—and 148 tactical air strikes were flown in the five-province northern region, most of them in Quang Tri.

UPI Correspondent Donald A. Davis reported that government marines fighting seven miles north of Quang Tri City, 435 miles north of Saigon, appear to have been stopped in their tracks since they repelled a North Vietnamese assault over the weekend.

In Central Highlands fighting today about 43 miles east of Pleiku, Communists ambushed a South Vietnamese supply convoy at the 4,000-foot-high An Khe Pass, destroying eight trucks and damaging a number of others, military sources said. Initial reports listed casualties as one South Vietnamese dead and four wounded.

The spot is on Highway 19, which was closed for six weeks in March and April by North Vietnamese ambush teams.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Note Of Caution

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The moonport director has warned space center workers that success can't be taken for granted and said continued hard work and dedication are needed for the Dec. 6 start of the final Apollo flight.

"A successful Apollo 17 mission will be a deserving conclusion to man's greatest undertaking," said Dr. Kurt H. Debus in a letter mailed yesterday to all 15,000 Kennedy Space Center employes.

In an apparent reference to a labor dispute which threatened to erupt into a strike next week, Debus said he was counting on the launch team "to give full support to the Apollo 17 mission." The wage disagreement involves 60 documentation services workers and the Boeing Co., a support contractor.

Likes Camp David

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — Since President Nixon took office in January 1969, he has spent 194 days-six months-at Camp David, the presidential retreat in the western Maryland mountains.

He indicated yesterday he will be spending even more time here.

"I find that up here on top of a mountain it is easier for me to get on top of the job, to think in a more certainly relaxed way at times," Nixon told reporters assembled in the Camp David helicopter hanger.

Nixon said he had written some of his most important speeches and made some of his most important decisions at the comfortable, woodsy retreat in the Catoctin Mountain range about an hour's drive from Washington.

Rules Fuss Solved

HELSINKI (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Romania today patched up a diplomatic quarrel that had stalled the Helsinki talks on European security.

Romania had insisted that rules for the talks include a clause that all 34 nations represented were equal "irrespective of membership in military alliances." The Soviets saw the clause as a dig at the Communist Warsaw Pact alliance and opposed it.

A spokesman said the stalemate broke when the nations agreed on compromise wording that the talks "will take place outside military alliances." The compromise was proposed by Romania, the spokesman said, and approved by the Russians.

Link To Peron

LONDON (UPI) — A London newspaper said today that Martin Bormann, deputy to Adolf Hitler, escaped to South America with the help of a Vatican passport gained by paying former Argentine President Juan D. Peron $200 million.

Bormann was sentenced to death in absentia by a Nuernberg war crimes tribunal. He was reported killed in the Berlin bunker where Hitler died in 1945.

In the second of a series of London Daily Express articles purporting to prove Bormann is alive, American author Ladislas Farago and Express correspondent Stewart Steven said Bormann, "traveling tourist class on the steamer Giovanni C from Genoa, Italy, arrived in Argentina on May 17, 1948.

"His passport, No. 073909, issued by the Vatican Office of Stateless Persons, identified him as Eliezer Goldstein, a geologist born in Piotrkoff, near Warsaw," the article said.

Blames Militants

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Gov. Edwin Edwards told 150 shouting, hissing black demonstrators yesterday that militant students were responsible for the deaths of two Negroes on the Southern University campus 12 days ago.

"The so-called student leaders who refused to obey duly constituted authority are responsible," the governor said, standing in front of the protesters on the steps of the Louisiana Capitol.

Two separate committees-a 12-member biracial state commission, and a 14-member self-appointed group of prominent blacks from around the nation-held their second day of investigations today, trying to find out what actually happened on the all-black campus Nov. 16, and why.

A RIDE TO JAIL

Los Angeles newsman William Farr, with a pensive look on his face, rides in a sheriff's van to jail for the second time in a week. Farr was remanded to custody yesterday after Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older asked him if he had changed his mind about disclosing sources in the Charles Manson case. Farr replied "I have not." Older ordered Farr to remain in jail indefinitely.

'Uninformed' Physicians Are Blamed For 'Pill' Problems

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Problems related to birth control pills actually are due to "remarkably uninformed" doctors who prescribe the wrong pills, an obstetrician said Monday.

Dr. Richard P. Dickey, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Louisiana State University, told the American Medical Association's clinical convention that the dangers and unpleasant side effects associated with the pill could be eliminated if physicians knew more about the 14 varieties available.

"Oral contraceptives continue to be the leading form of birth control in the United States," Dickey said. "Despite this, the average American physician is remarkably uninformed about the pharmacological effects of the pill and about the differences between the various pills from which he can choose."

The pill, he said, will continue to be the leading method of contraception for "many years" because it is nearly 100 per cent effective and totally reversible.

In a business session, the AMA board of trustees called for the creation of an advisory committee to "take an active part" in a new federal program which will review the quality of medical services given Medicare and Medicaid paitients.

Under new federal Social Security provisions, bodies called Professional Standards Review Organizations (PSRO) will be set up.

Four Events Scheduled By YMCA

The Young Men's Christian Association of Marin has announced four activities for boys and girls in December, ranging from a mountain hike to a day on the bay aboard a Chinese sailing junk.

On Dec. 9, youngsters aged 8 to 12 years will help rig and sail the Chinese junk Shui Jen off McNear's Beach Park between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

On Dec. 16, youngsters 5 through 12 years old will hike through Cataract Gulch at the end of Alpine Dam on Mount Tamalpais, a day-long event, featuring a lunch of camper's stew.

On the week of Dec. 16, oungsters 13 through 17 will snowshoe a mile through Bear Valley to a YMCA cabin for six days of skiing and winter survival at Alpine Lake.

In the week of Dec. 26, the YMCA's second annual snow camp opens at Lake Sequoia near Kings Canyon National Park for youngsters aged 8 through 14.

Angel Chief Linked To Slain Man

OAKLAND (UPI) —A former Hell's Angel has testified he heard a pistol shot and then saw Ralph "Sonny" Barger holding a gun while standing beside the body of a slain narcotics dealer

"I heard a pop and Sergey said, 'Well, I guess that does the Cuban in.'" Richard Ivaldi, 26, said Monday at the trial of Barger and three other members of the renegade motorcycle club

He also quoted Barger, the club's leader, as saying, 'That's quiet for a 32," referring to the pistol. The Sergey he named is Sergey Walton, 28, a defendant.

Ivaldi, a truck driver, was on the witness stand concerning the shooting May 21 of Servio W. Agero of Texas, whose body was found in the bathtub of a burning house in a secluded part of Oakland.

He said he was coming upstairs from the basement with Walton when he heard the shot from a pistol which had a silencer.

After the shooting of the sleeping victim, a plastic bag was put over the body's bloody head before it was carried to the tub, he added. Then the bag was thrown in a fireplace, gasoline was sloshed around the house and ignited, he continued.

Ivaldi, who admitted he had been involved in narcotics dealing and had sniffed cocaine before the killing, said he was at the house as a "favor" to a drug dealer who had done business with the Angels. He named the man as Gary Kemp and described him as a "good friend."

Stokes Held Back Report On Safety

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — B.R. Stokes, general manager of the Bay Area Rapid Transit System, said Monday that a report received 14 months ago warning that the $35 million automatic control system was "potentially unsafe" wasn't passed on to the system's directors until ten days ago.

"It wasn't written for the directors," Stokes said, adding that the report was ordered by BART's engineering consultantants, Parson, Brinckerhoff-Tudor Bechtel, a combine being paid $141.9 million to advise BART.

The independent report, prepared by Batelle Laboratories of Columbus, Ohio, warned of the possibility of accidents such as the one that occurred October 2 when a speeding train ran off the end of the Fremont line and into a parking lot.

The report said the Westinghouse Electric Co. control system did not depend on traditional "fail-safe" systems. It said that under some conditions a train could speed up when it should stop.

The safety of BART's train control system is currently being investigated by the state Public Utilities Commission.

In addition to the other studies being made of the 75-mile long transit system, BART's directors voted Monday to hire a Southern California space engineer to evaluate the sysetem for $200 a day for a maximum of 2 1-2 months.

The board hired Robert A. Profet, a scientist in advanced electronics technology at McDonnell-Douglas. He will evaluate the various studies made on the control system.

Participant In Robbery Sentenced

A 21-year-old Santa Venetia resident was given a suspended state prison sentence in Marin Superior Court yesterday for his part in the $1,400 robbery of a San Rafael bartender in September.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ordered the jail time and five years of probation for Jerry Wayne Hurd and said "If he were more than 21, I would send him to state prison."

Codefendant Edward Alexander Moten, 20, was also jailed yesterday, pending sentencing Dec. 18, because he had failed to keep appointments with a probation officer. An airman from Hamilton Air Force Base, he reportedly was on leave in Florida since he and Hurd pleaded guilty last month as part of a plea bargain.

The two were arrested Sept. 3 in San Francisco along with a 16-year-old youth less than half an hour after three men, one carrying a pistol, held up bartender John Goveia at George's Recreation Parlor.

The juvenile, who was turned over to Marin Municipal Court for secret proceedings, wielded the gun while Moten emptied the cash register and Hurd watched the door, according to San Rafael Police.

Hurd's probation officer said he has been living off his family since his graduation from San Rafael High School in 1969.

Magee Trial Begins On An Unruly Note

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Quentin lifer Ruchell Magee, the "other defendant" in the Angela Davis murder case, started his trial on an unruly note Monday by slugging his lawyer and shouting "stupid, dumb judge."

Magee, 32, whose murder and kidnaping trial was separated from that of Miss Davis because of repeated courtroom outbursts and delays caused by his handwritten motions, was removed from court to a holding cell after both incidents.

He and Miss Davis were charged two years ago in connection with the Aug. 7, 1970, gunbattle at Marin County courthouse in which a judge and three other men were killed. Miss Davis, a Communist and black revolutionary, was acquitted last June after a lengthy trial.

Superior Court Judge Morton R. Colvin ordered the screaming defendant out of court during the opening session for repeatedly ignoring warnings to be quiet.

"You are a stupid, dumb judge! I'd like to get my hands on you!" shouted Magee as he was led out by bailiffs.

The defendant returned to court after the lunch break and resumed his interruptions. A few minutes later, Magee suddenly lunged at his court appointed attorney, Robert Carrow.

Rommel Bondoc, an associate of Carrow who was seated between the defense attorney and Magee, was also sent sprawling over the back of his chair. Documents, brief cases and pencils went flying.

Bailiffs subdued the defendant and again took him to the holding cell.

After the outbursts, Judge Colvin began the questioning of the first prospective juror from a panel of 125 veniremen. The selection of a jury continued today in the heavily-guarded courtroom.

Supervisors Approve Personnel Cost Cuts

The Marin County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved cutting about $300,000 from county personnel and operating costs for the remaining seven months of the fiscal year.

The proposal, drafted by Supervisors Robert A. Roumiguiere, will force department heads to rejustify the filling of vacant positions and directs the county administrator's office to reduce budget appropriations in service and supply accounts.

It also calls for reopening the 1972-73 budget to consider additional cuts in Hall of Justice security, War on Poverty programs and the children's treatment center at Marin Juvenile Hall.

Roumiguiere, appointed to the board after the June hearings on the county budget, suggested the cuts in view of failure of the Legislature to pass a property tax shift program.

Approval of his proposal, which was circulated privately among colleagues and department heads prior to today's board session, was cut and dried, involving about 15 minutes discussion.

The board, in accepting the document, agreed to meet with department heads in a series of so-called workshop sessions to discuss the cuts.

The proposal also calls for a review of management salaries to reward "more effective" department heads and employees and to cut salaries of the less efficient.

The supervisors agreed to Roumiguiere's request for a meeting in January to create a long-range program that eventually would reduce the county's 1,600-man work force by 2 to 4 per cent.

Francis J. O'Connell, executive director of the Marin County Employees Association, questioned the timing of Roumiguiere's proposal, saying "I hope you don't get stampeded into setting a policy" prior to hearings in June on 1973-74 county budget.

O'Connell said he was bothered by portions of Roumiguiere's plan which suggested employing extra-hire workers instead of permanent employees.

The extra-hire plan could save about 23 per cent in wages and fringe benefits per employee as opposed to hiring permanent workers, according to Roumiguiere's proposal.

motivations" had guided the lands and development committee, which also included Councilman Albert Aramburu.

Fanning immediately retorted, saying there were no "undisclosed motivations" and that the boundaries were simply drawn to conform to city streets and city limits lines.

Becker later told the Independent-Journal that he had no specific charge in mind when he challenged Fanning to provide clearer explanations for his committee's boundary recommendations.

City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer, who had previously recommended that only the downtown area be included in the survey area, last night said the staff could logically analyze the larger area proposed by the lands and development committee.

The larger area was approved 4 to 1, with Becker dissenting. The area will be studied by the staff and the planning commission, which will recommend specific areas to be included in the project area.

California law provides that redevelopment agencies may freeze the assessed value of land and improvements for all taxing districts in the designated area. The agency then sells bonds to finance capital improvements in the area and collects the increased property taxes attributable to the increase in the area's assessed valuation.

When the redevelopment bonds are paid off, the freeze on assessment for other taxing agencies in the community ends.

Mill Valley Eyes Bus Depot Plans

The Mill Valley Planning Commission last night urged the city council to consider turning the old Mill Valley bus depot into a combination commercial operation and public service facility.

The commission made no specific recommendation as to how the depot should be used in the future, but indicated both a "compatible commercial use" and a civic use of some type would be desirable.

The old depot may soon be vacant since its tenant, Janice Aronoff, has said she plans to abandon her bookstore operation in the building.

In addition, the council has been looking into the depot situation because of a rash of complaints about the structure's deterioration and problems caused by young people loitering around the area.

The planning commission also suggested that any project contemplated for the facility should include restoration of the building, according to Evelyn B. MacCrary, planning department secretary.

She said the commission thought the depot's current function as a kind of information center for Mill Valley should be continued, at least for the present time.

The commissioners also asked the council to instruct the city's police department to crack down on loitering problems near the depot by strict enforcement of existing laws.

Portable TV Sets, Microwave Ovens Stolen

Nine portable television sets and three microwave ovens valued at $3,000 were taken sometime between Saturday and Monday from the Goodyear Service store at 496 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, by thieves who smashed a window, police said today.

Police said they believed a burglary ring is involved in the theft, and linked the incident to the burglary of 42 handguns from the Big Five Sport Shop in the Northgate shopping center on Nov. 23; the burglary of a dozen shotguns from Western Sport Shop on Third Street on Nov. 6 and the theft of tools from Davis Saw Service on Francisco Boulevard on Nov. 16.

In all four cases, entry was gained by smashing a window with a piece of lumber, with thieves making a quick entrance and exit, police said.

Trio Reports Incidents Of Molestation

Two 17-year-old San Rafael girls and a 29-year old San Francisco woman told police they were molested in San Rafael in separate incidents yesterday.

The San Francisco woman and one of the 17-year-olds told police a balding man grabbed their right breasts after approaching them within a five-minute span at about 4:30 p.m. near Fourth Street in the downtown area. Both women said they shook their attacker off and fled, police said.

The man was described by both as being 25 years old with balding brown hair and a pale face. The attacker wore blue jeans and dark glasses and laughed as he approached the women, police said.

In an unrelated incident, another 17-year-old San Rafael girl said two men pulled her into a Volkswagen as she was walking down Smith Ranch Road at about 7 p.m. and fondled her.

The girl said she blacked out, then managed to escape their grasp and flee, according to police.

The driver of the car was described as about 25 to 30-years-old with a tattoo of a circle and a cross on his right arm and wearing green pants. The other man, who walked with a limp, was about the same age and wearing blue-jeans, police said.

In a fourth sex-related incident in San Rafael yesterday, Terra Linda Fire Chief George Walser told police that a man was seen exposing himself near the Emporium in the Northgate Shopping Center at noon yesterday.

DEVELOP

schedule not be adopted without board approval.

The agency also rejected a board proposal that the city pick up the tab out of its own coffers if the agency is unable to repay the amount due in any given year. Instead, a system may be worked out whereby the school system receives advance funds in an abundant year if the following year looks lean, according to Goldbarb.

Also axed was a board proposal that the school system receive full tax revenue resulting from all new residential construction within the redevelopment area. Instead, the agency said negotiations will be reopened if redevelopment projects flood the school system with new pupils.

The two-and-ond-half-hour session was laced with charges by agency staff that Godino, who drafted the board's counter-proposal, was guilty of conflict of interest in representing the school board as well as the county and other special taxing districts in the redevelopment rhubarb.

"I think we should have full authority to do what is best," declared agency director Mayor C. Paul Bettini. "A lot of these provisions (in the counter-proposal) look like you're out to turn around and sue us." He charged Godino with throwing "stumbling blocks" into the path of redevelopment.

"Are you speaking for the school districts' or the county?" agency director Lawrence E. Mulyran asked of the attorney at one point.

Godino said he would step down as counsel for one taxing district affected by redevelopment should another affected by the plan and represented by the county seek legal action asking the same proportionate repayment as the school system. "That would be a direct conflict of interest," he said.

Some redevelopment officials have claimed the county is trying to block redevelopment plans by delaying a settlement with the school system, saying existence of such an accord would sap legal clout from a county suit.

Reactions of most board members last night indicate the school board will not seek to block redevelopment plans in the courts.

"My hunch is nobody will do anything to harm the schools. The council has to be elected, too," said board president Lawrence I. Kramer. "Any reports to the contrary, we are not hostile to redevelopment," he declared.

Other board members agreed with Kramer, though Marilyn Bolinger would make no comment. Mrs. Bolinger, who has urged the school system be exempted from financial participation in redevelopment, sat silent through the joint session.

CABINET

of Management and Budget which Ash has now been named to head.

Nixon met with newsmen for 25 minutes Monday and said he will disclose before Dec. 15 all of his new cabinet appointments and the structure of the lean new federal bureaucracy he is planning.

"The tendency is for administrations to run out of steam after the first four years and then to coast and usually coast downhill. This is particularly true when there is what you call a landslide victory," he said.

"What I am trying to do is to change that historical pattern. The only way that historical pattern can be changed is to change not only some of the players but also some of the plays."

Standing in the helicopter hangar at Camp David, he said no significance should be attached to the order in which the cabinet appointments are announced because this depended on getting the necessary clearance from Congress and completing the evaluation of their subcabinet assistants.

The session, in which reporters were not permitted to ask questions, was Nixon's first meeting with newsmen since his reelection and one of the few occasions reporters have been permitted inside the Camp David compound.

The President appeared relaxed and rested. He has spent most of the time since the Nov. 7 elections at Camp David planning for his second term. He completed a series of meetings with the members of the current cabinet Monday when he met with Attorney General Richard Kleindienst.

He also conferred for more than two hours with Henry A. Kissinger, his chief Vietnam negotiator, in preparation for a meeting Wednesday with Nguyen Phu Duc, the personal emissary of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Thieu dispatched Duc to Washington to press his objections to some aspects of the proposed Vietnam ceasefire. Kissinger returned from Paris Saturday after an eight-day recess was called in his negotiating sessions with Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese representative.

Nixon ruled out any full time government positions for two close associates, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, saying that while both would be very valuable members of any cabinet they would prefer at this time not to take a full time position.

Both, he said, would continue to serve on the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board and would undertake special assignments, Connally in the field of international economic affairs and Rockefeller in helping to develop urban policies.

For the first time, Nixon gave his own assessment of his landslide re-election, saying it was a mandate for "change that works—not radical change, not destructive change—but change that builds rather than destroys."

"I do not consider the election of Nov. 7, 1972, despite the rather massive majority, to have been simply an approval of things as they were. I do not consider that election to have been an endorsement of the status quo...," he said.

HEROIN

identified as Rivera Castillo. The eighth suspect was identified as Miguel Descargues, alias Montalvo, an Uruguayan living in Buenos Aires.

The Mexican general was reported to have participated in a parade of 1972 Olympic champions in Mexico Nov. 20 and to have arrived here five days ago. In the 1960s, he served time in prison for killing a man in an argument about a traffic accident and was later paroled.

Since February 1971, French and U.S. narcotics agents have been out to catch a celebrated international dealer known as Mario Denis-Fernandez, who they said is in reality French stick-up man Andre Condemine.

While seeking Condemine, they came upon Mouchighian and Gharbi, who police said are lieutenants of Condemine. Acting on a tip from the U. S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs (BNDD), French agents put the two under strict surveillance during many trips between Marseilles and Paris over the past 10 days.

Police said the heroin haul was brought from Marseilles and was destined to be transported to Mexico by Cortes and Castillo. They held airplane tickets for a departure scheduled to take off only hours after police arrested them.

PEACE

Hanoi for negotiations with his government, but the Communist statements in Paris today indicated China, at least, might be growing impatient with Washington.

The Communist Vietnam News Agency (VNA) in a broadcast over Hanoi Radio said Chou has "severely condemned" the United States for allegedly delaying the signing of a Vietnamese peace proposal and said he will not let the United States ruin the relationship between China and North Vietnam.

The news agency said Chou made the statement Sunday after China signed the military and economic pact with North Vietnam for 1973.

Kissinger also met with secretary of State William P. Rogers at the State Department prior to his session with Nixon and a department spokesman said the Kissinger-Rogers talks were devoted entirely to Kissinger's private negotiations with Hanoi politburo member Le Duc Tho.

Wednesday, Nixon meets with Nguyen Phu Duc, Thieu's personal representative and Kissinger's Vietnamese equivalent. Thieu asked Nixon to meet with Duc and the President agreed.

Thieu objects to certain provisions of an accord drafted by Kissinger and the North Vietnamese last month—especially a provision that would allow Hanoi to keep troops in South Vietnam after a ceasefire. His objections were reportedly what caused suspension of the latest secret Paris talks.

Thach refused to discuss the reasons for the suspension when he boarded a jet at Orly Airport in Paris for the trip to Hanoi. Communist diplomats said they would not confirm or deny reports that Hanoi would refuse to bow to South Vietnam's demand for removal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia as a peace condition.

Tho, accompanied by Xuan Thuy, head of the regular North Vietnamese delegation to the weekly Paris peace talks, conferred Monday in Paris with Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong foreign minister. Their session was to prepare for Thursday's regular talks, the 169th such meeting—none of which have produced fruitful results.

In Saigon, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met for 15 minutes Monday with Thieu but the results of the meeting were not disclosed. The status of the Paris talks was believed to have been the subject of the session.

Delegate General Vo Van Sung, Hanoi's permanent diplomatic representative in France, conferred during the day with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann on the current stage of the peace-making effort. Results of that meeting likewise were not disclosed.

Soviet Is Ahead In Chess Action

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Youthful Soviet chess genius Anopoly Karpov kept his one-point lead in the San Antonio International Tournament Monday night, playing to a draw with former world champion Tigran Petrosian, also a Russian.

Karpov, 20, Petrosian and a third player from the Soviet Union, Paul Keres, remained in the top three positions in the standings after seven incomplete rounds, although Petrosian shares his No. 3 place with three other competitors, including an American.

Games scheduled for tonight were those adjourned without a decision during the first seven rounds. Five players, including the three Russians, were undefeated going into tonight's play.

Battle Rips Ulster, Irish Border Area

BELFAST (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out today along the 300-mile border between Ulster and the Irish Republic, the British Army announced.

An explosion in a house in the Bogside Roman Catholic district of Londonderry killed three youths, police said, and one policeman died in a rocket attack on a police station at Belleek, 45 miles southwest of Londonderry.

The deaths brought the toll for almost 3 1-2 years of violence in Northern Ireland to 644 dead.

"It looks as though the whole border has caught alight," a British Army spokesman said. "We are fighting gunbattles from north and south of the border and we are up to our eyes in it at the moment."

The battles in various border villages started after two bazooka attacks on police posts at Belleek and at Strabane, a border village in County Tyrone 90 miles southwest of Belfast.

There was also an explosion in a Catholic house in the Old Park road, North Belfast. The blast occurred next to a Protestant school.

Bazooka rockets also struck an army vehicle checkpoint near Newtonbutler, 60 miles south of Londonderry, a border police station at Crossmaglen, 30 miles farther east and an army post outside a school in the Old Park Road district of Belfast.

None caused any casualties, the army said.

Petaluma Votes To Hire Full-Time City Attorney

By BONNIE BARD

The Petaluma City Council last night voted to seek a full-time city attorney, much to the astonishment and anger of the part-time attorney.

To the surprise of City Atty. Edouard E. Robert, the council discussed and rapidly approved a full-time attorney after hearing complaints that Robert on a part-time basis is not accessible enough.

"What it boils down to is whether or not they thought I'm doing my job," Robert said disgustedly after the meeting. Robert, who also has a private practice, said he would have to review the "circumstances" before deciding whether he would apply for the position.

On the 4-3 vote, Councilmen Robert A. Brunner, Richard W. Clecak, John W. Cavanagh Jr. and William A. Perry Jr. voted for the new position. Dissenting were Mayor Helen Putnam and Councilmen Robert A. Daly and Fred V. Mattei.

Robert and City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer clashed when Meyer produced memos from department heads indicating how they would benefit from a full-time attorney. Robert said he had not been informed of the memos. "It's unfair," he said. "I didn't know of a lack of service or availability until now."

Meyer replied angrily, "I have the prerogative to give reports from department heads to the city council without an okay from you. Let's get that straight."

Meyer also complained that Robert doesn't usually come to meet with him at city hall until 4 p.m. "I'm tired by then and others have the same problem," Meyer said.

Robert said his city workload averages 20 hours per week, although some weeks he finds little work to do. "I can't conceive there is sufficient work in the legal field to justify a full-time employee," Robert said. He estimated the yearly cost to run the department would double from the current $28,000. Robert is paid $916 per month for his part-time work.

Meyer said, however, he had no doubt he could keep a full-time person busy. He said the attorney would regularly attend planning commission meetings, as well as council sessions, advise on state legislation, spearhead grant applications and serve as a right-of-way-agent.

The council made the full-time position effective Jan. 1 and directed Meyer to begin preliminary recruitment.

The Petaluma City Council also:

DEVELOPMENT — Became bogged down in procedures on requiring environmental impact reports and delayed until Dec. 18 rezoning applications by Qantas Development Corp. for land behind Washington Square Shopping Center and the application of Ronald Nunn for six houses on Dickson Hill.

REZONING — Approved service commercial and industrial zoning for land on Lakeville and Jefferson streets at Highway 101 to conform to the environmental design plan.

DRIVEWAY — On a 4-3 vote, granted a variance to Camille Enterprises to permit a driveway on Cindy Lane to have a slope of more than 15 per cent.

TRUCK — Approved purchase of a pickup truck from the state at a cost of $2,656. Cavanagh and Perry dissented, saying it should have been purchased locally, although the cost would have been higher.

MEETING — Adjourned to Thursday at 4:30 p.m. to review the new zoning ordinance.

Fine Plus Probation On Theft Charge

A bankrupt Sacramento beauty salon owner was fined $600 yesterday and placed on probation for five years for stealing $5,585 in jewelry and coins from friends in Sausalito.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court decided against jail time for Terry Tuey, 28, after learning he has a job in a beauty parlor in the Lake Tahoe area. "I don't want to destroy that job if we can help it," the judge said.

Tuey was charged in August with two counts of grand theft and one of petty theft, but two counts were dropped last month when he pleaded guilty on condition he receive no more than 60 days in jail.

Tuey said he went to visit his friends because his Sacramento business was ruined by a series of burglaries and a fire which depressed him. He told his probation officer he became so high on drugs he didn't know he had taken two rings, a gold chain and $40 in coins until he found them in his car several days later.

Tiburon Council Delays Review Of Plans For Hilarita Project

The Tiburon City Council last night spent about an hour trying to determine if it should review apparent changes in the precise plans for the Hilarita moderate-income housing project. (Another Tiburon City Council story, page 1.)

Despite vigorous arguments by Councilman Allan N. Littman that the council should review the plans before the Tiburon Ecumenical Association formally seeks a building permit, the council decided not to for the time being.

Littmann said the number of buildings had been reduced, but their size had been increased in the revised plans recently submitted to the planning department. He also said the proposed parking area had been moved closer to Tiburon Boulevard in the new plans.

Littman suggested the council decide immediately whether or not the changes constituted a new revised plan, which would have to be referred back to the planning commission.

He said it would be better to make that decision immediately than wait until the ecumenical association applied for a building permit.

A spokesman for the ecumenical association said many of the revisions in the plan resulted from pressures from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is guaranteeing the project's mortgage.

Mayor Albert H. Sennett disagreed with Littman, saying the council should not act without more information from the city attorney and director of community development.

He said the council will undoubtedly review the plans several times before the building permit is issued.

After a lengthy discussion, the council unanimously agreed to postpone its review of the plans until its staff could assess their significance.

The Tiburon City Council Also:

CORTE LAS CASAS — Upheld a decision by the board of adjustments denying Richard Miller, of 7 Corte Las Casas, a variance to allow his recently-constructed pool equipment shed to encroach on his neighbor's property.

AVENIDA MIRA FLORES — Continued until its first meeting in January a request from Richard B. Ham for a use permit to subdivide five acres of land and build nine houses between Avenida Mira Flores and Geldert Drive in the city's moratorium area.

CAMPING — Passed first reading of an ordinance which would prohibit overnight camping in Tiburon, except in tents on private property with the permission of the property owner.

BELVERON — Authorized City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer to draft an agreement by which the city would buy approximately 25,000 square feet of land extending from Tiburon Boulevard and running along the city-owned right-of-way in Belveron for $3,500. The land would be bought from W.J. McGowan of San Rafael, who has agreed to donate $1,000 to the Belveron Property Owner's Association for playground equipment.

NUISANCE ABATEMENTS — Scheduled Dec. 11 for nuisance abatement public hearings for an abandoned building, known as the "old ticket office", at 1885 Paradise Drive and a fence and land fill on Esperanza Lane adjacent to 1655 Centro West Street.

DRAINAGE — Adopted a master plan for improving the drainage of the Reed School and downtown Tiburon basins, as outlined in an engineering consultant's study prepared in June, 1971, but did not choose among the report's alternate solutions to the flooding problems. The council then referred to its public services committee a proposal to establish a drainage fee for homeowners which would raise revenues for the drainage projects.

CONDOMINIUMS — Approved the tentative maps of two condominiums, the 46-unit Marinero Heights development presently under construction and the conversion of an eight-unit apartment building at 2 Lyford Drive.

UNDERGROUNDING — Established a committee, including former Mayor John S. Hoffmire Jr., City Engineer Stanley M. Bala and a representative of the utilities companies, to coordinate the city's efforts to underground its utilities.

CLOSED SESSION — Went into closed session to discuss pending litigation.

MEETING — Adjourned to tomorrow at 6 p.m. to open bids for Tiburon's $1.25 million worth of open space bonds authorized by voters Oct. 3.

Chain Link Fence Fuss Before Court

A battle of wills over an up-again-down-again chain link fence in Muir Beach spilled into Marin Superior Court yesterday.

Ernest and Martha Emig of Sunset Way filed suit asking a judge to declare that the Muir Beach Community Services District has no right to tear down their fence again and to order the district not to destroy it.

The dispute, according to the suit, began June 15 when the Emigs replaced a damaged wooden fence with the metal barrier. The district a month later told them to take it down since it was on public right-of-way.

The fence stayed until Oct. 30 when district employees tore it down, according to the suit. The undaunted Emigs put up another one Nov. 20 and went to court for protection of their fence, which they claim the district has threatened to tear down again.

The fence dividing their yard from Sunset Way is necessary to keep out careless motorists, animals and litter, according to the suit.

No One To Be Drafted In January

WASHINGTON (UPI) —No one will be drafted into the armed forces in January and the total draft for the first six months of 1973 will be less than 10,000, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today.

That would make the total draft for fiscal year 1973, which ends June 30, about 50,000.

The draft is scheduled to expire June 30. Laird said he anticipated no problem filling active duty forces after that date with volunteers.

However, he said if Congress did not approve enlistment bonuses for the National Guard and the reserves, there might have to be a special draft after June 30 to keep reserve forces up to strength.

The reserves and Guard are now about 45,000 men short of their authorized strength.

In a Pentagon news conference, Laird also:

Indicated defense spending in fiscal 1974 would top $80 billion, at least $4 billion higher than this year's level.

Said he would tell NATO members next month that East-West "detente is not here" and that it could not be achieved through negotiation if either America or her allies let down their strength unilaterally.

Carrier Delayed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fog delayed the return home today of the supercarrier Kitty Hawk after a nine-month combat tour off North Vietnam, the Navy said.

Noted British Composer Dies

SHOREHAM, England (UPI) —Dr. Havergal Brian, often called "the forgotten man of English music," died today. He was 96.

Although he authored 32 symphonies, 5 operas and several pieces of choral music, Brian spent most of his life in obscurity and poverty. He once sold his furniture to buy music paper.

He was named Composer of the Year for 1971 by the Composer's Guild. Two symphonies have been recorded for issue next year.

Shift To Left In Makeup Of Student Senate

BERKELEY (UPI) — Radical coalitions have gained a plurality in the student senate of the University of California, according to official election results.

The shift to the left resulted after two radical parties, the Berkeley Liberation Front and the Asian Party, showed a net gain of four seats in results announced Monday.

The most conservative of the seven parties running, the New Action Alliance, lost two seats.

Of 30 seats in the student senate, 15 were on the ballot this term. The two radical groups combined now have a plurality in the Senate with a total of ten seats.

China Will Build Nepal Textile Mill

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — China has promised to build a second cotton textile mill in Nepal, according to a Sino Nepal communique released here today.

The communique was signed recently in Peking during Prime Minister Kirti Nidhi Bista's 12-day state visit to China.

Sewer Bid Accepted By Board

The San Rafael Sanitation District board last night accepted a low bid on construction of the Bayside Acres Sewer Assessment District and ordered the area annexed to the sanitation district amid applause from the audience.

The action means trenching work may begin as early as next month, according to Norris M. Rawles, public works director and sanitation district administrator.

He said a low bid of $590,777 was awarded to Prodanovich, Inc., and added that construction will begin "as soon as we get Army Corps of Engineers permits, in about 30 days."

The Sanitation district chairman, C. Paul Bettini, said the board declared the Bayside area annexed to the city's sanitation system when opposition to assessment district formation faded. "There were only seven landowners who protested" he said, adding that about 40 other wary homeowners withdrew protest letters before last night's hearing.

He said protest to district formation dipped after the board eased assessments by declaring it would issue bonds for a 25-year period rather than the 15-year period originally proposed. "We also assured homeowners that should landowners of low-lying marsh areas east of San Pedro Road decide to develop their land, they'll be charged like everyone else," Bettini said.

Homeowner acceptance of district formation had also seemed uncertain in the wake of news that the district expenses may run $180,000 more than expected, according to Virginia Congdon, board secretary. "But the engineer of the district talked to homeowners and convinced most that assessments were fair," she said.

Some 161 homeowners are involved in the 151-acre assessment district. The cost to an owner of property assessed at $5,000 will be about $350 a year, she said. Overall assessments range from $4,000 to $11,000, according to Mrs. Congdon.

Total cost of the district, including construction, legal fees and right-of-way purchases, will be about $866,000, according to Rawles.

A Setback For CHP Pay Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —For the second time, the Senate Finance Committee has defeated Assembly-passed legislation to give Highway Patrolmen a 6 per cent raise totaling $3.5 million.

The measure was opposed by both the state Department of Finance and state Personnel Board, whose representatives noted that patrolmen this year received pay increases ranging from 8.5 to 9.5 per cent.

The bill by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, failed on a 6-5 vote Monday. It needed at least seven favorable votes. The committee earlier had rejected the measure but agreed to reconsider action.

Strike Of Bakers Spreads To East

NEW YORK (UPI) —Four East Coast plants making Wonder Bread and Hostess Cakes shut down today as a strike by members of the International Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union spread from the West Coast.

The four plants, two in New York City, one in East Brunswick, N.J., and another in Natick, Mass., were struck this morning by about 1,400 workers.

The strike against Continental-ITT — bakers of Wonder Bread and Hostess Cakes — centers around the union's demand for a consecutive five-day work-week to replace the traditional split days off — Tuesday and Saturday — at most bakeries.

Tim McIntyre, president of local 50 of the union, which has jurisdiction in New York and New Jersey, said from his Miami Beach hotel —where he said he was on union business —that no talks were scheduled in the dispute. He said his union has been working without a contract since Sept. 30.

A spokesman for the company, located in Rye, N.Y., said picket lines were up at the four East Coast plants early this morning and "production has stopped."

The strike, which began early this month in five Western states, comes on the heels of a 27-day walkout against 19 local specialty bakeries that was settled Monday.

A union spokesman said the Continental shutdown—aimed at gaining consecutive days off— could cut the city's supply of white bread by 25 per cent.

Harold Israelson, counsel and negotiator for the specialty bakeries, said that a final contract agreement has been reached with Local 802 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters which had been on strike since Nov. 1.

A union spokesman said the new 39-month pact includes a variety of increased wages and benefits that will give its members an additional $43 a week. No date has been set for a ratification vote, and the increased costs "will probably be passed along to the public," Israelson said.

Slain Victims— Mexican Aliens

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) —Five men shot to death in a hermit's shack on a remote ranch near the Texas-Mexico border were identified Monday as Mexican aliens who sought work in the United States.

Relatives from a small town in Central Mexico identified the remains of three of the victims as Jose Alfredo Avalos, 18, Publio Cruz Cansada, 22, and Salomon Castillo Aguilar, 28. Two men identified earlier were Diego Velasquez Barrientos, 45, and Isidro Avalos Cabrera, 45.

Webb County Sheriff P.L. Flores said they were shot to death on Thanksgiving eve by rancher Kenneth Adami, 60, who found the five eating food in a shack on his father's remote ranch.

Youth Stranded Atop Monument

He missed the last elevator down at 5 p.m. Monday, leaving him stranded.

For two hours the Danish exchange student shouted in vain. Finally he used his pen knife to pry open a telephone cabinet. He dialed one number after another on a list until the last one answered.

"May I help you?" the voice asked.

HONOLULU COULD SAY 'CHARGE IT'

HONOLULU (AP) — Honolulu may become the first city to have an American Express credit card.

The city Office of Social Resources received a letter yesterday from American Express addressed to "Mr. Honolulu City-County."

The two-page letter, signed by Maurice Segall, senior vice president and general manager for the American Express card division, started, "Dear Mr. County," and included an application for a credit card.

Jack Teehan, of the office of Social Resources, said, "I have suggested we send the application in. After all, the city-county has a big enough bank account."

Senator Harris On Goodbye Tour

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Retiring Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., and his wife, Ladonna, opened a "good-bye, thank you," tour of the state Monday during which Harris said he feels he can be more effective out of office than in.

The man who served Oklahoma in the Senate for eight years said he intends to continue his "new populist" program of redistribution of wealth, land reform, tax justice, decentralization of economic power and "the breakup of shared monopolites."

No Easing Of Library Woes Seen

The financial squeeze that has plagued the Mill Valley Library and threatened cutbacks in service will not get any better until at least Jan. 30, 1973.

At a joint meeting with the library board last night, the Mill Valley City Council agreed to continue the salaries of part-time employees at their current levels until that date, but did not authorize the library to dip into its reserve funds for an additional $12,000.

The library board has, for the past several months, complained that their budget is insufficient to pay all its part-time employees.

The board had been asked at a previous joint meeting to complete a list of possible cutbacks that could save the library money.

According to City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, the board only suggested that the hours of its part-time employees be reduced.

According to Cunningham, the library board said such staff reductions could save about $5,000 a year.

After indicating its dissatisfaction with the board's lack of recommendations, the council agreed to meet again with the board Jan. 30, at which time Cunningham was instructed to present comparative information on other libraries in the area.

Ecologist Says We Owe Debt To Nature

By JEFF GREER

SAN FRANCISCO — There is no cheap solution to environmental preservation, an ecologist warned today.

Prof. Barry Commoner of Washington University in St. Louis called for an alliance between labor and environmentalists to change the nation's productive technology and make life better both on the job and in the community.

Commoner spoke at a day-long gathering on "Jobs and the Environment — Whose Jobs and Whose Environment?" The conference, sponsored by the University of California, was attended by about 500 labor representatives, economists, businessmen and environmentalists at the Fairmont Hotel.

"We have a debt to nature — it's got to be paid some way," Commoner said. "Either the environment will suffer, the social structure will suffer or the entrepreneurs will suffer.

"Most of the environmental controls being prepared put more stress on the poor than on the rich," Commoner said. He cited the example of the rich man's air conditioner which, he said, "heats up the environment of the poor man who cannot afford an air conditioner."

Throughout his speech, Commoner stressed labor's history of seeking better working conditions, and called on labor to join environmentalists in seeking better living conditions.

He displayed numerous charts showing that pollution and health hazards in the U.S. have risen faster than the population since World War II. He said the nation has suffered from lack of liaison between environmentalists and the labor movement.

Commoner gave as an example the problem of chlorinated hyrdrocarbon compounds known as PCB — a cousin of DDT. He said that if scientists had paid attention to the health damages suffered by people who worked with PCB in the 1930s, DDT would never have been released on the world.

Other speakers were to give their own views on who should pay for preserving the environment.

Economist Robert M. Solow, a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a former member of the Council of Economic Advisers, in his keynote address said both industry and consumers must be willing to pay, even if it means a loss of jobs or material possessions.

Sentencing Of Hijacker Delayed

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) —A federal judge has delayed for three months the sentencing of convicted skyjacker Frank M. Sibley Jr., who commandeered a jetliner for $2 million ransom he said would be used to aid war-crippled children in both South and North Vietnam.

U.S. District Judge Morrell Sharp said Monday he needed more information before he could pass sentence on Sibley's air piracy conviction. While denying a motion for a new trial, he directed the hijacker's court-appointed attorney to enter notice of appeal.

Sibley, of Stateline, Nev., will be given psychiatric treatment before returning for sentencing Feb. 27.

Golf Shop Loses $1,376 In Theft

Cash and checks totaling $1,376 were taken from the cash register at the Marin Country Club golf shop between 6 p.m. Saturday and 6:13 a.m. yesterday, according to Novato police.

Officers said a window had been broken, but the office hadn't been ransacked.

School Sale Is Approved In Sausalito

The Sausalito School District board agreed last night to sell vacant Central School to the City of Sausalito for $276,000.

The city intends to use the large Caledonia Street Building as a city hall.

Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg said the school board also decided to give the city a six-month option to purchase Central, in order to allow time to arrange financing.

The Sausalito Council is to consider the purchase at its meeting next Tuesday.

Lindberg said the district plans to use most of the money from the sale to develop its two school sites, Bayside and Martin Luther King. But he said exactly how the funds will be spent — or for what — has not been determined.

The Sausalito School District board also:

MEETING — Set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Thursday to consider a lease of the Manzanita School in Marin City to the Marin City Community Services District.

EMPLOYMENT — Hired these women: Dean Tannewitz as a temporary teacher to replace James T. Toliver Jr., who is on a year's leave of absence; Lavonia Rowe as a bus driver-custodian at $606 a month and Emma Grimmer, Terrie Harris and Andria Kamai as educational aides for Bayside School.

LEASE — Voted to renew the Sausalito Arts Association's lease on the old Bayside School building through June of 1973.

REPORT — Heard a report from Superintendent Lindberg that the district needs closer coordination of curriculum and programs between Bayside and King schools.

MEETINGS — Canceled itsregular meetings of Dec. 4 and 18 and set one meeting for next month on Dec. 11.

Tools Taken

Gottschalk Property Stand Still Same

The Novato Planning Commission last night reaffirmed its recommendation for planned residential one-acre zoning for the William Gottschalk property.

The commission had recommended such zoning for the 42 acres east of Sunset Parkway and north of Merritt Drive several months ago, but the city council asked for further review. The area currently is zoned limited agricultural and two-family residential.

Commissioners also recommended prezoning 21 acres along Oak Knoll Road, west of Eucalyptus Avenue, as single-family residential with 10,000-square-foot lots.

The commission set hearings at 8 p.m. Dec. 11 on a proposal to require a permit for painting and repainting of buildings in commercial and manufacturing zones and on revising the plan review section of the zoning ordinance to clarify the duties of the plan review committee.

Chances Improve On The Capital Tree

WASHINGTON (UPI) —With the help of the Tennessee Valley Authority, a 45-foot Tennessee balsam fir earmarked for display as the U.S. Capital's Christmas tree apparently will get here after all, the Agriculture Department reported Tuesday.

Officials said that if weather permits, the 3,000-pound tree will be lifted out of the Cherokee National Forest by a TVA helicopter early Wednesday and started on its way to Washington by truck.

Contract Awarded For Hearing Facility

The Kentfield School District board last night awarded a contract to Page Construction Co., the low bidder, for a $240,660 building for youngsters with hearing handicaps.

Although the new facility will be for youngsters from all over Marin County and will be operated by the county schools office under a state-aided program, the Kentfield board had to approve the bid because the building will be on that district's property.

The new school at the rear of Adaline E. Kent School will take the place of classes now held in various places in the county, according to interim Supt. Byron W. Mauzy. He said the high cost of the building for about 35 elementary students was due to electronic equipment for the hard-of-hearing. Construction is expected to start Monday.

In other action last night, the board learned that while students in the Kentfield district scored well above grade level in recent tests, that they didn't always make as good scores in some subjects as could be expected from their ability.

Particularly noted, Mauzy said, were lower scores in mathematics computation and spelling. He said students still scored above grade level on the average in these fields but did not do as well as they might have.

The board discussed programs to meet possible lacks in spelling and arithmetic, which possibly have suffered because of emphasis on creative writing and math reasoning, he said.

The board also approved a brochure advertising for a new district superintendent which will go out next month. Deadline for applications is Feb. 1.

Safe Sleepwear Bill Is Signed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The sale of children's sleepwear that does not meet federal flammability standards will be prohibited in California beginning July 1, 1974, under a bill signed Monday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill by Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, makes it a misdemeanor to sell children's sleepwear that does not meet federal flammability standards on articles up to size 14.

The measure also requires the state fire marshal to develop flammability regulations covering other articles of children's clothing.

Novato Firemen Plan Yule Party

Santa Claus will appear to distribute oranges and candy, according to Fire Chief Jack W. Kidder.

BETTER LIFE? — Will the new Mammal Protection Act of 1972 mean a better life for baby seals?

Act To Protect Sea Animals—New Force

By HARRY B. ELLI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "There are loopholes in this law big enough for a blue whale to swim through."

"A landmark piece of legislation, for the first time throwing a mantle of U.S. Government protection around mammals of the sea."

"The law establishes a new principle — that survival of the species, and maintenance of the health and stability of the ecosystem," is the object of U.S. treatment of sea mammals.

Three views of the same law — the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972, designed to reduce the slaughter of whales, porpoises, seals, walruses, manatees, and other warm-blooded, air-breathing denizens of the sea.

Some conservationists, bitter at the success of commercial interests in weakening the bill, claim the law is a "dismal failure."

They note that for two years U.S. tuna fishermen may go on killing dolphins, also called porpoises, as an "accidental" concomitant of netting the yellow-fin tuna.

Schools of tuna and dolphins — one a fish, the other a mammal — swim together, and, in the process of purse-seining the giant tuna, American fihermen alone kill more than 200,000, perhaps as many as 400,000, dolphins yearly.

The air-breathing mammals, whose high intelligence and friendliness to man are established fact, are trapped in the tuna nets and drown.

Other friends of marine mammals acknowledge defects in the bill. But they say the law's success or failure will depend in large part on decisions to be made by three marine mammal commissioners, shortly to be named by President Nixon.

These three men, advised by a nine-member scientific advisory group, will have an effective veto over any desire by the secretary of interior or secretary of commerce to lift the moratorium or protected mammals.

The law, with a few exceptions, prohibits the killing or importation of marine mammals and their products by U.S. citizens or vessels anywhere in the world.

Non-American vessels or fishermen may not kill marine mammals within domestic U.S. waters, except as provided for by international treaties signed before the Marine Mammal Protection Act came into force.

The secretary of state is obliged by the new law to seek renegotiation of such treaties, affecting mainly seals and whales, to make them conform to the intent of the mammal protection law.

For bureaucratic reasons, jurisdiction over polar bears, sea otters, walruses, and manatees falls to the secretary of interior. His commerce department colleague has responsibility over whales, prpoises, dolphins, and seals.

Although often used interchangeably, the names dolphin and porpoise in fact refer to closely related, but distinct, species of the whale family.)

Either secretary may announce his intention to lift the moratorium on a mammal under his jurisdiction. But he must do so publicly, stating his reason, and ask the Marine Mammal Commission for its recommendation.

If the latter body replies that the species in question should not be killed, the secretary must explain — again in public — why he disagrees.

Supporters of the new law doubt that any secretary of interior or commerce would care to defy aroused public opinion by bowing to commercial pressure to allow the killing of a protected mammal.

"The polar bear, walrus, sea otter, fur seal, and manatee," declared a key official, "happen to be both endangered species and largely under the control of the U.S. because of the animal's habitat."

Thus the 1972 act substantially protects the world's population of all the above mammals except the fur seal, whose "harvesting" in Alaska's Pribilof Islands will continue under existing treaty arrangements, unless the seals' population is found to be "trending" downward.

Rapid Transit Control Firms Target Of Suit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A taxpayers' suit seeking $100 million damages was filed today against the companies who designed and installed the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's train control system.

The system has been criticized as unable to perform automatically as designed.

The suit, filed in San Francisco Superior Court, charged that the defendants "did not provide a workable, safe automatic train control system."

Named as defendants were Westinghouse Electric Corp. and the engineering joint venture of Parsons-Brinkerhoff-Tudor Bechtel, BART's prime contractor.

The suit was filed by attorney Richard E. Peritz on behalf of attorney and taxpayer Milton Stern Jr. and all other BART taxpayers.

Colleges Reopened

SEOUL (AP) — The martial law command reopened all colleges and universities in South Korea today. They were ordered closed Oct. 17 when President Chung Hee Park imposed martial law.

Dixie's Old Guard Is Breaking Up

By RICHARD L. STROUT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — They were a magnificent breed, those members of the Southern "Old Guard," each the proud chairman of a powerful committee, the scions of seniority, who together dominated Congress and held a veto power over a nation.

There were such men as Carter Glass of Virginia, Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina, Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Walter George and Dick Russell of Georgia — the list goes on and on.

But now Congress is undergoing an extraordinary change.

But Congress is changing fast. One establishment is succeeding another establishment. Democrats have made gains in erstwhile rock-ribbed Republican states, and the Democratic Solid South seems to be breaking up.

Twenty years ago, despite the Eisenhower victory which made some cracks in the Solid South, the Democrats still were dominant: when the smoke cleared, of the 47 Democrats in the Senate, 22 came from the 11 southern states; in the House, of the 213 Democrats, 100 came from the 11 states. They made just a little under half of their party in each case.

Today the ratio from the South has changed; Democrats are still dominant in 1972, but the Senate spread from the 11 states is now 15 Democrats to seven Republicans, and in the House, the South sends 74 Democrats to 34 Republicans.

Of the total Democratic senators, the South provides only one quarter, and in the House about one-third. The party still is ascendant, but it shows a steady regional decline. The disproportionate power of remaining southern committee chairman is all the more conspicous.

Simultaneously, Democrats have been making gains in supposedly Republican states, notably New England and the West. For example, Maine now has two Democratic senators, and so does South Dakota.

To sum it up, only 21 senators are left who began service before 1957; of these, 13 are Democrats, of whom seven are from the South. All seven have key committee chairmanships.

There are eight southern chairmen holdovers in key committees in the New Senate. Four of them are septaugenarians and their average age is 69. They are — Agriculture (Talmadge, of Georgia, 59); Appropriations (McClellan of Arkansas, 76); Armed Services (Stennis of Mississippi, 71); Banking (Sparkman of Alabama, 73); Finance (Long of Louisiana, 52); Foreign Affairs (Fullbright of Arkansas, 67); Judiciary (Eastland of Mississippi, 66); and Government Operations (Ervin of North Carolina, 76).

They are among the most powerful group in Congress, though — in the nature of things — there probably will be changes before the next election.

Even so, the smoothly running Southern establishment that was suavely managed by former Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia has been losing strength.

They tend to be conservative and largely agricultural or smalltown in their outlook. The new generation of Democrats already installed or waiting to take their place, are from cities or suburbs, more change-oriented, more aware of the industrial world, and from a wider regional background.

Coalitions run American politics. And they are in an extraordinary state of transition now, while in the Democratic party in Congress the new "Kennedy establishment" is replacing the "Dixiecrat establishment."

The latter was elected generally before 1960, the newcomers with President Kennedy or thereafter.

There is a regional, generational and ideological fissure. It extends into the Republicans, too, though it is less conspicous because it is dramatized in the Senate committee chairmen, and Republicans haven't controlled the Senate since the first two years of President Eisenhower's eight years in office.

The House Democratic Study Group (DSG), an activist liberal caucus within the party, has divided the 256 Democrats in the last Congress into three groups of about the same size — 85 each: liberal, swing, and conservative.

The election added six or seven members to the first two groups, according to one compilation and simultaneously subtracted about 13 from the latter. The change is due in part to Democratic losses from the South.

Incidentally the Black Caucus in the House will rise from 13 to 16 and for the first time in memory, two blacks have been elected from out of the changing South.

Patriotic Candle Begins Tour Of United States

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) —A giant candle bearing a wax impression of an American flag and constructed as "an affirmation of faith in the country" Monday began a 15-day tour of the United States.

Charles Straub of Newport Beach, who helped build the eight-foot-long candle, described the project as "a little flagwaving and patriotism."

Straub and Jeff Overstreet of Costa Mesa hope to display the candle in 12 cities before arriving at the National Historic Museum in Washington, D.C., where it will go on display Dec. 14.

The candle is four feet wide and four and one-half feet long, and required 5,270 lbs. of wax to construct. It features an "eternal flame" fed by a gas jet which does not melt the wax.

Straub and Overstreet said they will collect signatures from people viewing the candle along the way and present the signature book to the White House.

Judges will be last year's winners, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Minor, Mr. and Mrs. John A. McVey and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stertz.

Jail Time On Felony Charge

A 25-year-old man arrested hitchhiking away from the scene of a Strawberry burglary was ordered yesterday to serve six months in the Marin County Jail on a felony burglary charge.

Jailed on orders of Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner was Robert Christopher Molina of no known address. The judge also placed him on probation for three years and ordered him to submit to drug testing and treatment since his drug habit reportedly has been costing $50 to $200 a day.

Molina was arrested Sept. 20 hitchhiking south on Highway 101 after Kent Wisecarver of 5 DeSilva Island told sheriff's deputies he returned home and found two men in the process of looting his home.

Quentin Hospital Rated Best Of State's Prisons

SACRAMENTO (AP) — San Quentin's prison health care facilities have received the best rating of seven inspected by a special legislative committee.

Prison hospital facilities, in general, were described as "largely deplorable and in some cases shocking" in a report issued Monday by the Assembly Select Committee on Prison Reform and Rehabilitation.

But those at San Quentin were an exception in the report released by Assemblyman Walter Karabian, D-Monterey Park, the committee chairman.

"The only significant problem of the hospital at San Quentin is the hospital structure itself," said the report.

Karabian recommended the legislature appropriate funds to replace the medical facilities there as a "stopgap" measure. He noted that the Reagan administration has slated San Quentin, the state's oldest prison, for closing in the next several years.

While sanitation was a problem cited at other prison health facilities, the report said of San Quentin: "The hospital was quite clean in appearance and gave the impression that it was normally kept in good condition."

The report also said, "Unquestionably, the hospital staff was the most dedicated of all those institutions visited." All the inmates interviewed praised the staff and the health care they provided.

The report also said the medical staff had instituted "a unique, and apparently satisfactory, procedure that insures that sick or injured inmates receive prompt medical attention." Medication prepared in advance is dispensed to certain San Quentin inmates at several cell block locations so those inmates do not have to line up at the central medical facility.

"There are problems, however, in the adjustment center and in the maximum security cell blocks regarding sick call," the report said. This is because those inmates receive medication from guards who are untrained in the medical field but must decide in certain cases whether an inmate should receive medicine, the report said.

The report commended San Quentin officials for their program of training inmates as male nurses.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Impact Bill To Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate has reversed itself and sent to the Assembly a bill opposed by conservationists which would ease the impact of a state Supreme Court ruling requiring environmental reports on many private construction projects.

The Senate action came in the wake of complaints by developers that the decision endangered millions of dollars worth of projects and caused confusion among local governments.

With no debate, the Senate Monday passed the measure by Sen. Lawrence Walsh, D-Huntington Park, on a 27-9 vote, the bare minimum necessary.

The Senate rejected the bill Sunday night on a 22-13 vote but Walsh asked to have the vote reconsidered.

His bill would establish a six-month moratorium on the court decision. It declared state law required environmental impact reports on private projects which have a "significant" effect on the environment.

Previously the law had been considered to apply only to public projects.

Following the Senate action, Walsh said he would drop the bill in the Assembly if conservationists and the construction industry agreed on amendments to a related bill by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond.

Knox planned to modify his bill in a move to gain some support from environmentalists. He said the main thrust of the changes would limit a 120-day moratorium on the decision to private projects rather than both public and private.

A rival bill by Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, supported by conservationists. The Senate Monday turned back an attempt by its opponents to block consideration of the measure by the Senate Local Government Committee.

PAY BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill giving legislators a $460,800 annual pay increase has easily cleared its first Senate hurdle with the help of 33 lawmakers.

The Senate voted 33-0 Monday to assure speedy consideration of the bill by Sen. Alan Short, D-Stockton, as legislators rushed to meet a Friday adjournment deadline.

The vote suspended a constitutional provision requiring a 30-day waiting period before newly introduced bills can be considered by a committee.

Without the action, the measure—introduced last week — could not be acted on before adjournment Friday.

Short's bill, co-authored by 28 other senators, would boost the salaries of the 120 assemblymen and senators from $19,200 to $23,040 per year beginning Dec. 2, 1974. Legislators also receive a tax-free $30 daily expense allowance and are provided late model automobiles with gasoline company credit cards.

In making the request to suspend the constitution to consider the pay hike bill, Short said, "I hope you all get it. I won't because I won't be here."

Short later explained to newsmen that he will not seek reelection when his term expires in 1974. He also defended the measure.

HOT MEALS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's school districts would be required to provide at least one hot meal each day to students under a bill now before the Senate.

The Finance Committee Monday approved the measure by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, which was estimated would cost districts an additional $8.5 million a year.

The committee had rejected the measure previously but agreed to reconsider it.

Aides to Moscone said that currently about 3.4 million children attend schools where a breakfast or lunch is served and that about 1.1 million participate in the programs.

They said under Moscone's bill another 428,000 students would eat a meal at schools which do not now offer them. The District would pay 11 cents per meal with the federal government paying about 50 cents under the bill.

VETS AID

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Vietnam veterans would be the beneficiaries of a $5 million program designed to train and help them find jobs under a bill before Gov. Ronald Reagan today.

The measure by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco, was voted final legislative approval Monday on a 31-4 vote.

Under the bill, the state would reimburse employers of veterans for 50 per cent of the cost of wages and training expenses for a period of up to 18 months.

Demo Treasurer Quits His Post

NEW YORK (UPI) — Howard Weingrow said Monday he is resigning as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee because the party is undergoing "a tug of war between personalities with personal ambitions."

Weingrow, a New York businessman who has served as treasurer since July, said his resignation would become effective Dec. 6—two days before the Democratic Executive Committee begins meetings.

The meeting is expected to decide whether Mrs. Jean Westwood, Sen. George McGovern's choice for the position, will stay on as party chairman.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you, in his own office. Take Anacin®.

A Standby Impact Plan Is Sought

The Marin County Planning Commission recommended yesterday the county prepare a standby emergency ordinance in case the state Legislature approves a moratorium on environmental impact reports.

The commission's 5-1 vote, with Commissioner George P. Leonard against and Chairman Jack G. Nixon absent, came on the recommendation of the planning department which called the emergency ordinance a safety measure.

(The state Senate on Sunday rejected a proposal which would have imposed a moratorium on the law until June 1 to give the Legislature time to clarify the Environmental Quality Act of 1970.)

Planning Director Werner von Gundell told the commission that if the requirement for environmental impact reports were lifted it would unleash a flood of projects now backlogged in his department awaiting such reports.

The emergency ordinance, he said, would require environmental reports (at the county level) just as state law does since the California Supreme Court's controversial "Friends of Mammoth" decision.

Von Gundell said he didn't know whether a state imposed moratorium would supersede the county emergency ordinance. "We'll let the county counsel decide that one," he said.

On a motion by Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo, the commission forwarded its recommendation to county supervisors.

Development In Ignacio Is Approved

The Marin County Planning Commission voted 4-3 yesterday to approve development plans for an 89-unit apartment and townhouse development near the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio.

Approval came when developer Edward Burge agreed to rent nine one-bedroom apartments to moderate-income couples and four larger units to middle-income families.

(Moderate-income rent would be about $160 per month and middle-income rent about $230 per month.)

Those voting against the project included John F. West, William Long and Rebecca Watkin, all of whom opposed it as too dense for the seven-acre site and too destructive to trees on the hillside.

They urged following the planning department's recommendation of only 60 units be followed, thus saving about 45 large oak and bay trees on the upper portion of the site located across Entrada Drive from the Roger-Wilco Market.

San Rafael Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing Burge, noted that only 44 trees would be removed while about 700 would remain.

Commissioners Margaret B. Azevedo and George P. Leonard headed the move for approval saying the development would provide much needed moderate-income housing. Chairman Jack G. Nixon and Commissioner Kenneth Stevens agreed.

The commission also recommended the board of supervisors rezone the Garlick property in Bowman Canyon near Novato to the controversial A-60 designation allowing one home per 60 acres.

Halliburton Board Post For Connally

DALLAS (UPI) — Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who resigned as a director of the Halliburton Co. in January, 1971, when he became President Nixon's secretary of the Treasury, was re-elected to the board Monday.

Connally, a partner in a Houston law firm which has served as Halliburton's general counsel for more than 30 years, had served on the board from February, 1969, until his resignation.

LOVE AFFAIR IS OVER FOR THESE TWO

CINCINNATI (UPI) —When James Moore, 25, saw his estranged girlfriend walking on a sidewalk here yesterday he drove his car over the curb and knocked her into a fence.

Priscilla Smith, 26, responded by pulling a revolver from her purse and firing two shots through the car's windshield.

One shot hit Moore in the chest. He was listed in serious condition at General Hospital. Miss Smith was treated for back and leg injuries and was held by police for questioning.

Legislation List Draws Mixed Planner Reaction

A list of state legislation proposed by the Marin County Planning Department was received with mixed reaction yesterday by the county planning commission.

The list outlines ideas for 16 new laws — at least half of which are needed to fulfill the promises of the proposed countywide general plan.

During the lengthy discussion on the proposals, the commission refused to endorse four of the measures and said six of the remaining 12 should be given top priority.

Commissioner George P. Leonard, who urged the commission to take no action, voted against the list, saying the proposals were vague and would be too costly if enacted into law.

Those proposed measures the commission refused to endorse included: A bill enabling local government to place a profit tax on the resale of homes, a bill enabling cities and counties to form joint planning commissions, a bill setting up a new system of zoning based on "development rights" which could be transferred from one landowner to another, and a bill establishing "compensable zoning" which would guarantee a property owner an equitable return on his land if held in private open space.

The commission said priority should be given to proposed bills establishing a state housing program through low-interest loans, a bill enabling local government to set up procedures for holding down the sale price of low, moderate and middle-income homes, a bill placing a proposition on the next state ballot doing away with a requirement for local voter approval for construction of low-income public housing.

Also, a bill enabling local governments to form a countywide review agency to consider planning matters of countywide importance, a bill enabling local jurisdictions to control the timing of urban growth and expansion, and a bill amending existing law which requires the board of supervisors to refer matters back to the planning commission if in disagreement with the commission's decision.

Other proposed measures which won endorsement included: A bill financing state subsidies to federal low-income housing programs, a bill permitting local government to reimburse developers for the cost of undergrounding electric utilities and off-site improvements, a bill providing that all land adjacent to a city be annexed prior to development approval.

Also, a bill requiring title companies to list local zoning and other restrictions on property prior to its purchase, a bill reducing the tax delinquency period from five years to two years, and a bill copying federal policy in limiting the use of public park lands for highway construction.

The proposed measures — including those not endorsed by the commission — will eventually be reviewed by county supervisors, along with those from other county departments.

Those that pass the county counsel's scrutiny for legality and the supervisors' inspection for necessity will be passed on to local legislators in Sacramento for introduction.

Marin Planners Give Nod To Highway Jobs

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The state Division of Highways won endorsement yesterday from the Marin County Planning Commission for two minor construction projects on Shoreline Highway but was warned to stay away from the Bolinas Lagoon area until two transportation studies are made.

Commissioner John F. West, the lone dissenter, vigorously opposed any construction work on the highway, saying it would only lead to more.

"I think any work should be limited to normal maintenance," he told his fellow commissioners. "Otherwise, we will end up with a big, fast road which will generate more traffic, which in turn will generate demands for a bigger, faster road."

West's fears were supported by several members of the audience, including Francis Stewart of Bolinas who called the two minor projects "a foot-in-the-door" technique by the division of highways.

Burch Bachtold, the division's deputy assistant in charge of highway design, argued that the two projects would eliminate sharp curves and improve safety.

One would improve a series of switchbacks just north of the Panoramic Highway intersection with Shoreline Highway and a sharp curve just south of Stinson Beach near an old quarry. The cost would be about $300,000.

The second project, estimated at $75,000, would widen the highway through the village of Stinson Beach — long a traffic bottleneck.

"I don't believe any of the projects will have a material effect on the speed or volume of traffic on this road," Bachtold said.

He said the division of highways would like to realign and raise portions of the highway bordering Bolinas Lagoon to improve safety and stop flooding, but such a project is at least two years away.

Bachtold added that "because of the Golden Gate National Recreation area and general feeling (in West Marin) about this road we have no other improvement plans."

Orville H. Schell, a member of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District board, warned that the state proposal appears deceptively innocuous but could be the start of piecemeal improvement and widening of the entire road.

He urged environmental impact reports on the projects and said other solutions are available if the state wants to improve safety. He suggested more signs, rest stops and guard rails.

Commissioner George P. Leonard countered that the road was not properly engineered when built and signs and rails could not correct that.

Leonard drew support from Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo, who said she believed the projects were to improve safety and were not part of a larger plan.

She warned, however, that no work should begin near Bolinas Lagoon until the county's balanced transportation study and the federal government's recreational travel study are finished.

Those studies may show, she said, alternative solutions to widening of the road in that area.

She also won commission support later in the meeting for environmental impact reports on all improvement projects — no matter how minor — contemplated for the highway.

'Mountain Dew' Gains Legality

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) —For years West Virginians have enjoyed the questionable delights of drinking illicitly made moonshine.

Now they can buy it legally in state liquor stores.

J. Richard Barber, alcohol beverage control commissioner, said moonshine, known as "mountain dew," can be purchased in fruit jars, a popular container when bottled back in the hills.

"It is guaranteed to be less than 30 days old," Barber said. "A lot of people like to drink moonshine once in a while.

Christmas Club Payments Rise

Bank of America's San Rafael office will distribute $286,122 in Christmas Club checks to local residents.

Richard E. Corrick, vice president and manager of the San Rafael office, said local savers will get their checks in plenty of time for the holiday shopping season.

This year, Bank of America Christmas Club savers put away $100.6 million statewide, $6 million more than they did in 1971. The accounts of the 435,000 savers averaged $231 as compared with last year's $222.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Broker Account Is Easy To Open

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have retired and now hold my own shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey (NYSE), my former employer. I am completely ignorant of the investment world. If I need cash to buy a car or take an extended trip, do I sell through a broker? How do I find one? What fee do they charge? Is this fee standard? — G.S.

A. Being a resident of a large metropolitan area you will have no difficulties locating a suitable broker. In fact, in your city there are at least a dozen retail brokerage firms which are New York Stock Exchange members. You might ask a few friends or check with your bank for a suggestion. Your shares should be sold through whichever broker you select to handle your account. Incidentally, opening an account is no more complicated than opening a charge account at a department store.

Commission fees on the New York and American exchanges are uniform. However, on transactions over $300,000, the fee is negotiated. If you decided to sell 100 shares, at current price, the commission cost would be $65, approximately 0.75 per cent of the value of the transaction. In order to sell 50 shares, you would pay $58.50 or 1.4 per cent plus the odd lot differential of one-quarter point.

Q. As an owner of Larwin Realty and Mortage shares, I would be interested in your evaluation of this ASE-listed company. — A.H.

A. Organized in Dec., 1971, this real-estate trust has had little time to establish any meaningful track record. Affiliation with Larwin Mortgage Investors and CNA Financial is certainly a plus factor. In the first 249 days of operation, the company earned 79c a share. Dividends of 78c a share have been paid. Portfolio emphasis is on long-term mortgage loans with lease-back options. Mortgages are held on industrial properties, office building, shopping centers and multi-residence buildings. Shares are of interest primarily for income investors.

Gas Cost Up

Stocks Up As Market Rebounds

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market forged ahead today as prices rebounded from the slump in the previous session. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was moderate.

Advances topped declines, 729 to 538, among the 1,681 issues on the tape. The two-hour turnover came to more than 8,550,000 shares, compared to 8,600,000 shares traded in the same period on Monday.

There was little news to influence trading. On Monday, the market slumped on the news the Paris peace talks had been suspended, but a late session rally cut losses. Brokers said investors were satisfied Monday's decline leveled off and the market recovered.

The stock market had risen sharply and the Dow had climbed 103 points since mid-October before Monday's setback. An investor shift from glamor stocks to blue chips has pushed many of the leading averages to record highs.

Teacher Lack Stifled Pianists

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most piano education experts believe group instruction in the 1930s and 1940s never really took hold because of the lack of qualified teachers.

Now, according to the National Piano Foundation, more than 300,000 youngsters are involved in group instruction. In Atlanta, Kansas City and Dallas, group instruction has been linked with big increases in piano sales. Last year, sales in the three cities went up 92, 89 and 47 per cent —respectively.

High-Rise Home Effect Studied

BETTHEMO, Pa. (UPI)— Child-rearing in a high-rise residence is something which Dr. Roy H. Herrenkohl, associate professor of social relations at Lehigh University, is studying.

The concept of environmental systems research for tall buildings began only as recently as the 1960s. Thus the needs, criteria and constraints associated with a problem such as child-rearing in a tall building have yet to be thoroughly investigated.

Burglary Is Interrupted; Pair Nabbed

Sausalito police interrupted a burglary at a Currey Avenue home last night and arrested two men after a brief chase into the hilly area around the residence.

A third burglar reportedly fled into the bushes and escaped in the darkness.

Booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary were Richard Laverne Tooke, 41, and Lamonte Miller, 19, both of Daly City.

Officer Peter Swall went to the Robert Feibusch home at 145 Currey at about 7 p.m. after neighbors reported a strange car parked there.

Swall reported he found three men in front of the house, which was in total darkness. The officer called for assistance, then chased the men into the bushes on a nearby hillside.

Tooke was arrested minutes later, discovered in the brush near the residence.

Police from neighboring communities and California Highway patrolmen responded to Swall's "Code 30" call for help and a highway patrolman apprehended Miller about 7:50 p.m. on Monte Mar Avenue.

A check of the Feibusch residence showed that a rear bathroom window had been broken with a log and the front door was standing open.

Officers said nothing in the home appeared to have been disturbed.

Both Tooke and Miller were being held in lieu of $5,000 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Nonunion Mill Valley Workers Keep Jobs

Mill Valley City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has informed the city's municipal employees union that he will not fire two employees who have refused to pay fees required by the union's agency shop because he has been advised that such a shop is invalid.

In a letter to union local President Dwight McCoy, Cunningham said the city, on the advice of city Atty. Leland H. Jordan, would not fire Deputy City Clerk Lucretia Little or stenographer-clerk Blanche Hurley, but would cooperate in any legal effort to determine the validity of the agency shop.

McCoy told the Independent-Journal today that he had not yet conferred with the international representatives of his union and, thus, had no comment on Cunningham's letter.

The agency shop was established in August as a vital component in an understanding between the city council and the union. At the time, members of the council expressed displeasure with the agency shop and questioned its validity. The shop requeirs all nonsafety employees to join the union or pay an equivalent union service charge of $4 per month.

Cunningham said Jordan's advice left him "powerless to terminate those employees who are not members of the union and who refuse to authorize payment of the service charge to the union."

Both Mrs. Little and Mrs. Hurley have placed money in what Cunningham called a "seg regated trust account," and have asked that it be held until the outcome of a similar dispute over an agency shop in Hayward is resolved.

In that dispute, the city and the union have agreed to exhaust all administrative procedures, including an arbitration panel, before taking the matter to court.

Cunningham said the city, in an effort to cooperate with the union, would either respond to a lawsuit filed by the union or file for declaratory relief in court to determine the legality of the agency shop.

He also said the city is prepared to wait for new legislation that might clarify the matter or the resolution of the dispute in Hayward.

McCoy said he will probably have the union's answer in a few days.

Tougher Drug Laws Coming In Singapore

SINGAPORE (UPI) —Singapore today announced pending drug laws that provide penalties ranging from the flogging of convicted drug traffickers to jail sentences of up to 10 years on a first offense for those convicted of smoking marijuana.

When the laws now before Parliament go into effect, foreigners suspected of using drugs will be stopped when entering Singapore and will have to submit to a urine test. If they refuse the test or if the test is positive, entry will be prohibited.

Anyone providing marijuana to persons under 18 years old can be imprisoned for 30 years, fined the equivalent of $18,000 and flogged 15 times with the "rotan," a reed-like whip that cuts the flesh.

Prisoner Sues For Long Hair

DETROIT (UPI) —A Michigan prisoner has filed a suit to allow male inmates to wear long hair, beards and mustaches.

The suit claims that requiring short haircuts and shaves in the prison is discriminatory and against historical tradition.

"Long hair, beards, mustaches and goatees are as ancient as Methuselah," the suit said.

The suit filed Nov. 15 by George Nawrocki, an inmate of Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson, and made public Monday, named the state department of corrections as plaintiff and asked for a reversal in grooming regulations immediately.

Two Die In Crash Of Plane Filled With Pot

SEARCHLIGHT, Nev. (AP) — Two men were killed in the crash of a marijuana laden twin-engine plane at the southern tip of Nevada early today, the Clark County sheriff's office said.

The low-flying aircraft hit an electrical power transmission tower shortly before dawn, and burned, a spokesman said.

One of the unidentified victims was ejected on impact, and the other burned to death, officials said.

The plane, a converted C45, apparently was completely filled with marijuana, deputies said. Kilos of the illegal weed were scattered over a wide area around the crash site.

CBS Wins Round On Picket Line

NEW YORK (UPI) —A state appellate court justice today refused to reverse an injunction against union performers and newsmen at CBS-TV, blocking some of them from honoring picket lines of striking technicians.

Appellate Supreme Court Justice Theodore Kupferman denied a motion by the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) to stay the injunction. However, Kupferman ordered AFTRA and CBS to submit briefs on the matter and set a tentative hearing for next Wednesday.

The injunction was obtained by CBS last Tuesday an hour before the walkout deadline which would have prevented 1,200 AFTRA members, including Walter Cronkite, from respecting the picket lines of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) which struck the network Nov. 3.

AFTRA rescinded its walkout instructions but immediately filed a suit in the appellate division of Manhattan Supreme Court to have the injunction lifted.

IBEW picket lines have stopped production on a number of CBS series, including "All in the Family." The network has continued broadcasting with supervisory personnel filling in. The airing of CBS TV series has not been immediately affected because a number of episodes have been taped in advance, CBS spokesmen said.

IBEW represents cameramen, engineers, lighting specialists and other technicians.

Vacuum Cleaners Attack Oil Slick

INGLESIDE, Tex. (UPI) — Cleanup crews went to work today with huge vacuum cleaners and dump trucks to clear a two-mile strip of Corpus Christi Bay beach littered with an oil slick from a damaged oil barge.

The barge ran aground last Thursday.

Bedroom Tax Tied To Football Stadium

The Rohnert Park City Council last night agreed to consider increasing the bedroom tax to finance construction of a football stadium.

Developers have pledged $170,000 toward the stadium project on a fee-per-acre basis, but councilmen decided an increase in the bedroom tax would be more proper.

City Clerk Kathryn Logue said the council considered both a $25 and a $50 increase, but left the amount open until the public hearing next Monday at 7 p.m.

Councilman Louis G. Beary, who heads the stadium fund raising committee, asked for swift council action, saying money is being lost with every building permit issued.

The stadium committee is trying to arrange an agreement with the state to use and upgrade the Sonoma State College stadium since football was abolished there last year.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

GENERAL PLAN — Briefly discussed plans to update the general plan and directed the planning commission to schedule a public hearing on the proposal.

MUSIC — Heard Councilman Warren K. Hopkins say although the city sponsors many athletic programs, music and culture have been lacking. He said he would ask the cultural arts commission to study possible programs.

VACANCIES — Heard that two vacancies still exist on the cultural arts commission and applications are being sought.

MEETING — Adjourned to the next regular meeting Monday at 7 p.m. at city hall.

Marcos Claims Signs Received On Martial Law

MANILA (UPI) —President Ferdinand E. Marcos said today he decided to place the Philippines under martial law after consulting God and receiving "several signs" from Him to act.

Marcos told the Philippine Historical Association that he signed a martial law proclaimation one week before it was announced, then decided to reconsider the move.

"I wanted a period in which I would commune with myself and commune with God," he said, "and ask Him whether it was correct for me to proclaim martial law. I asked for a sign and He gave me several signs.

"I told myself if this occurs, I will immediately order martial law...and it did occur. It seems as if I was being led and guided by some strange mind above me."

Grant For Court Overseer Asked

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday agreed to seek a grant to provide a municipal court administrator.

The county will apply for funds from the State Council on Criminal Justice to hire a full-time court administrator, who would coordinate activities of the three municipal courts in Santa Rosa and the Southern Municipal Court in Petaluma.

He would also be responsible for improving efficiency in record keeping and study how electronic data processing can be used to eliminate paperwork.

Sewer Line Cost Sharing Is Supported

Directors of the Almonte Sanitary District agreed in principle last night to share the cost of installing a sewer pipeline to service the retirement center under construction opposite Tamalpais High School.

Board secretary John J. Crncich said that although the City of Mill Valley will treat waste from the facility, Almonte sewage will flow into the pipeline.

Crncich said directors, pending county counsel approval, agreed to absorb $14,200 of the $142,000 cost of the line, payable to the city over four years.

The board scheduled its next regular meeting for Dec. 11 in Marin Municipal Water District offices in Corte Madera, prior to an information session on plans to consolidate sewage treatment in Southern Marin.

Crncich said the board will not meet the fourth Monday next month, as regularly scheduled.

While Almonte directors are in general agreement with consolidation, Crncich said, they are expected to raise questions dealing with finances and representation on a consolidated agency at the Dec. 11 session.

Demo Group To Select Nominees

Nominations for the North Central Coast Regional Commission will be considered by the Marin County Democratic Central Committee at a special meeting at 8 p.m. today at 464 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

The commission was one of six regional commissions created by passage three weeks ago of Proposition 20, the coastal initiative. The six commissions and a statewide commission will control land use along the coastline while they draft a master plan for its future. The plan is due in 1975.

The North Central Coast Regional Commission, which includes Sonoma, Marin and San Francisco counties, will have 14 members. They will be one supervisor and one city councilman from Marin and Sonoma, two supervisors from San Francisco, one delegate to the Association of Bay Area Governments and seven representatives of the public.

The public members will be appointed by the end of next month by the goveror, Senate Rules Committee and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood.

Gordon Pusser, co-chairman of the Democratic committee, urged persons interested in being nominated to attend the meeting.

Viets Ask Delay In Visit From Refugee Team

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Staff members of a Senate refugee subcommittee headed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., confirm that North Vietnam has asked that the group delay sending a team to Hanoi.

The refugee subcommittee had hoped to send nine persons to Indochina to gather information on return of prisoners and care of refugees in the event of a cease-fire. The plan called for sending six of the subcommittee representatives to North Vietnam.

But Monday, subcommittee staff aides said officials in the North Vietnamese embassy in Paris had asked that the trip not be made. The embassy gave no reason for the request.

Warrant Out In Drug Case

A bench warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of a former Marin man who failed to make a court appearance on a felony charge of forging drug prescriptions.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court ordered Clyde Wilson Collings Jr., 48, of Gig Harbor, Wash., arrested and held without bail.

Collings is said to have passed fraudulent prescriptions March 17, April 15 and July 21 at the Corner Drug Store in Sausalito. Police said he obtained dexadrine and doriden.

Radio Is Stolen

A radio worth $69 was stolen from the California State Automobile Association's district office at 565 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Greenbrae, between Thursday and Saturday.

Reporting the theft, Larkspur police said investigation was hampered by the fact that over 70 people possess keys to the office.

HER WORK as resource coordinator for the Marin Suicide Prevention Center has given Mrs. Herbert M. Weber of Mill Valley "a feeling for the community and the way it works." The volunteer is also active in the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin County.

SUICIDE PREVENTION CENTER

Saving Those Who Want To Die

By BETTY FROST

At the Suicide Prevention Center, which opened officially in Marin in July 1971, 350 telephone calls come in every month. The staff of 65 volunteers maintain a 24-hour phone answering service, working in four-hour shifts.

"We found that a lot of our work was referral," said Mrs. Herbert M. Weber of Mill Valley, the volunteer worker who is resource coordinator for the center. She heads a committee which has put together a file detailing the resources of Marin County, emphasizing those agencies and individuals in the community who can offer specific help.

Mrs. Weber explained that there are 34 categories, organized in alphabetical order "from Aged to Women," and the file is arranged for easy reference.

"There is always a new agency coming into the county, and new activities going on," the Mill Valley woman said. She spends several hours a week just keeping the file up-to-date.

THOSE WHO threaten to take their own lives have a multidimensional problem, the volunteer explained. Their hopelessness comes from a transition in their lives, such as divorce, unemployment, retirement, or loss of a loved one, and can be compounded by such factors as alcoholism, dependence on narcotics, or homosexuality.

The volunteers have a backup team, headed by Dr. Richard Reuben, director of the center, and the resources of the whole community are available, Mrs. Weber indicated. The volunteers are well prepared before they begin accepting calls from would-be suicides by 11 training sessions of three hours each.

The need for the service is harshly pointed up by the statistics. In 1972 there were 74 suicides in Marin, three times the national average for an area of comparable population.

In researching community resources, did Mrs. Weber find anything lacking?

"There is only one crash pad in Marin," she said. "Temporary free housing is a problem."

MRS. WEBER brings to her work a solid background. She is a native of Toronto, Canada, and received the bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Toronto. She has had experience as an obstetrical nurse, but finds that she now prefers counseling. When she lived in New York City, she worked for the Margaret Sanger Research Center, an organization which pioneered in the family planning field.

For the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin, she conducts a teen rap session once a week. Each week five to 12 teen-agers come, feeling free to talk about the things that concern them in what Mrs. Weber calls "an accepting atmosphere" where they can receive contraceptive information and straight answers from a qualified staff.

"I have a lot of respect for these kids who take responsibility for their own behavior," Mrs. Weber said.

She has been a volunteer coordinator and on the board of the county's Planned Parenthood Auxiliary, and is on call during the summer months to assist at the association as a professional nurse.

HER HUSBAND is a physician, with a practice in San Francisco as an internist specializing in rheumatic disease. They were married in 1960 when both were graduated from the University of Toronto. They lived in San Francisco one year, spent two years in New York, one in Houston, and two in Toronto, and are happy to be settled in the Bay Area.

The Webers have two sons, Fred, 8, and Michael, 7, who attend the Edna Maguire School in Mill Valley. Mrs. Weber is a Cub Scout den mother, and works for the Parent-Teacher Association, with special interest in the enrichment program, which encourages parents who have special skills, talents and education to share them with the children. Mrs. Weber has taught an anatomy class.

Mrs. Weber, who rarely uses her given name of Gail, and prefers her nickname "Diddy," also finds time to study art, and is learning acrylic techniques with a Marin instructor.

OF HER volunteer work she says, "So many people are beautiful and work hard to help others. I have met people who have enriched my life."

After four years in Marin County, Mrs. Weber, who has expressed extraordinary commitment to her adopted home, said "Marin is my cup of tea."

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Reception Honors Birthday Of Pet

In celebration of the 15th birthday of their dog, Manners, the Warren Jacobs family had a reception Sunday at their home in Mill Valley. Fifty friends and relatives of the Jacobses gathered in honor of the occasion.

In his early years Manners was notorious in the neighborhood for chasing cats and cars and for his thievery of newspapers, according to Mrs. Jacobs. Now that age has mellowed him, he takes to spending quiet days and evenings at home relaxing in long, uninterrupted naps, she said.

Manners, who was adopted through the Marin County Humane Society in 1957, received many edible gifts from the guests.

Creative Toys Best For Child

The best toys are those that give the widest scope to a child's creativity, according to Dr. Benjamin Spock.

"Dolls, dolls' furniture and equipment and dolls' clothes are stimulating to both girls and boys. So are hand puppets," he said.

"Adult clothes cast off by parents or clothes bought at a thrift shop are exhilarating to children. Finger paints, water color paints and plasticine clay for modeling stimulate creativity of another kind."

Golden Wedding Observance Honors James A. Marshalls

Family and friends honored the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Marshall of Tomales at an October luncheon party in the Marshall House in Santa Rosa.

Marshall, who served as Marin County Supervisor for six years, is the grand-nephew of pioneer James Marshall who built Marshall House. A native of Tomales, Marshall, until his retirement, was a rancher on the ranch founded by his seven grand-uncles in 1852.

Mrs. Marshall, the former Grace Darlington, is the daughter of pioneer settlers in Placerville. The couple was married Oct. 18, 1922 at her parents' home in Placerville and have lived all their married life in the Tomales area.

Mrs. Marshall was a teacher in Marin for more than 20 years. She attended San Francisco Normal School (now California State University, San Francisco) and began her career at the Clark School in rural northwest Marin. She then taught in Mill Valley for two years. She quit teaching after her marriage to Marshall but resumed again after World War II and taught in the Tomales District until her retirement in 1963.

Marshall also served as president of the Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce in 1962 and 1963 and was president of the Marin County Farm Bureau, of which he was a member for over 40 years, from 1965 to 1967.

The Marshalls have one daughter, Mrs. Robert Brown of Santa Rosa, and two grandchildren, Jimmie and Jeffry Brown.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

What Constitutes 'Casual' Depends On Where You Are

RAP:

This new guy in town just started working for my Dad. I'm a high school senior. He's getting his degree at evening college. I like him but don't understand his ways.

My folks think he's "correct" and will be good for me, but — well, here's an example:

I invited him to a typical California-type party — you know, the gang getting together at someone's house, everybody bringing food and stuff. I told him it would be "casual"... and he showed up in a sport coat, necktie and bells. So I had to quick run and change into a dress and shoes to save him embarrassment. And we really looked strange among all those jeans. We didn't stay long, though I usually have a great time at these parties.

My mother says he wore "casual" clothes and if more boys would come to the door looking like that, she and Dad would stop worrying so much. I say he was overdressed. What do you say, Sue and Helen? — RELAXED AND COMFORTABLE

R AND C:

You and I know a casual California-type party means jeans, cut-offs, tank tops, maybe bare feet, and you'll feel silly in anything "more formal." Your mother knows it too, but parents always keep hoping... They aren't as high on comfort as we are.

But don't put this guy down for not knowing. Maybe he's from a less casual part of the country — and if you moved there, your jeans and grubbies would rate as many stares as his sport coat got from your friends.

Why don't you start educating him? — SUE

DEAR R. AND C.:

There's an age difference here that might make this new man uncomfortable at high school parties, no matter what he wears. Why not date him on his level but don't ask him to be part of your crowd? — HELEN

Note to RC's mother: When in California, do as the Californians do. Don't fight it... You'll never beat the barefoot-teen-in-jeans syndrome. — H.

HEY, RAP:

After getting a lot of flak from the guys back home (who believe every college man has a girl roommate, especially if he made out all right in high school) I tried an experiment.

I asked five girls, one at a time of course, if they'd sahre my apartment. Got five turndowns.

They're all good friends of mine. If girls are as liberated as you hear, how come? — ZACH

DEAR ZACH:

Maybe the "rent" was too high. — HELEN ZACH:

... Or they wanted to stay your friends. — SUE

Note from both of us: Or (likely) they compared offers.

RAP:

I broke up with a girl and now she's going with another guy. She said she'd come back to me when I asked, but now she won't. I'm in this gang, you might say the leader. I was going to have some of the guys shake this guy up a little so he'd stay away. Would that be a good way to get her back? — HEAD LEADER

HEAD:

Program Criticized As Sexist

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The federal War on Poverty organization, one of whose purposes is to eliminate job discrimination, is sexist, according to the National Organization for women.

In San Francisco, NOW complained Monday, qualified women have been passed up in favor of white males for executive jobs with the Economic Opportunities Council.

The group cited the case of Ms Genie Bowie, former director of the Central City Anti-Poverty Program. It said she should have been named Manager of Housing Services when the job opened but the promotion "was bypassed for a white male with no EOC experience."

Ms. Linda Poole "was overlooked" for a promotion within the poverty agency, the organization said.

NOW said it was filing complaints with the state Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Holiday Treasury

A colorfully illustrated volume, "Parents' Magazine Christmas Holiday Book," contains a treasury of favorite reading, music, cookery and holiday activities. The editors say the book from Parents' Magazine Press aims to help families recreate in the home the reverent and joyous spirit traditionally associated with the Christmas holiday season.

SLIMMING TRICKS: Sofas can be cumbersome. But now Flexsteel of Iowa has deliberately tried to build in lots of comfort without creating a space problem. This group is covered in long-wearing nylon velvet.

New Look At French Abortion Law

By ALINE MOSBY

BIBIGNY, France (UPI) —A decision handed down by a judge in this grimy industrial suburb of Paris may reverse more than 50 years of French legal thinking about abortion.

The case has become a "cause celebre" during the past year because two of the five women concerned received unprecedentedly light sentences and the other three went free.

Since 1920, a woman who had an abortion and her accomplices have been murderers in the eyes of French law.

But Judge Pierre Graffan imposed only a suspended fine of 500 francs ($100) on Mrs. Michele Chevalier for finding an abortionist for her daughter Marie Claire, 16. The abortionist received a one-year suspended sentence. Marie-Claire and two friends who helped her mother find the abortionist were freed.

UNDER THE law, Marie-Claire could have been sentenced to serve two to six years in prison. Her mother, the two friends and the abortionist could have received five-to-10-year terms.

The trial is being used by militant feminist Simone de Beauvoir's pro-abortion organization "Choisir" (To Choose) as a test case to force changes in the abortion law.

Socialist Deputy Michel Rocard, who attended the trial, said "the decision condemns the 1920 law." He said he will submit a draft law to the National Assembly within a few days authorizing legal abortion.

But defense attorney Gisele Halimi, views Graffan's light sentences as too heavy.

"We may appeal the decision," she said. "There was no reason for the court to condemn the two women. The decision reflects the disarray of judges before the abortion law."

On the courtroom steps, dozens of demonstrators representing French Women's Liberation applauded and kissed the defendants.

"I'm not married," she said. "I do not want this child, but I cannot afford an abortion. It's a matter of class. Rich women can go to England but for girls without money there is no way out."

IN BIBIGNY, a dreary jumble of vacant lots, factories and housing projects inhabited by some 5,000 people, the abortion law has made illegitimacy a way of life.

Marie-Claire was illegitimate, one of three children her mother is rearing alone. The mother, too, was illegitimate.

Then came Marie-Claire's turn to continue the pattern. She fell in love with a schoolmate, Daniel, and, as she testified at her trial, "he asked me to his house to listen to phonograph records. He forced me to make love."

In three weeks she discovered she was pregnant. Mrs. Chevalier, who makes $300 a month selling tickets in the subway, asked two friends to find her a cheap abortionist.

She testified, "I did not want my daughter to live through the hell I have known, the snubs, the humiliations."

So, for $240 dollars, the abortionist tried five times with an instrument to abort Marie Claire. Finally she hemorrhaged and was rushed to a hospital, where her life was saved.

Daniel, the lover, denounced Marie Claire to the police. She was arrested. Actresses, Nobel-prize doctors, surgeons and Miss de Beauvoir testified for her at the trial.

LAST WEEK Marie Claire, sat in court biting her lips in anxiety during the hearing. Outside the courtroom, she said shyly, "I want to work as a children's nurse. I love children. And I want to be married and have babies."

Her mother, a vivacious woman with long dark hair, said calmly, "The decision was marvelous. I regret nothing. Any time there is another woman to defend in a case like this, I will be there."

The New Black Is Bare, Sexy

Black is back, but it's anything but basic, according to Women's Wear Daily.

Women have so many long clothes and pants in their wardrobes that they are tired of them, said designer Donald Brooks. "They are discovering that the best accessory they have is a pair of beautiful American legs. The short bare dress is very alluring, glamorous and sexy."

Maternity Stays Are Being Reduced

CHICAGO (UPI) — Good news: Maternity stays are being cut by two days at Loyola University Hospital in Chicago, reducing the costs of childbirth more than 50 per cent for middle-income couples.

Dr. James A. O'Leary, head of obstetrics and gynecology says the total average obstetric cost of $900 to $1000 is decreased to nearly $400. What the hospital's doing: discharging women who experience a normal deliver after 48 hours.

INSIDE YOUR HOME

Slimmer Sofas Still Look Plump

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY
Distributed by General Features

How do you get that big plump, comfortable look in a sofa that's designed to fit your small, skinny space? It is a problem. While most of us like the idea of luxury and want stretch-outable space for lounging, we do move our furnishings around, squeeze them through narrow doorways and clean under and behind them.

The heavy, ponderous construction of some modern pieces is forbidding. One manufacturer, Flexsteel of Dubuque, Iowa, has set out to make "fatty" into a trimmer-looking living-room guest. One example is shown today.

This sofa is just 30 inches high and 86 inches long, of which 70 inches is actual seating space. Lots of padding on the sides and a triple-tufted cushion on the back make it inviting visually and physically. All padding is foam and polyester and cushions are loose so they can be reversed for extra duty.

The upholstery fabric is a long-wearing nylon velvet, but there's none of the fussiness of kick pleats or exposed wood framing to take away the pure-comfort look.

There are two companion chairs, designed on the barrel concept, that are compatible, yet not identical. The three pieces work well together in a medium-size living space and I've seen them "worked" into rooms with totally traditional accessories and tables, as well as in a more contemporary, eclectic interior.

If you're already stuck with a bulky sofa, you can minimize its size by installing a large-scale pattern in back of it. One example would be herringbone patterned wallpaper. The pattern catches the eye and, in comparison, the sofa seems smaller.

Sprays For Tree Fireproofing

NEW YORK (UPI) — There are sprays on the market for fireproofing a Christmas tree. If you use one, don't let that lead you into a false sense of security, say accident fighters.

The old rules still apply.: keep the tree's base moist; don't smoke cigarettes or stand lighted candles near the tree; avoid overloading the tree with lights which create heat.

Also make sure your tree lights bear the Underwriters laboratories (UL) label.

Alice Ward Becomes Mrs. David Wagner

Alice Ruth Ward and David Wagner of San Rafael were married in an evening rite Wednesday at the United Methodist Church of San Rafael.

Attending the couple for the ceremony were Dorothy J. Jorda of San Rafael and Frank Werel of Corte Madera.

The couple are living in San Rafael and plan to take a wedding trip to Medford, Ore., in January, where a reception will also be held for them.

The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Ortiz of Miami, Fla., and the sister of Michelle Ferreri of Belmont. Mrs. Consuelo Serrallos of New York City, N.Y. is her grandmother.

She is a graduate of Eastern High School in Lansing, Mich., and attended Michigan State University and is a portrait painter in San Rafael.

Tanner Treking World For Hides

Soaring world-wide demand for leather apparel and a shrinking supply of skins is causing one of the largest Spanish tanners to go far afield for raw materials, reports Women's Wear Daily.

Colomer, which owns 10 tanneries in Spain, has formed Colomer International. The international company is engaging in joint ventures all over the world. These include tanners in Greece, Lebanon and Brazil. The firm is also negotiating with tanners in Mexico and Nigeria.

A New Toothbrush On The Market

A new toothbrush with a hole that runs down the entire length of the handle is for easy mouth-rinsing, according to the manufacturer. To rinse toothpaste from the mouth after brushing, just flip and sip.

Flip the brush over, place the handle under the faucet stream, and sip up the water — just like using a straw. This eliminates the community drinking cup and passing colds from one family member to the other.

Try Shiny Satin Fur Next Party

Dazzle at the next house party in shiny satin, glittery lurex or gleaming white. Such fabulous fabrics in easy, sportswear shapes make the big night news, says Seventeen magazine.

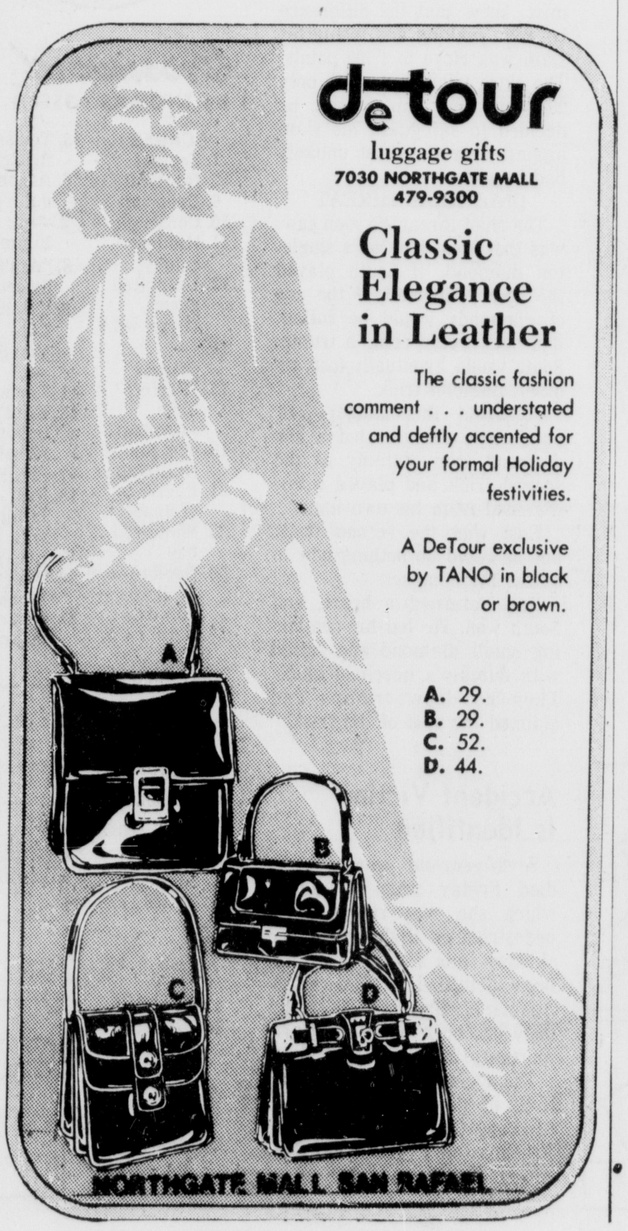
A Nature Credo

Clodagh, the successful Dublin designer, has a credo. It holds that "everything approaching nature is good and lasts and the more one gets away from nature the less good it is and the less lasting."



Women Taking New Market Role

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ms.-managed stores are increasing in a fast-growing branch of the food industry.

Nearly 26 per cent of all company-owned convenience stores now have women managers, compared with less than 20 per cent two years ago. Fifty to 100 per cent of all store managers and operators are women in nearly 20 per cent of all convenience chains. These statistics were quoted by Progressive Grocer, a trade publication, in its second annual report on this type of store.

A convenience store is defined by its trade association as a self-service establishment with 1,000 to 3,200 square feet of space, parking for five to fifteen cars and longer hours than traditional supermarkets in its area. Primarily a food store, it also carries non-foods.

THE MAGAZINE'S reports on convenience stores and one woman supermarket manager should warm the hearts of feminists, even though supermarket management still is a man's world. Robert E. O'Neill, senior editor of Progressive Grocer, said there probably are no more than 10 to 20 women store managers among the big chains, although women are increasingly being promoted to department heads.

The convenience store report said there is "a growing conviction that women, in many instances, actually do a superior job of managing the store."

"They are much better housekeepers; they are generally more conscientious, and maintain a more friendly relationship with customers," one company executive told the magazine.

Said another:

"Women are more geared to working 'by the book.' They won't take as many risks with inventory and they refuse to be pushed over by aggressive route salesmen. We also find that shrinkage through pilferage and waste is halved under women managers."

THE WOMAN supermarket head is Carole Fried Bitter, who at 26 is the youngest individual and the first of her sex to hold such a position in the Stop & Shop chain. She is in charge of an 80-member staff at a shopping center market in the Boston suburb of Framingham, Mass.

Mrs. Bitter grew up in the retail grocery business. Her father has owned stores in western Pennsylvania for more than 30 years. As a child, she stocked shelves and did other simple chores and later worked part time as a dairy manager in a family store.

Mrs. Bitter told the magazine that transition to full management responsibility was made more difficult not just by her youth and gender, but also her college education. She holds a B.A. in psychology and English literature from Western Reserve University and was the first woman to complete the Cornell University food marketing program. Colleagues who had come up through the ranks resented this, she said.

But some who seemed most sensitive during the management training program have since become her biggest boosters.

Even some customers were skeptical. One asked:

"Are you sure you're the manager of the whole store?"

MRS. BITTER had planned major remodeling so the store "would make more sense from a woman's point of view." When prohibitive costs made that impossible, she substituted a scaled down program. Among other things, she moved drink mixes to the soda section from the snack area and began carrying charcoal the year round because shoppers in her area like to barbecue on their patios all year. She said redesigning will continue.

Some changes are sure to stem from shoppers' requests, via a "mini-cunsumers' panel." Members are chosen by their peers and Mrs. Bitter said the worst complainers often make the best panel members.

She promotes customer relations by briefing the panel on management problems. She also talks with competitors about common problems such as losses from bad checks, employe theft and shoplifting, in an effort to cut down on losses that must be passed on as higher retail prices if they cannot be prevented.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Today's birthday party would be a celebration of the arts — on film, in the concert hall, and in literature.

1. HOPE LANGE, Hollywood television actress, has something in common with Jack Benny — the claim of being 39. She was born in Connecticutt and made her stage debut at 12 on Broadway, first appearing in movies with Marilyn Monroe in "Bus Stop." Now on television, she is the wife of — Danny Thomas, Fred MacMurray, or Dick Van Dyke?

2. JOSE ITURBI, American concert pianist, is 77 today. Movie audiences discovered him in the 1940s in "Two Girls and a Sailor," "Anchors Aweigh," and "Holiday in Mexico." Still active, he spends his spare time today flying his own airplane as a member of the Civil Air Patrol. Right?

3. MICHAEL RITCHIE, 34 today, is a motion picture director whose recent successes include "Downhill Racer" and "The Candidate." He helped produce television shows after graduating from Harvard, then entered the movies. Today he lives in Mill Valley, Calif. (birthplace of his mother, Eve Arden) and was born in the same town as Hope Lange. Can all that be true?

4. WILLIAM BLAKE (1757-1827) is the English poet and artist born Nov. 28 in London. He started writing poetry at 12, published his first literary work before 21, and supported himself by illustrating books. Was his work often inspired by visions of God and the angels? Yes? No?

Declarer In Slam Contract Makes Delightful Partner

Does it pay to go through life in constant fear that the roof is going to fall at any moment? You're bound to be a cheerless companion but you make a perfectly delightful partner at the bridge table, especially if you are declarer at a slam contract.

DUMMY WON

The optimistic declarer would plan to take the ace of diamonds next and ruff a diamond in the dummy. Then, perhaps, he would ruff a spade and ruff the last diamond in dummy. This plan, if it worked, would make six clubs with an overtrick.

The actual declarer, a pessimist, knew that the difference between making and losing his slam was close to 1,700 points. The extra trick was worth only 20 points. For this reason, he decided to safeguard his slam against ever the most unlikely bad breaks.

ONLY REAL THREAT

The chief threat, he soon saw, was that West had led a singleton diamond. If South played the hand "Normally," the ace of diamonds would be ruffed, and back would come a trump. South would eventually lose another diamond trick.

To avoid this danger, our pessimistic declarer led a low diamond from dummy at the second trick and played a low diamond from his own hand!

East won the second trick, but he could do nothing now to defeat the contract.

East returned a heart, and South won. He led his remaining small diamond and ruffed with dummy's queen of clubs. Then he drew trumps and claimed the rest of the tricks.

ANSWER: Pass. Avoid opening a borderline hand when you have to count points for queens or jacks unaccompanied by higher cards in the same suit. In this case the jack of hearts and the queen of clubs are doubtful values.

Trial Opens In Carrier Fire Case

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) —The giant aircraft carrier Forrestal has been hit by two major fires in the past five years.

The first one, in 1967, killed 132 men and injured 67 others. The second one, this summer, caused no injuries but resulted in damage estimated at $7.5 million and delayed the sailing of the Norfolk-based ship for two months.

The Navy said the first fire was an accident. It maintains the second one was deliberately set by Apprentice Seaman Jeffery C. Allison of Oakland, Calif.

The Forrestal fire was the most serious of several alleged sabotage cases the Navy has investigated in recent months. Senior Navy officers have blamed the incidents on anti-war activists and have said they are not related to another highly publicized Navy problem—racial unrest.

Allison's court martial began Monday with the Navy attempting to show that the 19-year-old sailor had accesss to the area where the blaze started and had been involved in the sale of drugs to shipmates.

A charge of possession of marijuana was dismissed and the capital punishment portion of the "hazarding" charge was deleted, assuring the death penalty could not be imposed in the court martial.

Four of the government's six witnesses told hearing officer Capt. William E. Deery that they either bought or were offered a chance to buy mescaline or LSD from Allison the weekend of the July 10 fire.

Civilian defense attorney Stanley Sacks maintained in his crossexamination that the witnesses, among them Robert P. Grant and Seaman Roger Voderstrasse could not properly identify the drugs in question or could not recall the exact time or place of the alleged sale.

The first government witness, Lt. Cmdr. R.J. Burns, testified that Allison had access to the area where the fire first started.

Allison was on watch at the time of the fire, which started about 2:30 a.m. July 10. Cross-examination brought out that others might have been able to get into the area.

"The government does not have sufficient evidence to establish guilt of this defendant," Sacks said during an opening statement. "We will have evidence the fire did not start intentionally.

"There will be evidence another suspect was at the scene at the same time, a black person who could not be Jeffery Allison."

Allison is white.

The prosecution said Allison could be proven guilty on the basis of an alleged confession to naval intelligence that he started the fire or on the fact that he had the night watch and that he had the key to the flag mess area where the blaze started.

MUSIC REVIEW

Packed House Cheers The Marin Symphony

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

The Marin Symphony opened its 1972-73 season to a filled Veterans Memorial Building last night. If people came to see and hear the lovely Mary Costa, they stayed to cheer Sandor Salgo and his marvelous musicians.

First on the program was Ernst Bacon's "Elegy" which was played as a memorial to Alice and Barry Boland whose work with the symphony covered many dimensions. This composition was particulary fitting since it had been originally commissioned by the Marin Symphony in memory of its first conductor, Gastone Usigli.

Although of recent date, "Elegy" was quite tonal and melodic with one odd concession to contemporary sound in a solo violin line with no vibrato. The oboe melody was beautifully executed by Jean Stevens.

Miss Costa then appeared to sing the aria, "Martern aller arten" from Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seraglio." The use of the quartet of flute, oboe, violin and cello which alternated with the full orchestra was ably handled by all the solo instrumentalists. However, the full orchestra had the tendancy to overpower Miss Costa in the lower registers.

The "Four Last Songs" of Richard Strauss were more successful in this respect since Strauss uses the voice in an entirely different manner, allowing it to soar out of the sounds of the instruments to float above the orchestra, or sometimes to be purposefully dominated by it.

Balance was perfect in the beautiful third song, "Beim Schlafengehen", with its quiet tolling of bells and the rich chords of the French horns with the melodic violin line.

"Im Abendrot," written shortly before his death in 1949 is more contemplative and introspective than the others. With the question "Is this death?" Strauss recalls his theme from the tone poem "Death and Transfiguration".

The Telemann Viola Concerto in G Major is an unusual work in that the modern viola (for which this was written), was used in his period solely for the purpose of filling in inner voices suitable to the harmony. This four-movement work in the Italian slow-fast, slow-fast style demands the full, deep sounds of the viola as well as containing melodic lines typical of the violin concerto. It is this range in depth that gives the piece its unique sound.

Lucien Mitchell was at his best in the slow movements in which he had time to display the deep tones of the instrument. The harpsichord was well-played by Tamara Robertson, but ensemble suffered due to the fact that the soloist was too far from the harpsichord for the coordination required.

Mahler is always the orchestra players' delight. Every instrument has an important role, and the Fourth Symphony, although employing fewer performers than many of his works, is still a musician's ideal.

The symphony was conceived as a child's view of heaven and is based on the poem "The Youth's Magic Horn". Childlike folktune melodies are contrasted with Romantic heavily-orchestrated eloquence.

The first movement revolves around a salon-type melody of classical tradition which is constantly reiterated, although differently treated. In the second, death is portrayed by two violins, one eerily mistuned, admirably played by Charles Meacham and Ferdinand Claudio.

It is in the third movement that Maestro Salgo unleashes the musicians and the lyrical melody begun by the cellos becomes the theme that is the basis for a series of variations. It is not all heavy going in that included in this movement are a waltz, minuets, and a czardas, but the impact is of majestic, fully orchestrated episodes alternating with solo passages from most of the instruments. Brass and woodwind soloists were particularly strong.

The last movement uses a soprano voice to sing the words of "The Youth's Magic Horn" and tells of the happiness to be found in heaven. Miss Costa effectively contributed a child-like wonder to the quality of her singing.

Absent Soldier Easy To Locate

HONG KONG (UPI) — Military police seeking Pvt. Bernard Harvieu on charges of going absent without leave (AWOL) had little trouble finding him.

The 22-year-old Englishman was sitting in a nightclub in a spotlight, playing guitar and singing as the club's entertainment star.

Man Held In Shooting Of Seaman

REDDING (UPI) —A Redding man has been arrested on suspicion of shooting an Anchorage, Alaska, seaman who was wounded five times by a hitchhiker he picked up.

Colusa County authorities said the suspect, Raymond D. Moran, 22, would be returned to Colusa for questioning.

Richard E. Albeck, 23, Anchorage, was found unconscious Sunday night on California 20 about 11 miles west of Williams. He was reported in serious condition Monday night in a Colusa hospital with three bullet wounds in the head, one in the shoulder and one in a finger.

Albeck told authorities he picked up the hitchhiker on Interstate 5 at Redding and the man pulled a .22-caliber pistol and shot him after ordering him into the back seat.

The victim said he later regained consciousness when his vehicle was on California 20. He then struck the gunman on the head with the leg from a piece of furniture. Albeck said the car stopped and he ran. Sheriff's deputies said Albeck's car was recovered a short distance from where Albeck was found.

Film Version Of '1776' Seen As Best Musical In Years

By LOUISE SWEENEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — "One Useless man is called a delegate, two are called a law firm, and three or more become a congress," rasps John Adams at the beginning of "1776."

The filmed musical, taken from the Tony Award-winning Broadway show, is based on that unlikely subject, the Second Continental Congress which gave this country its Declaration of Independence in 1776.

But break out the fifes and drums, unwrap the bunting, and line up. For this is an all-star, all-American hit, perhaps the best musical in years and certainly the best so far this year. It manages to be brilliant, witty, moving, inspiring, and even, yes, even educational all in one star-spangled package.

The picture, faithful to the play, humanizes the Mt. Rushmore images of the men who wrangled, snapped, kidded, and persevered through a muggy Philadelphia summer to forge that remarkable document announcing to the world on July 4 that the United States was declaring its independence from England. After "1776" we can never again see them as parchment cliches.

Take John Adams, for instance, whom the Congress merrily serenades as the "obnoxious and disliked" delegate from Massachusetts. William Daniels repeats his superb Broadway performance as the impassioned gadfly of the Congress, urging them on to proclaim independence with a wit and expression as tart as a grapefruit. It's all in fine contrast to his tender, long-distance scenes with his beloved wife Abigail (supportively played by Virginia Vestoff).

Howard Da Silva also reenacts the success of his Broadway role as Benjamin Franklin along with Ken Howard as Thomas Jefferson, David Ford as John Hancock, John Cullum as Edward Rutledge, Ronald Holgate as Richard Henry Lee, Roy Poole as Stephen Hopkins, and nearly a dozen others.

With Da Silva's Franklin, you can understand why the delegates call him "Benjy." He is droll, warm, wise, sophisticated, yet pragmatist enough to insist on compromises which make the Declaration possible. "What are you staring at, haven't you ever seen a great man before?" is one of the delightful Peter Stone lines which Da Silva tosses off with aplomb.

Other bouquets go to Howard, a romantic, terse Jefferson, longing for his bride (fetchingly played by Blythe Danner) and to Holgate's funny, swashbuckling Lee. His prancing horseback rendition of "The Lees of Old Virginia" is one of the best numbers in a film full of them.

"1776" is based on a conception of Sherman Edwards, who wrote the memorable music and lyrics, including "Sit Down John," "Yours, Yours, Yours," "Molasses to Rum," and "Is Anybody There?" Only the battlefield elegy, "Momma, Look Sharp," misses, lacking the poignancy it had on stage.

Yearbook Photo Gives Police Michigan Shooting Suspect

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Witnesses using a high school yearbook instead of the usual police mug shot file identified a 16-year-old boy as the suspect in Monday's shooting of five students on the school campus.

Police said there was no apparent motive in the shootings, but reports indicated the youth opened fire Monday after a fellow student turned his back on a fight.

Timothy Williams, 15, was shot in the lower back and four other students received minor gunshot wounds.

Williams had a kidney removed in a 2-1-2 hour operation at Pontiac General Hospital. Hospital officials said the bullet apparently went through the kidney and liver and lodged in his abdomen.

All the victims were white except for Kathy Winton, but the authorities did not believe there was a racial motive for the incident.

"I don't know if he was crazy or on dope or what," said Glen Hahn, one of the students wounded. "We heard this popping like firecrackers. Suddenly all the kids were clearing out. This black guy was pointing a gun."

Police said exact details of the shootings were sketchy but the incident occurred near the Vocational Educational Building where some 50 to 150 youngsters were walking.

In Oct. 1971, a 17-year-old girl received a minor stab wound in the back in a fight with another girl. In Oct., 1970, four students were slightly injured when they were shot outside the school.

Pontiac Central, on the borderline of Pontiac's decaying downtown, has 2,013 students, about 40 per cent of which are black.

Uncle Of Nixon Son-In-Law To Close 'Shows'

NEW YORK (UPI) —A firm headed by Edward R. Finch, uncle of President Nixon's son-in-law, said Monday it would shut down sex-oriented book stores, peep shows and a movie house operating on its properties in the Times Square area.

Finch is the uncle of Edward Finch Cox, husband of President Nixon's daughter Tricia.

A spokesman for the Finch Corp. said the first shuttering would occur in the next few days when the Peepalive is closed down. The Peepalive features sex books and a live peep show.

That will be followed by shutting down before the end of the year two other establishments which sell books and sex devices and offer peep shows, the spokesman said.

TV Antiviolence Efforts Explained

DORADO BEACH, P.R. (UPI) —Elton H. Rule, president of American Broadcasting Co. Inc., said Monday the television industry has tried to reduce program violence by decreasing emphasis on physical solutions to problems.

"The problem of violence has been dealt with in large measure with significant reduction in emphasis on physical solutions to problems," Rule said in remarks prepared for delivery to the Association of National Advertisers Inc.

CP officials said Monday the aircraft would be used on the north Pacific run to Tokyo and Hong Kong, on the Vancouver, B.C.,-Toronto nonstop service and the Hawaii route.

Reverend MacDonald To Leave Mill Valley

The pastor is best known for his monthly breakfasts for the business community at the Miller Avenue church. The breakfasts, begun about seven years ago to draw business people in the area together, usually attract between 35 and 50 persons.

The next breakfast, scheduled for Thursday between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. could be one of the last such get-togethers, Reverend MacDonald said, since he has no idea if his successor will want to continue the program.

During his nearly 13-year tenure as pastor, the church has attempted to serve contemporary young people through special programs, counseling and just plain friendliness. Some of the pastor's experiences with youth in the drug culture are documented in his book, "The House of Acts," published in 1970 by Creation House.

Last year the church also established a day care center for the children of working parents which currently cares for about 50 children each day.

Before coming to Mill Valley, the 51-year-old minister was pastor for four years of the First Baptist Church in Lakeport, Lake County. Before that, he worked for nine years in the First Baptist Church in Nevada City, a congregation he founded.

Currently, he is working toward a doctor of ministry degree from Golden Gate Theological Seminary in Strawberry.

Official Vote Count: Nixon 55 Per Cent

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Final official elections results today showed President Nixon won 55 per cent of the Nov. 7 vote in California compared to 41.5 per cent for Sen. George McGovern.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. announced that Nixon, a Republican, received 4,602,096 votes while Democrat McGovern had 3,476,120.

Rep. John G. Schmitz, the American Party presidential nominee, received 232,553 votes (2.8 per cent), and Dr. Benjamin Spock, Peace and Freedom party candidate, received 55,167 (.7 per cent.)

Brown said delegates pledged to Nixon will meet in the Capitol Dec. 18 to cast the state's electoral college votes for Nixon.

Ship Taking On Grain For Russian Voyage

HOUSTON (UPI) —The SS National Defender, berthed at the Port of Houston taking on a load of grain, this weekend will become one of the first U.S. ships to carry grain to Russia in the giant Soviet-American sale completed last summer.

The ship has been docked at the port since early August while diplomats argued over the price to be paid shippers.

The Soviet Union originally offered shippers $7.50 per ton, but the amount was later raised to more than $10 a ton. The U.S. government will pay subsidies of $8,000 a day while the grain is being loaded.

The ship will complete loading this week and leave this weekend on its 18 day journey to an unspecified port on the Black Sea.

Chicago Seven Contempt Charge Reduction Asked

CHICAGO (UPI) — The government asked Monday that contempt of court charges imposed against the Chicago Seven defendants and their lawyers be reduced.

U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson asked U.S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux to dismiss "all but the most flagrant" contempt counts.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman had found the seven defendants and their two lawyers in contempt following a tumultous, five-month trial on charges of conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. Hoffman handed down sentences ranging from two months and 18 days to four years and 13 days.

All seven defendants were found innocent on conspiracy charges, but five were found guilty of crossing state lines to incite rioting. Last week the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the riot convictions, but left the door open for a retrial.

Last May, the appeals court also ordered a retrial of the contempt charges, specifying that Hoffman could not be the judge. But Gignoux recently approved a motion by Thompson to limit maximum jail terms for contempt to 177 days to avoid the necessity of jury trials. Under law, any contempt sentence longer than six months requires a jury trial.

The government wants to avoid jury trials so it will not be forced to reveal wiretap evidence used in gaining the riot convictions.

Thompson's motion Monday asked the court to dismiss all but eight of 24 contempt counts against attorney William M. Kunstler and all but five of 15 counts against attorney Leonard I. Weinglass.

For the seven defendants he asked the court to let stand: 11 of the orginal 32 contempt counts against David Dellinger; five of the original 23 against Rennie Davis; three of the original 11 against Tom Hayden; seven of the original 24 against Abbie Hoffman; six of the original 15 against Jerry Rubin; three of the original seven against Lee Weiner, and three of the original 10 against John Froines.

Thompson said under the counts he sought to retain, both lawyers and four of the defendants could be sentenced to the 177 days if found guilty.

U.S. Trade Deficit Is Certain

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States imported $415 million more in goods than it exported last month, and U.S. officials said the nation is certain to run up its second annual trade deficit of the 20th century this year.

The first annual deficit of this century was recorded in 1971 when imports exceeded exports by an estimated $2 billion. The October deficit pushed the imbalance for this year to a much larger $5.275 billion.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said Monday this meant that the trade deficit for 1972 "will clearly be larger than the 1971 deficit..." But he said there was some good news in the trade trends:

—The $415 million October deficit was $100 million under the September figure and the smallest since January.

—The October deficit was far under the 1972 monthly high of just under $700 million recorded in April.

"It is important to recognize that the trend toward larger deficits has been reversed since April," Passer said.

Part of the reason the trend has been reversed, Passer said, was the currency realignment of December, 1971, which has restrained imports and stimulated exports, although the initial impact was adverse.

Antiskyjacking Talks Are Held

WASHINGTON (UPI) —State Department officials report the first session of antiskyjacking talks between Cuba and the United States has been held but they have not indicated when a second meeting will take place.

The first session was held Saturday in Havana between Cuban Foreign Ministry officials and the Swiss ambassador, who represents U.S. interests in Cuba, State Department officials said Monday.

The State Department, however, did not provide any details on the Saturday session. Washington and Havana announced last week they were willing to engage in talks aimed toward an agreement to discourage airplane hijackings, many of which originate in the United States and terminate in Cuba.

NBA Commissioner's Visit To Bay Area

J. Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, made a Bay Area stop yesterday in Berkeley and made some of the sports scribes take their minds off football for about 37 minutes.

Pen in hand, I stood by at the press conference at the Claremont Hotel anxiously waiting for new word of the proposed NBA merger with the American Basketball Association.

There wasn't much to be said, and the whole thing "is in limbo," admitted Kennedy. Until Congress reconvenes in January there will not be anything new. When the new congressional session does open, Kennedy is not optimistic the two leagues will be able to swallow all the amendments a Senate subcommittee is trying to tack on the merger proposal.

One of the amendments calls for a splitting of the gate receipts — home team getting 75 per cent and the visiting team 25 per cent. This is the way baseball has been operating for years and I think that's the way it should be in all pro sports. When the fans turn out in large number to see a visiting star I think the guest team should be able to share in the profits. At present, the home team gets all the gate receipts.

"This is a league decision," Kennedy said about the revenue sharing. "It should not be a legislative decision."

The commissioner was happy to report NBA attendance up eight per cent over last year. "I'm particularly pleased with the increase in attendance because we opened our season during an exciting World Series and now we are going against pro football," he said.

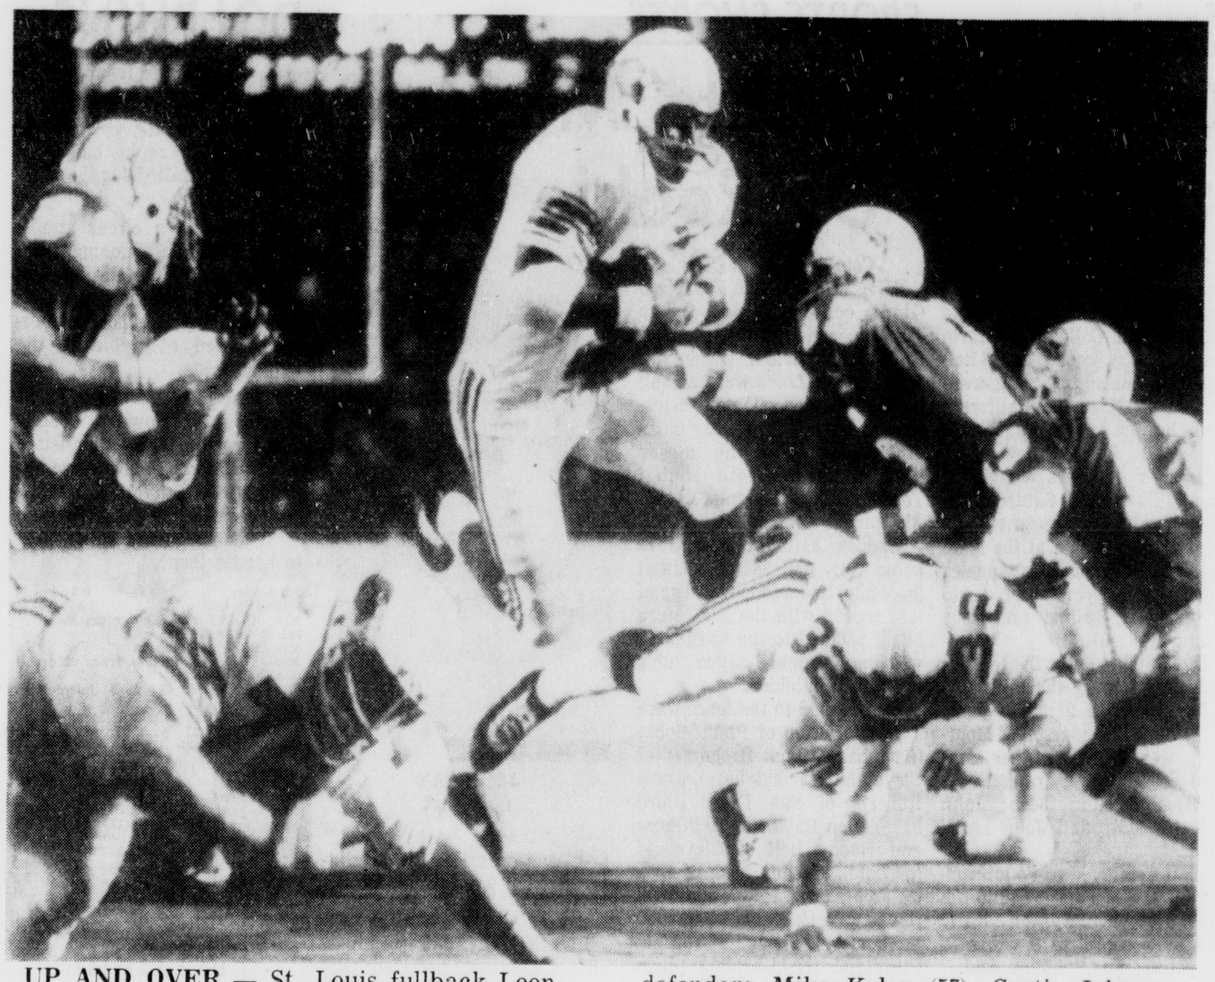
Kennedy gave his personal belief that if there is not a merger "there will be a lot of basketball players out of a job in four or five years." He was referring to teams going out of business because of all the bidding wars for talent.

Kennedy also said the NBA's current three-year television contract with ABC is running out and he is pushing for regional telecasts on Sundays rather than one national game which is the case now. I think Bay Area fans would much rather see the Golden State Warriors or Los Angeles Lakers than the eastern teams that dominate the telecasts.

And if you have a rough time remembering the Warriors are called Golden State rather than San Francisco or Oakland, don't get discouraged. Kennedy referred to the team twice as San Francisco, which is half correct. The team's business office is in S.F., even though the home games are played in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

NAME CHANGE — The California State College, Sonoma, has changed the name of its upcoming basketball tournament from Cossack Classic to Coca-Cola Classic and who says there's commercialism in college sports? Suggests the I-J Petaluma sports man Paul Dworin: Call the Sonoma State cheerleaders the "Cokettes."

Anyway, this commercial enterprise takes place on the Rohnert Park campus Friday and Saturday nights, drawing teams from Cal State Bakersfield, Cal Poly in Pomona, Cal State at Humboldt, and, of course, Coca-Cola State, Sonoma.



UP AND OVER — St. Louis fullback Leon Burns hurdled over the final two yards for the football Cardinals' only touchdown last night in Miami against the undefeated Dolphins. Cardinals Dan Dierdorf (72) and Leo Hayden (32) provided the blocking. Dolphin defenders Mike Kolen (57), Curtis Johnson (45) and Jake Scott (13) closed in too late to prevent this fourth quarter score. The Dolphins increased their record to 11-0 with a 31-10 victory.

Two Reserve Dolphins In Major Roles

MIAMI (UPI)—Just like Earl Morrall, wide receiver Otto Stowe is a Don Shula trademark—an understudy who can step into the star's role anytime.

Morrall, the 17-year pro quarterback, has been doing it for Shula's Miami Dolphins ever since Bob Griese went out with a smashed leg and ankle in the fifth game of the season. Stowe didn't get his chance until Paul Warfield was sidelined with a hurt ankle two weeks ago.

Monday night, the second-year pro with the lean and graceful build and the wild head of Afro-styled hair caught six passes for 140 yards and two touchdowns—his first as a pro—and was the star of Miami's 31-10 rout of the St. Louis Cardinals. He got the game ball, and the praise of both coaches.

"Otto was great," said Shula of the player he picked as Miami's first draft choice last year, a 23-year-old out of Iowa State.

"We were aware of the patterns he would run, but I guess he just got our cornerback, Norm Thompson, turned around," said Cardinal Coach Bob Hollway, whose team now is 2-8-1 for the season.

"I wish I had a little more playing time in some of the other games. It's great to get out there and contribute what you learn in practice," said Stowe.

But he may be back on the sidelines if Warfield returns to the lineup against New England next week, as Shula expects.

Miami is undefeated in 11 games now, the first team since the Los Angeles Rams in 1969, to win the first 11 games and the first team in 11 years to clinch a division championship in the NFL after only 10 games.

Team depth has been one of Shula's goals since he came to Miami from Baltimore in 1970, and Morrall, Stowe and Mercury Morris—who's been running for Jim Kiick most of the time since Kiick was partially hobbled with a knee injury four weeks ago—are testimony to his success.

Morrall passed 37 and 27 yards to Stowe for two Dolphin scores Monday night. Kiick got the first touchdown on a two-yard plunge after Dick Anderson's first quarter fumble recovery and cornerback Lloyd Mumphord collected the other touchdown with a 28-yard runback of a Gary Cuozzo pass interception. Garo Yepremian kicked the four extra points plus a 25-yard field goal.

After Jim Bakken kicked a 49-yard field goal in the middle of the second quarter, St. Louis had to wait until the fourth quarter for a second score, a two-yard plunge by Leon Burns that capped a 51-yard drive directed by Cuozzo replacement Jim Hart. Bakken kicked the conversion.

"In our situation now, winning is important, that's for sure, and we want to keep up our momentum. But not at the risk of our ballplayers," said Shula in explaining why he will

20 Players Traded During Winter Baseball Meetings

HONOLULU (UPI)—Twenty ballplayers, including some pretty fair country ones like Graig Nettles, Tommie Agee and Matty Alou, have been peddled already at these winter baseball meetings, and what would you say if the next name thrown at you is Pete Rose?

Bob Howsam didn't say anything when the name was thrown at him. He didn't say anything for a moment, anyway.

"I don't plan to trade him," said Howsam, talking about Rose, his switch-hitting, head-sliding "Charlie Hustle," who didn't have one of his usual good years this past season but still batted .307, knocked in 57 runs and hit six homers.

But what if some club asked about Rose, as one has done already?

"I'd look at the deal," Howsam conceded. "I'd look at any deal, and if it was the kind you can't turn down, well, then I'd have to say we wouldn't turn it down."

The Reds did figure in one of the five deals made here Monday but it was a minor one with them getting outfielder Bill Voss, a 27-year-old retread, from the Cardinals for pitcher Pat Jacquez. Both Voss and Jacques then were sent to minor league clubs.

Nettles and Agee were the most important performers in Monday's transactions however.

The Yankees outbid 10 other clubs for the 28-year-old Nettles, a power hitting, slick fielding third baseman who has averaged better than 23 homers a season for the Cleveland Indians the past three years. Along with Nettles, the Yanks picked up backup catcher Gerry Moses from the Indians for four of their younger players—21-year-old outfielder Charlie Spikes, considered the Yanks' outstanding prospect; 24-year-old catcher-first baseman John Ellis; outfielder Rusty Torres, another 24-year-old; and infielder Jerry Kenney, 27, who had asked to be traded.

TOMMIE AGEE
Sent packing

Agee, one of the key factors in the Mets' march to their "miracle" world championship three years ago, went to Houston for outfielder Rich Chiles. The 30 year old Agee fell on some sorry days with the Mets this past season, winding up with a .227 average, 47 RBI's with 13 homers contrasted with the .285 he hit a year ago and the 76 RBI's and 26 homers he put together when the Mets won in 1969.

Detroit and Pittsburgh also did a little business, the Tigers getting outfielder Dick Sharon, a .268 hitter with Charleston of the International League, for a pair of pitchers, Jim Foor and Norm McRae, whom the Pirates turned right around and sent to Charleston.

The California Angels and Philadelphia Phillies, who made 21-year-old right-handed pitcher Mike Bruhert their first choice in the smallest major league draft ever (only six players were selected in all), left one deal in the we'll-let-you know stage.

Harry Dalton, the Angels' general manager, had offered either Andy Messersmith or Clyde Wright and Ken Berry for Larry Bowa, and Paul Owens, the Phils' general manager now has come up with an alternative deal—Denny Doyle and Terry Harmon instead of Bowa.

To that Dalton told Owens "We'll let you know."

HERITAGE GOLF

Cat's Away For Miller In Tourney

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S. C. (UPI) —That bit about "when the cat's away, the mice will play" sure held true in the Heritage Golf Classic.

Like winner John Miller said, "when you don't have those big names breathing down your neck, it's a real boost to your confidence," and a host of young golfers dominated the Heritage leader board.

Most conspicuous absentees in the Heritage—next to last stop on the Professional Golfers Association tour which winds up this week with the Disney World at Orlando, Fla.— were Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper.

"When you don't have to go against the big names, you are playing against a lot of people you feel you can beat," said the 25-year-old Miller who won the biggest check ($25,000) of his four-year career.

Miller was just one of many relatively new faces that sparkled this past week at this resort island tournament. Newcomer Lon Hinkle, playing in only his second tournament as a pro, tied for third—behind Miller and Elder statesman (30) Tom Weiskopf—and earned $7,350 and 21-year-old Pat Fitzsimmons of Salem, Ore., won $2,900 in his professional debut thanks to a final round 66.

And how about amateur Ben Crenshaw, a university of Texas junior, tying for third by shooting a 67?

Miller, who has now won more than $98,000 this year but no other PGA tournament since last year's Southern Open, had to play safe for a par on the final hole Monday to beat Weiskopf by a stroke. Miller, who closed with a 1-under-par 70, wound up with a 3-under-par 281 for the four-round, five-day (it rained Saturday) event while Weiskopf, who closed strong with A 66 was at 282.

"Winning a tournament last week in New Zealand gave me a real boost," said Miller, a native Californian who now makes his home here on Hilton Head Island. "But winning the Heritage was even better because it gave me a place in next year's Tournament of Champions."

FOR MONDAY CLASH

49ers Are Wary Of The Stumbling Rams

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI)—The Los Angeles Rams are supposed to be stumbling, but the San Francisco 49ers can't forget the last time they saw their rivals from the Southland.

Los Angeles humiliated the 49ers 31-7 at the Coliseum while piling up 520 yards. The 49ers are now 6-4-1 and nobody, but nobody, has matched that Ram performance against them that day.

The Rams call on San Francisco next Monday night with the division lead at stake. The Rams are 5-5-1 and by that time, the Atlanta Falcons figure to have put away Houston to make their record 7-5 and be watching the TV set and rooting for Los Angeles.

One major accomplishment of the 49ers big 31-10 victory over Dallas on Thanksgiving was that it meant that if they can beat Los Angeles and Atlanta, they'll cinch the division and won't have to worry about their regular season-ending clash with a tough Minnesota team that figures to be desperate for a win.

But first, San Francisco has to get by that Ram bunch.

"We have a little vendetta going with the Rams," said linebacker Skip Vanderbundt, who scored twice against Dallas in a rare show for a defensive man.

What worries Vanderbundt is that he and the rest of the 49ers still don't really know what went wrong in the first Ram battle.

"Nobody can convince me that luck isn't a big part of the game. It was a combination of things. They had the breaks and we had the breakdowns," says Vanderbundt.

"Every defense has a weakness, something to exploit, and they sure found ours that day."

Cornerback Jimmy Johnson's sprained knee is reported mending but nobody knows if he'll be ready for the Rams. If he can't make it, Windlan Hall could be the key man against Los Angeles. The Rams figure to test the rookie from Arizona State out in a hurry.

As for quarterback John Brodie, he also remains a question.

"We were hoping Brodie would be ready against Dallas," said coach Dick Nolan. "But he just wasn't physically able.

"What he can do is set up and throw, but what he can't do is maneuver enough to get out of someone's way."

San Diego Boxer Austin Triumphs

PHOENIX (UPI) — Charlie Austin, San Diego, used a lightning left jab to pile up points in the early rounds to win a split 10-round decision over Larry Cruz, Salt Lake City, in the light heavyweight main event Monday night at Riverside Ballroom.

Austin, a former Phoenix resident, looked as though he would coast to the victory until Cruz began throwing solid combinations in a comeback bid late in the fight.

Judges George Labarre and Steve Connors scored for Austin, while referee Billy Sparks had Cruz the victor. Austin weighed 170 1-2, the heaviest of his career, while Cruz came in at 166.

Warriors, Phoenix In Oakland Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Golden State Warriors host Phoenix, apparently their key rival this season, tonight in the first meeting of the National Basketball Association Pacific Division foes.

With Los Angeles roaring along with a 19-3 mark, the Warriors at 14-7 might be willing just to settle for the other playoff spot. Phoenix is in third with a 9-12 mark, but might get the Warriors jittery with a win tonight since the season is yet young.

Phoenix brings two guys with unlimited potential to town in forward Connie Hawkins and guard Charlie Scott.

The latter is living up to that potential with a 27.3 scoring average but Hawkins can't seem to get it together and is hitting at a 16.3 average. Sunday, he had words with Coach-General Manager Jerry Colangelo and left the court in the middle of the first half at Los Angeles. His status for tonight's contest is not known.

The Warriors lost two out of three on their just-concluded road trip but ended with a wild 133-114 win over Kansas City-Omaha in their biggest point splurge yet.

The Warriors go right back against the Suns Friday night at Phoenix and then come home to face Los Angeles at Oakland Sunday.

In between Warriors players and coach Al Attles will study motion pictures made at tonight's game, first of the National Basketball Association season between the two.

Phoenix lost 117-107 Sunday to the Los Angeles Lakers who lead the NBA's Western Conference Pacific Division with 19-3.

Attending tonight's game will be NBA Commissioner J. Walter Kennedy who told a news conference in Berkeley Monday the league's attendance was up eight per cent from a year ago, with 13 of the 17 clubs showing improvement.

Kennedy also said that when the NBA's television contract is renegotiated after this season an effort would be made to have the new contract on a regional basis, similar to the National Football League's arrangement. This would enable fans to see a greater number of the teams in action, he said.

Pacific Coast League Schedule

HONOLULU (UPI)—The Pacific Coast League has adopted a 140-game schedule for 1973, starting April 13 and ending Sept. 3, it was announced at the baseball meetings here.

League President William McKechnie Jr. also announced Monday the return of an all-star game to be played July 17 in Albuquerque between the Eastern Division and the Western Division.

The all-star teams will be picked by managers, players and media members in each division.

Raider Obstacle: Chargers Sunday

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders may find it tough to concentrate on Sunday's test with improving San Diego Chargers as they savor their 26-3 win over Kansas City Sunday.

That win put them 2 1-2 games up in their division with three to go so that one more win lands them in the playoffs.

Kansas City humiliated the Raiders earlier, but guard Gene Upshaw commented that "we feel that a team might beat us once, but nobody can beat us twice."

Halfback Charlie Smith sounded as though he was girding for a sportscaster's job as he observed in a detached manner that "nobody in pro ball should stay with the Raiders, not when they use all that talent. They have Bob Brown, Jim Otto, Gene Upshaw, Fred Biletnikoff—great players."

Asked if he weren't a part of the Raiders, as demonstrated by his 70 yards rushing, touchdown and three passes caught against the Chiefs, Smith commented that " I can't do those things without the offensive line."

"That's the type of game we should have played in Kansas City," veteran center Otto observed.

Lisa's Gang Wins In Rec Basketball

Bob Greenman scored 32 points for Harvey Wallbanger, but it wasn't enough as Lisa's Gang got 53 points from Lance Lund, Ray Belcher and Tom Kuhn for a 71-68 victory last night in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department Adult Basketball League play.

In other games, Bob Heaney's 28 points gave Tetons West a 77-73 victory over E.D. McGillicuddy, and Bob Hatton dropped in 25 as Ghilotti Brothers beat First American Title, 66-57.

Anti-Betting Views Of NFL Czar Rozelle

(First of two parts)

Pete Rozelle normally is a soft spoken fellow. But proposals to legalize gambling on pro football and other team sports strain his patience to the shouting point.

To keep from shouting his protests, the commissioner of the National Football League systematically listed them in silence. This week sports writers throughout the country received a detailed list of Rozelle's objections compiled in q. and a. style.

Q. If New York State can legalize horse race gambling with Off-Track Betting, why not all sports?

A. There is a vast difference between extension of horse race betting, which has been legal at race tracks for many years, to off-track betting parlors and legalization of an entirely different type of gambling.

GAMBLING IS NOT an inherent part of team sports as it has been in horse racing. The ancient Romans bet on horse races and chariot races. Horse racing has been inextricably involved with betting and could not survive without it.

As a result of this identification with gambling, the horse racing business has been forced to accept strict governmental control of most of its activities.

IN RACING, a State commission sets dates and sites of meetings, licenses trainers, owners, jockeys and drivers. It hands down suspensions, assesses fines and takes a generous slice of betting action. This tight supervision has become necessary to guard against drugging, fixing of races and false identification of horses.

Any similar governmental obligation to control team sports would involve far-reaching changes in their present structure of operations and place a costly and staggering burden to oversee sporting events everywhere a sporting event is held.

Q. How can you oppose legal sports betting when it would add so many dollars to aid ghetto areas, social welfare programs and education?

A. We are in sympathy with efforts to raise money to ease the tax burden and to increase educational facilities. But the answer is not misusing a sport not designed for betting.

We disagree with the premise that gambling revenue will make any appreciable contribution toward solving our tax problems. Betting on horse racing has been legal in New York for over 30 years, yet there is constant pressure for additional tax revenue from the same source through extended racing seasons, Sunday racing and various types of exotic special wagers.

The new Off-Track Betting system in New York City is struggling to pay for itself in the face of charges that it is draining state tax revenue from other sources by causing decreasing attendance and lower betting handle at the race tracks.

Practically every study made of legalized gambling has shown that the great bulk of gambling is done by people in the lower income strata. This has resulted in an unhealthy and unproductive shift of wealth away from the low-income bettor or, at best, a redistribution of wealth among the lower income groups. The lure of "pie in the sky" bets through perfectas, superfectas, daily doubles, etc., with the promise of a huge payoff for a minimum bet is the most popular form of betting.

A survey of British betting habits under legalized gambling, conducted by the New York State Assembly, confirms a decline in family resources, a sharp increase in default of debts owed small shopkeepers, an increased proportion of family income diverted to gambling and early indoctrination of juveniles to gambling habits.

Harriers: Tar Coach Is Pleased

"We're pleased with our year, even though we didn't finish very high in the state meet," said College of Marin cross-country coach Tony Bailey this morning. "We were second in Northern California and had a good dual-meet record."

Bailey's harriers concluded their 1972 season Saturday by finishing 10th in the small junior college division at the state meet in Valencia, Los Angeles County. The Tars scored 215 points, well behind victorious Santa Ana's 61.

Lee Hotchkin was the top Tar finisher, running the hilly, 3.9-mile course in 21:30 to place 25th. Roger Henderson of Moorpark won in 20:06. Other Tars who scored were Frank Elias, 53rd; Joe Kinn, 54th; John Streett, 60th; and John Ladd, 73rd.

Vian Collier, Marin's top runner in the Northern California meet Nov. 18, "was physically unable to complete the race — he got cramps," Bailey said.

Baseball Plan For Washington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Edwin D. Eshleman, R-Pa., today proposed to plan to return baseball to the nation's capital with all 24 teams playing a three-game series in Washington each season.

In a letter to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Eshleman said he realized the suggestion was too late for 1973, but said it could be arranged for the 1974 season.

"In all honesty, I think that the 24-team plan is preferable to finding a permanent club for Washington," the congressman said.

Erving Scores, Virginia Soars

NEW YORK (UPI)—Julius Erving continues to dominate the American Basketball Association's scorers and with his help the Virginia Squires are edging up on the Carolina Cougars in the Eastern Division.

Erving, who joined the Squires when they were 0-4, is leading the league with a 32.0 points per game average and has helped bring Virginia over the .500 mark (13-12) and 1 1-2 games behind Carolina.

Over in the National Basketball Association, Wilt Chamberlain has moved back into the rebounding lead with the help of a tremendous game (26 rebounds) against Phoenix. The 36-year old Los Angeles center also is hitting on an unbelievable .802 of his field goals.

On the other end of the measuring pole, little Nate Archibald of the Kansas CityOmaha Kings is still the NBA's scoring leader with a 34.3 points per game average.

The Golden State Warriors must be holding midnight foul shooting practice or something because three of their players are among the top five free throw shooters in the NBA. Cazzie Russell took over the lead at .947 with Rick Barry a close second at .938. Jim Barnett is fifth at .902.

6 Players Compete For Scoring Lead

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) —When the World Hockey Association first put itself into business, its organizers promised the public the kind of equality the expansion-ridden National Hockey League couldn't offer.

Six players were bunched within a single point of each other at the top of the league scoring race through Sunday's games, according to the official league statistics released Monday.

Sharing the lead with 32 points each were Chris Bordeleau of the Winnipeg Jets and Ron Ward of the New York Raiders, and just one point behind them were Bobby Sheehan of New York, Gordon Labossiere of the Houston Aeros, Ron Buchanan of the Cleveland Crusaders and Jim Harrison of the Alberta Oilers.

Bordeleau was the goal scoring leader with 18 while defenseman J. C. Tremblay of the Quebec Nordiques was the leading playmaker with 21 assists.

End Complaints, U.S. Basketball Team Requested

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) —The coach of the Chile national basketball team says it is time the United States stopped complaining about the poor officating the American team received at the Olympic games in Munich this summer.

"I want the United States to quit complaining about its basketball loss to Russia, because the U.S. is returning the favor — every day — to Chile," said Coach Dan Peterson Monday night.

Peterson has brought his Chile squad for an extensive tour of the United States and so far, his team has lost all 29 of its games against American teams.

Peterson said part of his team's problems has been the officiating it has received from U.S. officials.

Why Herzog Took On Ranger Manager Job

By MILTON RICHMAN

He had been named new manager of the Texas Rangers only a short time earlier, and while some people would liken that to the beginning of an indeterminate jail sentence, Whitey Herzog felt mighty chesty about it because this was going to be his first crack at handling a major league ball club, or what passes for one anyway.

They are saying as director of player development for the Mets, who employed him the past seven years, he was exceptionally well thought of: Why on earth would he ever leave a club he might even some day manage, a club like the well-heeled Mets, to go with one like the talent-thin broken-down Rangers.

"Let's put it this way," says the forthright, 41-year-old Herzog. "I think everybody who has ever played baseball has thought he'd like to manage when he's through. I played pro ball 14 years and when I was at the end of my rope I knew I'd like to manage.

"While I was with the Mets, I had two major league managerial offers. I didn't take them because I didn't wanna go anywhere I didn't think I had a chance to manage the club the way I wanna manage. With the Rangers, I feel I'm gonna have that chance. In a situation I'm stepping into, it's probably gonna be as much a case of handling young players and teaching 'em as it'll be a case of playing the game. It'll be using psychology and pumping 'em up. That's what I like."

Herzog doesn't identify the two big league clubs which sounded him out before the Rangers. They were the Oakland A's and Cleveland Indians, however.

The Mets never offered Herzog a managerial job while he was with them although after he turned down those other two propositions, one Mets' board member told Whitey he was glad he did because he was next in line when and if Gil Hodges ever departed.

But Herzog didn't get the Mets managerial job after Hodges died. Yogi Berra did, and being no dope, Herzog knew he wouldn't get the job even after Yogi goes. It more likely will be inherited by someone like Willie Mays or even someone like Ralph Kiner.

So when Bob Short, the owner of the Rangers, called him on the phone last November at Al Lang Field in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he was busy working with some of the Mets' kids, Herzog said he was interested in coming to Texas.

Another Big One That Got Away

By AL GIDDINGS

The big story of this past week is about the big one that got away. Fred Miller of San Anselmo, along with several other fishermen in boats from Loch Lomond, gave sturgeon a go this past week. They fished outside the San Rafael channel.

It seems that Fred hooked a sturgeon that supposedly towed his 20-foot boat upstream against a pretty fair current for 200 yards. Then the line broke!

IN THE AREA of the S.P. Buoy down to the area south of the Richmond Bridge some other fair sized fish were landed — and some were lost. Keith Fraser, one of the bay bass champs, hasn't hooked a sturgeon yet but he did get a good fish on, played it out, and then ended up actually disappointed when it turned out to be a 25-pound striper. That poor boy!

All of the fishermen are reporting sturgeon jumping in their fishing areas. You better get out there. Rich Borbs caught a 75-pounder this week and as I once said, "If he can catch 'em, you'd better get out there quick." I'm going for sure this week. Sunday, 12 anglers checked into Loch Lomond Bait Barge with 14 stripers. They used shiners and drifted the Sisters and the Brothers Islands. Ten anglers in three boats fishing near the pumphouse, using bullheads, took 13 stripers with the largest hitting the scales at 29 pounds. There was a nasty east wind, and with the fog it was cold. Dress warm. Winter underwear is almost a must.

I PUT IN A day with two friends at the Grizzly Island Refuge last Wednesday. The refuge take for the Sunday before was a low .6 birds per hunter. We managed to average three birds apiece. The pheasant take there for one day was a low total of 14 birds for the 250 hunters present.

I keep reading — and writing — that the ducks are down from the north, but they sure must be scattered. Checking at different areas show very few limits from the bay. The Sutter wildlife area has been high with a 3.1 bird average per hunter to date with Gray Lodge, Sacramento, Delevan and Grizzly having a slightly better than two birds per hunter average. Things are tough all over.

SUNDAY, IN working the area between China Camp and Santa Venetia, game wardens had to worn off several small boys shooting .22-caliber rifles. Some of the hunters and boats using the sloughs actually were in the line of fire. A .22 rifle slug is highly dangerous up to a one-mile distance, so all safety measures should be applied by the shooters. They should be especially certain of the background in the area where they shoot. With Christmas time coming, if you are inclined to get your son a gun, get him a .410 shotgun. A .22 rifle is illegal to use for almost any type of game.

San Francisco Bay Area anglers will harvest the dividend next year of two trout plants to be made soon by the Department of Fish and Game.

AS PART OF its program to upgrade fishing in Bay Area waters, the DFG will stock 100,000 fingerling-size rainbow trout in Kent and Alpine Lakes in Marin County within the next few weeks.

The two to three inch long fish are expected to grow to catchable size by next summer or fall when they will help provide additional angling recreation for Bay Area anglers.

Sixty-five thousand of the fish will be released into Alpine Lake and the remaining 35,000 will be stocked in Kent Lake.

The fish will come from the department's San Joaquin Hatchery near Fresno. The plants will be made as soon as access roads to the planting sites have dried out enough to support the weight of the hatchery trucks.

Ski Movie Set In Civic Center

The Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science will present Winter People, a ski movie, Friday, Dec. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium in the San Rafael Civic Center.

In doubles finals Thayer Wendell of Greenville, Del., and Sheryl Maskell of Arlington took the 16-year-old honors while Claudia Smith of Lancaster, Pa., and Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis, Ind., won in the 18-year-old class.

Miss Graham topped unseeded Miss Meyer, 6-2, 6-3, for her victory and Miss Mehmedbasich defeated second seeded Betsy Nagelson, of St. Petersburg, Fla., 7-6, 6-4. Miss Nagelson, top seeded in the 18-year-old class, lost that semifinal match to Miss Meyer.

Miss Wendell and Miss Maskell won their doubles final 6-3, 4-6, 6-0 from Vickey Robinson of College Park, Md., and Kimberly Jones of Fall Church Va. Misses Smith and Meyer tripped Miss Mehmedbasich and Sally Greer of Miami, 6-4, 6-4 for the 18-year-old doubles title.

Marin's Own Version Of Planned Society

The scope of the innocuosly titled "Marin County General Plan" is beginning to emerge.

So sweeping is the proposed plan that a whole batch of new state laws would be required to make it operate. This is the word from Werner von Gundell, who came here from Connecticut six years ago to go to work in the county planning department and for two years has been county planning director.

TO MAKE the plan work, according to von Gundell, a state housing program must be initiated. This would put the State of California into the housing business, with low-interest loans and a "state housing bank" — duplicating the Federal Housing Administration but, in von Gundell's theory, doing a better job.

Further, he says, the plan would require state subsidies to underwrite "low-cost housing" projects in high-land-cost areas such as Marin.

Besides that, legislative approval would be required to create the non-elective "superagency" which would supercede city and county planning commissions, city councils and board of supervisors in controlling the "environmental impact" of what was built in Marin.

There is more. Von Gunlell wants a state law empowering local jurisdictions to set ceilings on rents and on sale prices of homes — the latter something that never has been subject to governmental control in the United States.

He also wants a law empowering the local governments to tax the profits from resale of homes. Money from this, he says, would be needed to supplement the federal and state funds in subsidizing "low-cost housing."

NOT CONTENT with all these, he advocates doing away with the requirement for local approval before obligating county funds for "low-cost housing" projects.

He wants a law empowering counties and cities to dictate when any new development can be started. He seeks another setting up a complicated system of transferring "development rights" from one area to another.

There are others, too. In all, von Gundell wants 16 new state laws in order that his brainchild, the Marin County General Plan, can — he theorizes — be workable.

As touted to the Marin public in the planning department's own tabloid announcement — which was "written down" for the intelligences of the people in one of America's best-educated counties — the general plan did not sound quite so radical, did it? But now the truth begins to come out:

THE MARIN COUNTY General Plan is not a "general plan" as we have come to think of such things. It is a blueprint for an entirely new kind of government control, taking us much farther on the road to Big Brother than even federal officialdom has so far dared.

It requires considerable gall for this young man from Connecticut to propose that the Marin County Board of Supervisors and the California Legislature go along with his version of the planned society.

Militant State Employee Leaders Cancel Out Gains

By EARL G. WATERS

The enormity of their mistake has not yet dawned upon the leadership of the California State Employees Association.

An increasing militancy has marked the rise to power of a coterie of employee leaders who have been in the saddle for the past year.

It was not always thus. The employee group, stagnated by a long period of do-nothing leadership, had experienced a revitalization with the election of Robert F. Carlson, a level-headed public works attorney.

Carlson brought into the organization as manager the soft-spoken and capable Loren V. Smith, an attorney with considerable experience in employee-management relations. He also enjoyed a good relationship with the Legislature. The association was on the upswing and Carlson was re-elected president for an unprecedent second term.

THE EMPLOYEE group was gaining new heights. Membership rose to near 100,000 and confidence in the oganization was being established with both the lawmakers and the administration.

Yet, within the membership there was a noisy group of dissidents. They were impatient, and despite the warnings of Carlson and Smith, strike talk was heard.

The malcontents gained control with the election of Leroy A. Pemberton, a San Diego State College employee. Under his leadership the strike threats grew louder. Also under his leadership the employee group launched its ill-conceived initiative to wrest control away from the governor and severely restrict the Legislature in state wage setting.

It was at this point that Loren Smith refused to continue as their manager. Because they had ignored his warnings, especially in the matter of the initiative, Smith resigned to go on to better things.

But the happy warriors continued undaunted. Raising the dues for members, they acquired a $2 million warchest for their ballot proposal. They also lost 15,000 members, a 17½ per cent drop, and created wide schisms among the remaining members.

WHATEVER THE MERITS of their complaints, the provisions of the initiative to virtually put salary determination for state workers in the hands of the employees were too crass. Worse, the deceptive campaign slogans geared to mislead the voters into thinking the measure would limit state salaries insulted the intelligence of the public. The measure was soundly defeated. It didn't even carry Sacramento where the bulk of the workers live and vote.

It is obvious in their re-election of Pemberton for another term, an act made possible only because Carlson had shattered one-term tradition two years ago, that the delegates have not identified their big problem.

In place of admitting their errors in leading the employees down the path of militancy and rebellion, the leaders crowed about the initiative. They claimed victory had come with defeat.

They said they had forced the governor into recognizing pay inequities. They said they had demonstrated political strength. They said they had won the support of 2.5 million voters for better pay. They forgot more than twice that many voters opposed them.

Wants To Keep Bank Right Where It Is

As a resident of the Tiburon Peninsula, I read with dismay, chagrin and much disgust of negotiations between Mr. Zelinsky and Bank of America re a sight for an expanded bank building on Tiburon Boulevard.

The B. of A. already on Marin Street has a great deal of charm and warmth. It is ideally situated, especially for an ever-enlarging tourist trade.

By nature Tiburon is charming, with still some place to breathe. Bank of America executives would be better advised to consider human sanity in the light of open space campaigns as opposed to big business expansion, for what?

Proposed Solutions For Organic Gardeners

Betty Franklin's plea for solutions to the organic gardener's problem of avoiding the use of unnatural (fluoridated) water has stirred me. I have three suggestions, two of them physical but with an intellectual history and the third purely intellectual.

(1) Purchase dual purpose ion exchange units which will remove both the positive and negative ions from the water source, i.e. desalt it.

(2) Purchase or make a still to desalt the water by distillation. This has the advantage over deionization in that the apparatus could be pressed into service in preparing spiritous liquors from ferments. Both the Irish and the Arabs are credited with discovering this boon to civilization. However the Bureau of Internal Revenue looks with disfavor on unlicensed preparation of spiritous liquors.

(3) Forsake the religion, relax and enjoy it. Pure water has always been quite unnatural.

Town of Ross Refuses To Defend Ordinance

I'd like to relate a curious case involving a citation I received from the Ross Police Department. Shortly before this month's election, ex-Sen. Eugene McCarthy spoke in Ross at a Democratic political rally. When the participants left, many found their cars ticketed for a variety of reasons. (From what I gather, this seems to be a usual phenomenon in Ross at Democratic functions only.) The citation on my car read "car parked on street for sale". At first I thought Shady Lane was for sale, but then I realized I wasn't allowed to have a "for sale" sign on my window. Since this is such a widespread practice and 99.9 per cent of such offenders don't know it's illegal in certain municipalities, I decided to fight the ordinance. I filed a motion of demurrer on the grounds that my constitutional rights of free speech and equal protection were violated. Ross withdraw the complaint.

If Ross is justified in having a law on its books, why is it afraid to defend the law? Why is it so devious that it lets one guilty person go because it's afraid? If there is a law, its originators should be required to defend it if it is properly attacked.

Proposed 'Profit Tax' Is Triple Taxation

Just great! According to an I-J news article, Thanksgiving Day, the Marin County Planning Department released a list of needed new state legislation.

One such bill "would enable local government to place a profit tax on the resale of a home, based on the percentage of increased value between the time the home was first purchased and later sold." Pray, what have we all been paying to the county, etc. these last many years? More and more taxes raised by continual reassessment based on the "fair market value" according to Mr. Assessor! In addition, if the state gives the home owner a break, the assessor promptly raises the assessment, covering not only that amount but also a little extra for good measure.

And I bet the people who will pay this tax will not be eligible for the "low and moderate-income housing" for which the tax is supposedly designed, but then again maybe we will if our equity in our homes is continually dissipated throughout the years by new taxes.

Write the county planning commission and board of supervisors protesting what is really nothing more than double taxation, triple if you consider the federal government's bite on the profit resale of the property.

Not Much Luck Getting Thieu To Thieu

Mr. President, when do you think the war will end?

It's Thieu early to tell.

This is Thieu.

But, Mr. President, the war is over.

Is that Thieu?

The American people say it is.

It is Thieu my efforts that the South Vietnamese have the best chance of retaining their freedom.

But we have given you an abundance of military supplies, we have withdrawn most of our forces and are willing to help you rebuild your country, and you have the assurance of the North Vietnamese that there will be no reprisals.

That's Thieu, but you have also offered seven billion dollars to the North Vietnamese.

Mr. President, that was a good will gesture from Mr. Nixon. The North Vietnamese will use the money to buy wheat from Russia and China so they can feed their hungry people.

You sold the wheat cheap to Russia and China. They will resell it to us at a good price. The Vietnamese people will have wheat but no money.

It's Thieu early to tell.

Well Mr. President, I'm tired. I'm going to bed.

Me Thieu.

Scientists See Us Standing On Threshold of New Worlds

WASHINGTON — That precarious creature, man, is hovering on the threshhold of new worlds so thrilling as to diminish everything that has gone before. The six Nobel prizes awarded to American scientists were a measure of the extraordinary pace of science, not only here but elsewhere in the West.

Scientists are exploring the nature of man, and his place in the unkaleidoscope of the chromosomes, the very stuff of life, is at the command of a new generation.

At the other extreme astronomers and astro-physicists are looking into the farthest reaches of the universe where space and time are measured in millions of light years. The breathtaking nature of what this can mean is only dimly understood by most of us, balked by a language so abstruse, so dependent on the symbols of mathematics and physics, as to exclude all but the initiated.

But now and then there are glimpses comprehensible to the uninitiated. At an astronautical conference in Vienna, an Aemrican scientist, Bernard M. Oliver, proposed a program for seeking messages from other planets. He suggested that thousands of stars with civilizations equal to or far in advance of our own may be trying to communicate with us and, as Oliver put it, help us.

THIS IS NOT science fiction about green-headed little men in impossible space ships. It comes from a scientist who is a vice president of Hewlett, Packard — the firm that has done so much electronic pioneering. Expounding the science of this daring proposal developed in an extended study last summer, Oliver says:

"Our estimates of the density of communicative life in the galaxy are very uncertain, primarily because we do not know how long advanced races maintain an effort to communicate with one another. If, on the pessimistic side, we assume that no communication already exists and that other races like ourselves make occasional attempts at listening and sending, we may well have to search every likely star out to 1,000 light years. If, on the optimistic side, interstellar communication is an existing reality, communicative races may radiate beacons to attract new races to the galactic community and they may do this for millions of years. In this case we may detect other life closer than 100 light years. Or we may detect leakage signals within this range."

The cost, according to Oliver, would be perhaps half the cost of the Apollo program, or about $5 billion — half the cost of the stunt of putting a man on the mon.

LAST JUNE a hundred leading astronomers, the survey committee of the National Academy of Sciences, declared that the secret of the birth, life and death of the universe five billion years ago is on the verge of being unraveled. They called for a big boost in the quest with earth-orbiting observatories and satellites designed to study the sun and stars. The cost: $1.2 billion.

The other day in Boston, a panel of scientists and theologians discussed whether earth men should bridge outer space and communicate with other worlds. The pessimists felt that earth men in their present primitive state might do more harm than good to those other worlds. But as the past has shown, what science can do will be done whether for good or evil.

What does all this have to do with the grubby moment in which we live — with wars and crime and an election campaign marked by resounding apathy? It means that if reason prevails we can move beyond the mud that mires most of us on our little mud ball of a planet. We can reach for the stars.

A LOT OF FANCY and for the most part meretricious proposals have been batted up for the United States' 200th birthday in 1976. What could be better than dedication to a great project pushing back the barriers of knowledge so close to being breached? Imagine — this is fantasy needless to say — talking with another star:

Yes, we are 200 years old and we believe we are still the last best hope of earth. What can you tell us out of your thousands of years of experience?

Wish To Avoid More Taxes Pushes States Into Lotteries

By LOUIS CASSELS

Faced with taxpayer revolts against higher income, sales and property taxes, an increasing number of states are resorting to lotteries as a "painless" way of raising money.

Maryland voters approved a state lottery in a recent referendum. That makes eight states which have climbed on the lottery bandwagon. New Hampshire was the first.

New Hampshire's lottery was launched in 1964 with tickets priced at 50 cents each, and weekly drawings for prizes. About half the take from ticket sales is parceled out among winners. The other half helps finance the state school system.

WITH VARIOUS modifications, the New Hampshire system subsequently was adopted by New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Michigan. Now Maryland.

In at least a dozen other states, lottery proposals are in various stages of planning or legislative study, and it's a good bet that several of them will be getting into the gambling business soon.

Although lotteries are not a magic cure-all for the crisis in state finances, they can bring in substantial sums of money. New York state has raked in a profit of about $170 million on its lottery since it began five years ago.

New Jersey took in $100 million for its schools during the first 18 months of its state lottery. It expects to increase the take considerably next year because it has begun having lottery drawings on a daily basis.

OPPONENTS of the fast-growing trend toward official lotteries assert that these operations differ very little from the illegal numbers racket. The tickets are relatively cheap, the payoff is relatively small, and they say a large percentage of the ticket buyers are poor people who can ill afford to waste even 50 cents a week on a long-shot dream of getting rich overnight.

Proponents of lotteries reply that they are simply tapping, for wholesome social purposes such as education, money that would otherwise be siphoned off by underworld gambling syndicates through the numbers racket.

By legalizing betting that large numbers of people seem determined to do anyway, proponents argue, state lotteries reduce the income and power of organized crime and eliminate a major source of police corruption.

It is doubtful whether these pro-and-con arguments really decide the lottery issue in any state.

The big thing that makes lotteries attractive to state officials is that they offer a way of increasing revenue without raising taxes. And a lot of taxpayers favor them for the same reason, even though they personally might never buy a lottery ticket.

How They Drew That Plan For Novato Of Non-Sinners

A group of the boys were standing along the Redwood Highway in Novato in the early days, discussing the price of feed, when two Pierce Arrows in a row went whizzing by.

"Sure getting to be a lot of traffic around here," said the honorary mayor on his way to a secret meeting behind Whitby's Barn.

"It's beginning to get noisy and crowded around here," he said. "Why just the other day, I saw another house going up out by the creek, and it's within a half mile of Sam's place."

"I've been thinking," said the town editor and philosopher. "Someday there will be a village here, maybe a town or even a city, maybe by 1970. Maybe we should start planning for it."

"I agree" said the mayor, and he asked his son, a mechanical drawing student, to draw up a general plan for the area.

WHEN THE PLAN was completed, there was a public hearing at the schoolhouse, just after the annual potluck dinner.

"We have a plan here that will accommodate a population of about 30,000 by 1970, with a four-lane divided freeway through town, shops along Grant Avenue, about a dozen schools, some neighborhood shopping centers and possibly apartments," the mayor said.

"Wait a minute!" the editor said. "I think that 30,000 is a little high. Couldn't we lower that to about 20,000? If we get too many people up here, this place will get to be just like San Rafael, crowded with all kinds of people and traffic."

"You're right," the local school principal said. "This is a beautiful rural area and if hordes of people come in, trees will be chopped down, roads will be built all over the land, the streams will get dirty, and the horses and cows will be driven out."

"Yes," a rancher said. "I like it the way it is. I don't want too many people coming in here. How are we going to handle the water supply? How about septic tanks? We can't have thousands of septic tanks all over the valley."

"JUST A MINUTE!" said the local pastor. "Let's look at this like Christians. We can't deny our brethren the right to enjoy the beauties of our valley."

"But hold on," the minister said, "we can't deny, but we have the duty to keep out the sinners from the cities who would corrupt our moral atmosphere. Therefore I hope you will cut that limit to 14,000, all nonsinners."

"Perhaps," the mayor said, "we should have a limit on commuters."

"Like the game warden has on deer?" the rancher asked.

Miller Predicts Miner Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arnold Miller, insurgent candidate to oust Tony Boyle as president of the mine workers union, predicted today he will win comfortably the election beginning Friday among some 200,000 union members.

"We're going to win," said Miller in an interview on the NBC-TV Today Show. "The rank and file are fed up ... The (miner) retirees are fed up. I'm confident we're going to get half the pension vote and if we don't we'll win by a good margin."

One private public opinion pollster was reported to have found a slight margin for Miller among miners eligible to vote. Boyle's supporters are predicting a one-sided win for him.

Grasso To Speak On Security For Holidays

Fairfax Police Chief Charles A. Grasso will speak to town businessmen on holiday security precautions at a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today in the Fairfax branch of the Bank of America.

"This is the peak period for shoplifting and burglaries," he said, adding his talk will deal with security precautions, thefts and bad checks.

Senators Show True Devotion In Those Hectic Foreign Tours

WASHINGTON — This is the time of year when our congressmen and senators are traveling all over the world "investigating" things of utmost importance to the United States. There are some spoilsports, also known as taxpayers, who consider these trips junkets and a method of our lawmakers taking their wives on a much-needed vacation. But they are wrong. Our legislators are dead serious when they take a trip abroad, and the nation receives great benefits from these overseas jaunts.

I was at the airport the other day and ran into Sen. Ezra Bickering, who was with his wife and a group of other senators and their wives, waiting for a plane to take them to the Caribbean.

"WHERE ARE YOU going, Senator?" I asked.

"Well," he replied, "as you know, I am chairman of the Senate subcommittee on snorkeling, and we are going to investigate snorkeling conditions in our Caribbean Defense Area."

"I didn't know snorkeling was a serious problem in the Caribbean," I said.

"That's where you have been misinformed. We have information that the Cubans have been snorkeling in our waters."

"They have?"

"With Soviet equipment," Senator Bickering said. "An underwater mask with a Russian trademark washed up on the beach at St. Croix three weeks ago. We intend to hold hearings at this beach and get to the bottom of it."

"But surely if this is true the U.S. Navy can deal with the problem," I said.

SENATOR BICKERING became a little huffy, "My committee is charged with drawing up legislation for snorkeling. The American people must be informed of the laxity of our snorkeling laws and they also must be alerted to the dangers of foreigners snorkeling in our waters. This is not a joy ride, boy. This is serious business."

"I can see that, Senator. If it is true that the Cubans have been snorkeling in American waters, what do you intend to do about it?"

"We're not certain," Senator Bickering said. "That is why, after we hold our hearing at St. Croix, we're going on to Jamaica, Barbados and Martinique.

"We want to see how other countries are dealing with their snorkeling problems. Once we gather enough information, we hope to draft a snorkeling treaty with all the Caribbean countries."

"IT SOUNDS TO ME," I said, "as if you're going to be pretty busy for the next months."

"There isn't a man on my committee who wouldn't rather have taken a vacation instead. But when I raised the question on the snorkel gap in the Caribbean and what it could mean to us in terms of the Monroe Doctrine, they all canceled their plans and agreed that this trip had first priority."

"But won't you have any fun at all?" I asked.

"I doubt it. We'll be snorkeling all day and holding meetings in the evenings. I may try to give the committee members a day off for shopping, but only if we get our work done."

"WHY ARE YOU taking your wives?"

"They can entertain the wives of foreign snorkelers while we're in session."

"One last question. Will you hold any hearings on scuba diving?"

"No. Senator Drakebill heads the subcommittee on scuba diving. He's there at Gate 24 waiting for a plane to take his committee to Tahiti."

Reagan Elevates HRD Assistant Alan C. Nelson

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan today appointed Alan C. Nelson, assistant director of the state Department of Human Resources Development, as director of the Department of Rehabilitation.

Nelson, 39, Davis, replaced Robert E. Howard, who was recently named chief of the state Division of Labor Law Enforcement in the Department of Industrial Relations.

Nelson, a Republican who will receive $28,875 a year in the new post, has been in charge of HRD's legal staff and the department's Equal Employment Opportunity Unit and Investigation Section. Earlier this year, he served three months as acting HRD director until the present director, Sigurd I. Hansen, was appointed.

He served five years as a deputy district attorney in Alameda County before joining HRD in 1969.

Mars Map Could Aid In Landings

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — A scientist who helped produce the first map of the north polar region of Mars said Monday the Russians, as well as the Americans, could use the information to land an exploratory craft in that area.

Harold Masursky, chief scientist at the U.S. Geological Survey Center of Astrogeology here, said both countries had expressed an interest in landing in the northern area of Mars, a sector not mapped until Mariner 9 sent back pictures this fall.

"If they land in that area, it would be based on our pictures," Masursky said of the Russians.

"The Russians are not even close" to matching the Americans in mapping Mars, Masursky said.

Masursky noted it was good fortune that allowed the U.S. to photograph the northern polar cap as Mariner 9 was scheduled to last only 90 days and was to photograph 70 per cent of the planet. Masursky said when the satellite continued to work, it was reoriented as the cloud bank lifted from the northern polar cap and pictures were taken for the first time of that section.

Maps based on the earlier pictures were released in July and the new maps showing the northern sector were released this week.

The big operation that can hopefully be answered by the pictures and maps, Masursky said, is "How much water ice is there on Mars?"

He said with the maps, scientists working at 19 institutions across the country hope to determine over the next several months the thickness of dry ice and water ice at the two poles. He said erosion nearer the equator gave evidence earlier of the water, but the amount has never been determined.

"Now we have the information to do the study," the scientist sait.

Masursky is in charge of the mapping project, which includes the initial map drawn to a 1-to-25-million scale. Other maps will be made as large as a 1-to-250,000 scale.

A Mideast Visit

BEIRUT (AP) — President Nixon will visit Egypt and Israel next spring, the Beirut newspaper An Nahar reported today from Washington.

Sin In Sodom? Only If You Take The Salt

SODOM, Israel (AP) — Centuries before pornography and nude movie scenes turned sinning into ho-hum family entertainment, this part of Israel was the swingingest wicked city in the world.

Nowadays Sodom is dullsville.

For the dedicated sinner, the closest thing to an illicit thrill is picking up a lump of salt littering the empty landscape, bleaker than Death Valley.

There's nothing here except salt crystals, lying around like snow, but a sign proclaims them "protected natural assets" and swiping them qualifies as a sin, or at least a crime.

In Old Testament days, Sodom must have made Las Vegas seem like a kindergarten. Along with Gomorrah, which has vanished from the face of the earth, Sodom got top billing in the Bible for unsavory repute. God destroyed them both.

The scriptures don't make clear exactly what was going on, but Genesis says: "The men of Sodom were wicked, great sinners . . . The Lord rained on Sodom and Gomorrah brimstone and fire . . . and He overthrew those cities . . . and lo, the smoke of the land went up like the smoke of a furnace."

That's pretty much the way it is even now, much to the disappointment of tourists looking for a little iniquity in the Holy Land.

The fire and brimstone and the smoke are still there, as a matter of fact, only they belch from the chimneys of the Dead Sea Works potash factory a few miles away.

To a sinner looking for action it's sort of tedious, but it's nice dollars and cents for the Israeli government. This vast mineral abyss, the lowest spot on earth at 1,292 feet below sea level, yields 3 per cent of the world's potash for fertilizer.

Nine dredger ships churn through the Dead Sea — so salty that no fish can live in it but a swimmer can sit in 20 feet of water reading a newspaper — each spewing up 800 tons of carnallite mineral salt per hour.

Not that there are many swimmers. With water like gooey kerosene and temperatures soaring above 100 most of the year, Sodom and the Dead Sea valley are too hot for most holidayers. Sinning in the days before air-conditioning came along must have been sweaty work.

For a tourist attraction at Sodom, there's a column of salt hidden behind a mountain. Guides say it recalls the wife of Lot, who was turned into a salt pillar for daring to look back as she fled from the brimstone raid on the city.

Guilty Pleas Entered On Robbery Try

Two young Marin City residents, charged with the attempted robbery of a Tamalpais Valley store, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court in return for promised sentences.

Osborne O'Neill Turner, 19, charged in a separate case with burglary, pleaded guilty to both charges on condition he receives no more than a year in jail.

Codefendant Barbara Ann Scott, 21, was promised no more than 45 days in jail in the plea bargain with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner.

The judge ordered both to return Dec. 26 for sentencing.

They were arrested Sept. 22 in Marin City shortly after three persons armed with a pistol entered Dan's Groceries and Liquors at 254 Shoreline Highway, demanding money. They reportedly fled empty handed.

Turner is also charged with breaking into a Sausalito home July 14.

Tiburon's Financing Rated 'AA'

The city of Tiburon, which will sell $1.25 million worth of open space bonds tomorrow, has become the first city in Marin County to receive an "AA;; rating from Moody's Investor's Service Inc. of New York City.

A spokesman for Dean Witter and Co., the city's financial consultant, said Tiburon could conceivably save about $60,000 in interest payments on the bonds as a result of the high rating.

Generally, large cities like San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento, with broad tax bases, are assigned "AA" ratings, while smaller cities, like those in Marin County, receive "A" ratings.

The city of San Rafael was assigned an "A-1" rating, between "AA" and "A", when it sold sewer bonds in April, 1971.

Jack Roth, a vice president of Dean Witter and Co., said the "surprisingly high" rating could be attributed to the fact that Tiburon has an extremely high median income and no bond debt.

Moody's analyzes the financial stability of public agencies that are selling municipal bonds and rates the likelihood that the debts will be repaid.

Tiburon will open the bids it receives on its $1.25 million bond issue at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

Neo-Fascists Lose Ground

ROME (UPI) — Parties aligned with the coalition government of Premier Giulio Andreotti gainednearly one-half the vote in municipal and provincial elections Monday, but neo-fascists lost ground in the first voting since Andreotti came into office.

The Communist share of the vote fell by about 3 per cent.

With 3,834,385 men and women, about one-tenth of the electorate, voting for two parliamentary seats, 778 city councils and two provincial councils, no dramatic changes in political allegiance emerged.

These women are leaders of the recently-formed Women's Lobby, Inc. They are among the thousands of lobbyists who seek to influence legislation on the federal and state level. The term "lobby" comes from the waiting rooms, or lobbies, of legislative buildings, where those who wished to promote certain legislation could wait for the lawmakers. Today, nearly every important pressure group in our nation, ranging from corporations to universities, has lobbyists. Lobbyists serve to inform busy lawmakers but at times some lobbyists have stepped beyond ethical bounds to attempt bribery or blackmail.

Do You Want A BETTER Deal On The SAME New Car?

All new car dealers have the same models, styles, colors and optional equipment on their new cars. What is the difference between dealers on the same make of car?

THE ANSWER IS IN THE COST OF DOING BUSINESS IN ONE AREA AS AGAINST ANOTHER

Marin County new car dealers have a much lower cost of doing business than the dealers "over the bridge." This is why your new car will cost less in Marin County. WHY DON'T YOU CHECK AND SEE!

Addition To Uplands Is Given Nod

By a 2-to-1 vote the Corte Madera Board of Design last night approved plans for 161 townhouses and apartments to be added to the Uplands complex on Paradise Drive.

Board members William B. Gilbert and Robert K. Overstreet approved the design review application by Willis and Associates of San Francisco. However C. William Thomas voted against approval, said board secretary Elizabeth Long.

Thomas said he felt the project involved too much grading and would prefer realignment of Robin Drive, according to Mrs. Long.

The 161 units will be built on the 15.15 acres remaining on the Uplands complex. There are already 126 apartments on the total 24 acres. The entire site was zoned for multiple use in 1962.

Most of the new structures will be townhouses, which D. R. Coldoff, architect for the developers, said will be sold as condominiums.

The board unanimously approved plans by the developers to upgrade and renovate the existing apartments by refurbishing the exteriors with wood and stucco, reported Mrs. Long.

In a meeting which lasted until midnight, the board deferred action on a design review application by Trans-Marin Properties of Mill Valley for a proposed eight-acre industrial and office complex at 200 Tamalpais Drive.

Zoning administrator William G. McBride said the board asked the applicants to reconsider the overall design because it was felt the 34 feet height was excessive.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 28, the 333rd day of 1972 with 33 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

British poet William Blake was born Nov. 28, 1775.

On this day in history:

In 1520, Ferdinand Magellan entered the Pacific Ocean on his way around the world. He was the first European to sail the Pacific from the east.

In 1956, the United States expressed concern over substantial shipments of arms to Syria.

A thought for the day: President George Washington said, "The basis of our political system is the right of people to make and alter their form of government."

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, significant air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Enzymes Used In Many Types Of Treatments In Medicine

A painter was hospitalized with severe abdominal pain. His physician could not decide whether he had a ruptured appendix, peptic ulcer, or acute inflammation of the pancreas. A sample of his blood was sent to the laboratory for a serum amylase test. The results showed that it was elevated, indicating acute pancreatitis. The test probably saved the man's life, because pancreatitis is best treated medically, without surgery.

In the same hospital, doctors were trying to determine whether a young executive was developing a heart attack or a lung clot. The symptoms were not typical of coronary thrombosis and it was too early to expect changes in the electrocardiogram. The blood level of transaminase—another enzyme—was elevated, which meant heart involvement.

THE IMPORTANCE of these tests demonstrates why enzymes are the conversation piece of the day. Enzymes are ferments formed by living cells. They are catalysts that speed up the transformation of certain chemical substances.

Study of enzymes is not new, but current interest centers on the various roles they are playing. Different cells contain different enzymes that are released into the blood when the cells are broken down by disease, infection, or lack of blood. Amylase, for example, exists in the pancreas and when this glad is inflamed, a large amount escapes into the bloodstream.

OTHER ENZYMES are found in the prostate or bone tissues. Still others exist in cancer cells. Transaminase is found in the heart, brain, muscle, and liver cells. None exists in lung tissue and therefore, when the young executive's blood was tested, the high transaminase level meant the breathing apparatus was not involved.

There is no end to how many tests will be devised in the future. Meanwhile, other enzymes such as trypsin are being used in the treatment of various conditions, including black eye, sprained ankle, and bronchiectasis.

WHAT OF THE CLOT?

REPLY

No. The clot is replaced by scar tissue and the vein shrinks down to the size of a piece of twine.

WHEAT ALLERGY

REPLY

Not to my knowledge, but there is bound to be someone who develops a swollen toe or pain in the neck after eating white or whole wheat bread.

No Action Taken On Refuse Hike

The Mill Valley Refuse Co., which wants to increase garbage collection rates over a three-year period in Homestead Valley, took its case last night to directors of the Homestead Valley Sanitary District.

The board took no action on the request after saying it wants to check how Homestead's rates compare with those in neighboring areas, according to board president James G. Macnichols.

The matter is to be discussed again at a Jan. 8 board session.

Mill Valley Refuse, now charging $3 per can per month in hilly areas and $2.45 in level areas, seeks to boost rates by 15 per cent the first year, 10 per cent the second year and 5 per cent the third, Macnichols said.

The board also disclosed it will participate in a Dec. 11 meeting at Marin Municipal Water District offices in Corte Madera dealing with planning of a consolidated sewage treatment operation in Southern Marin.

Harvard Prof Is Freed In Pentagon Papers Probe

BOSTON (UPI) —Harvard professor Samuel L. Popkin was released from jail today after the federal Grand Jury hearing evidence in the release and distribution of the Pentagon Papers was discharged by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Murray.

The dismissal came on a motion by Richard Bachman, assistant U.S. attorney.

Popkin was jailed Nov. 21 after he refused to answer certain questions from the grand jury concerning his sources on the Pentagon Papers. He was sentenced to 18 months in Norfolk County House of Correction under the custody of U.S. marshals with the stipulation that he could be released if he agreed to answer the questions.

However, because of the early dismissal of the grand jury, Popkin was ordered freed.

Bachman said he moved for dismissal so as not to conflict with or cause prejudice in the trial of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo in California in connection with the alleged theft and distribution of the papers.

The grand jury has been in session off and on since July 1971. Its term was scheduled to expire Jan. 12, 1973.

The professor was cited for contempt after he refused to answer questions in October, 1971. The grand jury had asked him about Ellsberg, a personal friend, and other matters concerning the papers.

Popkin appealed the citation to the U.S. Supreme Court, but the high court refused to hear the case. Two weeks ago, Popkin agreed to answer some of the questions, but the government rejected the offer.

Wet Ground Delays Use Of Portable

A portable classroom purchased by the Lagunitas School District to replace a building burned in a fire last September is not exactly stuck in the mud but wet ground is preventing its use, trustees learned last night.

Supt. Harry F. Roche said the portable is "sitting out in front of Lagunitas School" because the ground is too wet from recent rains to install the building in its place.

Roche said he expects to solve the problem soon.

The portable classroom was purchased from the Mill Valley School District for $5,000.

In other action last night, William Walsh was named chairman of the citizens' finance advisory committee, a group which will make a general budget study, review legislation affecting school finances and look into the possibility of private grants for the district.

Fir meeting of the committee, which includes two board members, three teachers and an unlimited number of lay persons, will be at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday, Roche said.

The board also granted Survival Inc. permission to run a recycling depot at Lagunitas School on weekends beginning in mid-December.

No action was taken by the board following a closed session in regard to firing a noncertificated employee, Roche said.

Five Are Held Without Bail In Two Deaths

STOCKTON (UPI) —Three female followers of Charles Manson and two ex-convicts were ordered held without bail Monday on charges resulting from the death of a former Marine and his wife.

The suspects are Priscilla Cooper, 21, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, 24, Nancy Pitman, 24, Michael Monfort, 24, and James T. Craig, 33, who were accused of shooting Mrs. Lauren Willett, 19, whose body was found earlier this month in the basement of a home here. The men were also charged with killing her husband, James, whose body was found in a grave near a Guerneville, Calif., resort on Oct. 10.

A sixth suspect, William M. Goucher Jr., 23, was being held here on a Sonoma County warrant for the death of Willett.

Holiday Deaths Lowest In Years

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Highway Patrol says California's Thanksgiving holiday traffic death toll of 62 was the lowest in six years and only six of the crashes involved an "identified drinking driver."

Commissioner Walter Pudinski said Monday that the tipsy motorist during the holiday period which began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday "appeared to be a minor contributor to the fatality figure."

Thanksgiving was the second holiday in a row that highway deaths declined in California, Pudunski said. The Labor Day holiday claimed 48 traffic deaths, the lowest for that holiday in seven years.

Fake Bomb Is Used By Woman's Robber

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Erla Mae Williams, convinced she was wearing five sticks of dynamite that could be detonated by remote control, withdrew $2,180 from a bank Monday and gave it to a tall, slim robber so he would not blow her up.

Police were searching for John Williamson, about 25.

Mrs. Williams, 50, a sales representative for a copper and brass dealer, said she met the robber six weeks ago, when he claimed to be an employe of a firm that was one of her customers. He called her Monday morning, she said, saying he wanted to make a purchase, and they agreed to meet at her apartment.

On arrival, he pulled out a pistol, which police later said was a pellet gun, and forced her to strap to her waist a board bearing the five red cylinders, wired together. He carried a black case with what appeared to be an antenna sticking out.

He told her that he could explode the dynamite with a radio signal from his case.

He forced her to accompany him from her apartment in Gardena to a Security Pacific Bank branch in Inglewood, withdraw the money in her savings account and turn it over to him.

The teller waited until after Mrs. Williams and the man with her, still carrying the antenna-equipped briefcase, left the bank to report the remark to the branch manager, who called police.

Meanwhile, the robber calmly took the money from Mrs. Williams, then returned to another teller to change some of the bills.

He drove Mrs. Williams back to her apartment, handcuffed her and tied her to a chair, and drove away in her car. She worked herself free and called police.

Mrs. Williams told investigators the robber told her he intended to take the money and go to Mexico or Canada.

The No. 1 Priority— Park Crowds

FRESNO (UPI) —A Fresno banker named chairman of the nation's first regional advisory commission to the national parks system sees his job as somehow stabilizing visitor populations at U.S. parks to preserve natural wonders from obliteration.

Lewis S. Eaton, president of the Fresno Guarantee Savings and Loan Association, said Monday every park has the capacity to accommodate only so many people.

"It may come to a point where the park service will have to come up with a plan to regulate the numbers of people who can enter them on any given day," he said.

Eaton was recently picked by Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton to serve on the nine-member Western Parks Commission.

At its first meeting he was named chairman.

The commission was created to provide the park service with recommendations to help restore the country's parks and national monuments to spots "where the great American public can enjoy—even revel—in the natural wonders that God created," he said.

Eaton said the No. 1 priority was preventing parks from being overrun with visitors.

"We as a commission may decide that implementation of some more rigid manner of registration for back country use may be necessary," he said.

He also said recreation attractions such as tennis courts, dance halls and baseball diamonds do not belong in areas of natural beauty.

New X-Ray Procedure Announced

CHICAGO (UPI) —A new X-ray procedure developed by a Van Nuys, Calif., firm produces images on inexpensive plastic sheets without film or processing.

It is called the Electron Radiography System (ERG) and was developed by Xonicx Inc. and was disclosed here Monday at the convention of the Radiological Society of North America. Long term clinical tests of the system are being conducted at Philadelphia's Hahnemann Hospital.

The ERG process forms an image directly on plastic sheets as contrasted to conventional film which utilizes expensive silver halide emulsions, Andrew P. Proudian, Xonicx president, said.

The permanent image is available for diagnosis in a few minutes. That image, he said, contains high detail of both soft and bony tissue within the same image.

This will permit a doctor to diagnose more specifically from a single X-ray rather than multiples which are time consuming and expensive in cost and radiation exposure to the patient, Proudian said.

Patents are pending on the ERG system.

Office Machines Taken From School

Office machines valued at $600 were stolen from a Novato High School classroom during the Thanksgiving holiday period, Principal Stanley V. Onderdonk reported to Novato police yesterday.

Two typewriters and two adding machines were taken between last Wednesday and yesterday morning, police said.

Arraigned On Damaging Phone Booth

A man, with no love lost for telephones because he lost his love to a telephone company employee, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony charge of damaging a pay phone in Strawberry Saturday.

Walter Preston Harper, 32, of San Francisco was then referred to the public defender and told to return today to enter a plea.

Harper, who has a swastika carved on his forehead, was arrested near a gas station at 570 Redwood Highway after a witness told sheriff's deputies he had ripped a phone receiver from a phone booth.

Deputies said Harper led them to the damaged phone and told them he damages phones because his wife ran away with a phone company employee.

He had previous arrests in San Francisco for the antitelephone offense, deputies said. Harper, who claims membership in the World Nazi Party, also has a record of psychiatric treatment.

Tour Book Lists Marin Gardens

A new booklet entitled "Year Round House and Garden Tours," by Elizabeth Joan Bewley of Oakland, includes several tours of houses and gardens in Marin and Sonoma counties.

Areas open to the public all year include Mission San Francisco Solano de Sonoma, Sonoma Barracks and the Vallejo home, all in Sonoma. Also listed in the book is Petaluma Adobe State Historical Park, three miles east of Petaluma.

Annual house tours listed in the two counties are one sponsored by St. Stephen's Guild of Belvedere on May 16, 1973 and the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club tour on April 11.

Collection Kettle Reported Stolen

NEW YORK (UPI) —A 400-pound cast iron kettle used by the Salvation Army for collections in front of Macy's during Christmases past has been stolen.

The kettle, five feet across at its mouth, was taken before dawn Saturday, probably hauled away in a truck because of its size, Salvation Army officials said today.

22-Year-Old Takes Fatal Span Plunge

With both arms still in plaster casts from a recent attempt to slash his wrists, a man, walking with his wife across the Golden Gate Bridge today, climbed over the east rail and leaped to his death.

According to the California Highway Patrol, he was released after his fourth attempt to commit suicide.

Roy had reportedly asked his wife of five months to take him for a walk on the bridge so they could enjoy the view together.

According to the patrol, he left his 20-year-old wife's side at about 7:50 a.m. and jumped off the span near the north tower.

A spokesman for the patrol said it had been told Roy had been despondent over losing his job, but did not know what his job had been.

The Coast Guard was dispatched to the scene, but had not recovered the body by 9 a.m.

Environmental Education To Be Discussed

A group of educators and environmentalists will discuss whether Marin County schools are doing enough in the field of environmental education at a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the faculty lounge of Redwood High School, Larkspur.

The session, sponsored by the Marin County Superintendent of Schools Office, will be directed by Roger Falge, administrative assistant in the schools office, and Gene Turtle, special projects consultant to the office and newly elected trustee of the Marin Community College District.

The program, moderated by San Anselmo City Councilman Lewis W. Stewart, will be geared toward coordinating environmental education programs in the county.

Mail Collection Box Is Stolen

The box at Ellis Street and Martin Circle was apparently taken sometime Sunday. Some mail believed to be from the box was found yesterday by children playing at Madison Street and Wilmington Drive.

Police advised persons who used the box to deposit mail Saturday or Sunday to contact either the post office or police department.

Interest Conflict At Mint Denied

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mary Brooks, director of the U.S. Mint, denied Monday there was a conflict of interest in the award of contracts in San Francisco to a firm formerly headed by her deputy.

Mrs. Brooks said the deputy, Frank H. MacDonald, had severed his connections with Construction Evaluators, Inc., a half-year before the firm obtained design and engineering contracts for the restoration of the Old Mint in San Francisco.

Slain Man's Dog Gets New Home

A small gray terrier, whose master was murdered in Santa Venetia last week, has a new home, according to the Marin County Humane Society.

The dog was released to Thomas Keight of Mill Valley, the society reported.

A $480 Fine On Drunken Driving

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former San Francisco supervisor William Blake Monday was fined $480 and placed on six months probation for conviction on charges of drunken driving.

Blake, arrested on Feb. 18, was convicted by a superior court jury in October. Sentence was passed Monday.

Police said his car struck a pedestrian, who is suing Blake for $750,000 for injuries.

Blake was a supervisor for 15 years until his defeat for reelection in 1969.

Postal Workers Strike In Paris

PARIS (UPI) —Postal employes in Paris and elsewhere went on strike today, kicking off a new wave of walkouts which will disrupt or paralyze much of the nation's economy during the rest of the week.

All workers said they wanted more pay in the face of rapidly rising prices.

Guidelines For Ads Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) Monday proposed six guidelines for endorsements and testimonials in advertising, including the right of a person to refuse to reveal compensation received for endorsing a product.

The guidelines state:

—If an ad represents that the endorser is superior to others by reason of experience or training, the endorser's qualifications must actually have given him that superiority or advantage.

—An endorsement by an expert or authority must be based on the expertise the endorser is represented to possess. For example, the FTC said, an advertisement states that a commercial "home cleaning service" has chosen a particular brand of cleanser for use in its business. The statement should be based on a judgment by the cleaning service that the brand is superior to competing brands. It is not sufficient that the business's decision to use and endorse the product is based on compensation alone.

—When a connection exists between the endorser and the seller of the product, and when that connection is a material fact in the advertisement, such connection should be fully disclosed.

—Endorsements by groups or organizations may be required to meet more stringent standards than individuals' endorsements. The former are usually offered as the judgment of a broader group of people while the latter as the judgment of only one person.

—Endorsements in advertisements addressed to children are of special concern because of the character of the audience. Practices which would not ordinarily be questioned in advertisements addressed to adults might be considered in such cases.

Christmas Tree Area Group Is Reviving

After lying dormant for several years, the Christmas Tree Hill Dwellers Association of Corte Madera and Larkspur has been revived.

Steve C. Thompson has been elected president of the association, with Jerry Rubin as vice President. William Cook is secretary and Douglas Rainger treasurer.

Membership in the association is open to any Christmas Tree Hill resident, whether in Corte Madera or Larkspur, said Thompson.

The reason for the group's revival, according to Thompson, are current problems including fire protection, traffic control and open space. Directors will attend council, planning commission board of adjustments and board of design meetings and make reports to members.

The association was originally formed in 1964 when Corte Madera was considering a development on the 65-acre Nicholini property on the hillside.

The same property is currently under discussion either for development or as part of the proposed Northridge open space acquisition.

(The hill got its name in the 1920s, when colored lights strategically placed gave it the appearance of a giant decorated tree when viewed from San Francisco.)

Fairfax Police Sponsoring Bike Safety Contest

The Fairfax Police Department is sponsoring an essay contest on bicycle safety for fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth-grade youngsters, Chief Charles A. Grasso announced today.

The contest, to be held Dec. 1 through 12, is aimed at sparking an awareness of cycling safety precautions in youngsters enrolled in the Fairfax school system, he said.

"Youngsters should write about what bicycle safety means to them," Grasso said, adding that essays should show an awareness of bicycle and pedestrian safety laws.

First prize in the contest is a $25 bond, while second and third prizes will be gift certificates, he said. The essays will be judged on content, style and neatness by a panel of school and police officials.

Grasso said the contest is being held with cooperation of H. Reginald Hammond, Fairfax schools superintendent, and Sister Beatrice Theroux, principal of St. Rita's Catholic School.

Essays may be turned in to the police department.
